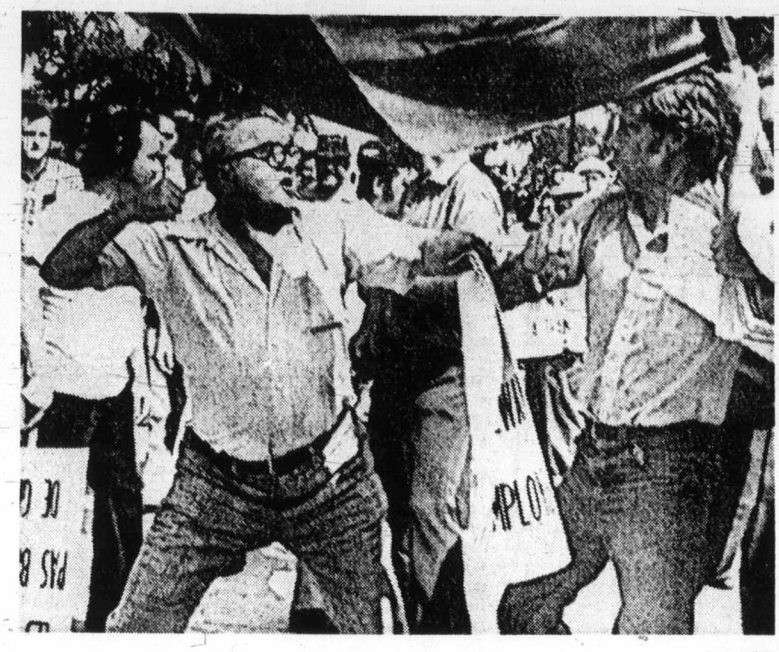
Railmen To Defy Job-Return Act



—CP

OTTAWA'S parliament buildings were scene of frenzied activity Friday as railway strikers paid visit. Left, NDP leader David Lewis uses bullhorn to talk to mob under Diefenbaker portrait. Centre, burly railwayman lines up on member of Communist party outside building, showing disapproval of communists showing up with leaflets. Right, RCMP officers push against main doors of building as they try to hold back militants trying to break into Commons where MPs debated back-to-work measure.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave second reading Thursday night to proposed legislation that would order the national rail strike ended although enraged railwaymen say they will ignore the bill if approved in its present form.

Eight hours earlier the striking non-operating railway workers drove home their discontent with an 1,800-man march that led to one of the most violent eruptions in parliamentary history.

The bill proposes minimum wage increases and compulsory arbitration for the 56,000 non-ops, 20,000 shopcraft tradesmen and 14,500 trainmen. The tradesmen have been poised to strike but the bill forbids this.

In detail, the bill proposes wage increases for the clerks, porters and other non-operating members of 30-cents-an-hour retroactive to Jan. 1, this year, a five-per-cent raise on Jan. 1, 1974, and a further raise of three per cent on July 1, 1974. Average hourly wages would increase to about $4.15 an hour from about $3.54 an hour after the settlement was fully in effect.

For the shopcraft and trainmen, the proposed wage increases are 8¼ per cent on Jan. 1, 1973, 6½ per cent Jan. 1, 1974 and 1½ per cent on July 1, 1974. Average hourly wage for the first union now is $4.05 and for the latter, $4.25.

Approval of the bill in principal carried by a vote of 192-to-24. The New Democrats, who earlier failed to bring the bill more into line with union demands, voted against it.

The Commons adjourned for the night shortly after the vote, but union leaders in a nearby hotel continued to plot ways to counter the proposed legislation.

Union Officers Fired, Harmac Shut

Firing of eight employees — including four union officers — and the suspension of another worker touched off strikes by about 1,500 MacMillan Bloedel employees at two of the company's Island facilities Thursday.

Eleven hundred men at the Harmac pulp mill south of Nanaimo decided Thursday night to stay off the job until eight workers who were fired earlier in the day are reinstated.

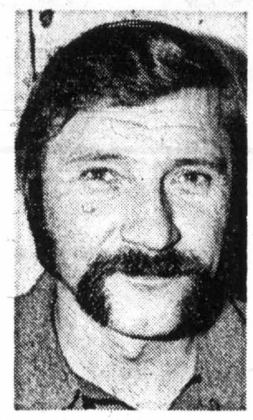
And at Port Alberni, the Ash, Cous and Taylor logging operations were closed down by a strike by about 400 men following the suspension of a worker who left his job to attend a workers' meeting.

Among the eight fired at the Harmac mill Thursday were the president, the chief negotiator and two other executive members of Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada. It was the latest move in a continuing dispute which has twice closed the mill in the past two weeks.

General manager of the mill, Gordon Woram, said the men were fired for taking part in "illegal picket lines" on Aug. 20 and 27 which forced shutdowns of the mill, eight miles south of Nanaimo.

Including among the men fired by the mill were Stan Shewaga, chief negotiator for the PPWC; Bud Hehr, president of Local 8: Bruce Tunstall, first vice-president of the local; and Ken Manzer, a member of the local's executive.

The other four men were employees of the mill's steam plant, including one whose suspension on Monday caused workers to walk off the job. The company responded Tuesday by shutting down the mill. It has been closed since then.



Shewaga
... out of job

In a prepared statement, Woram said that despite the union's contention that picket lines at the plant had been set up merely to inform employees of a B.C. Labor Relations Board hearing, they resulted in shutdowns and were therefore violations of the last collective agreement between the company and the union.

That agreement expired earlier this year and the PPWC has refused to accept terms agreed to earlier by other pulp industry unions.

'We'll Steal To Eat'

OTTAWA (CP) — "We'll steal food if we have to."

With no strike pay, how long could he hold out? How would he eat? He paused for a moment and then shrugged.

"They have big grocery stores in Montreal . . . Dominion, Steinbergs and that.

"They always have lots of extra food. You just go in and take what you need. You gotta get it somehow. If 5,000 workers go in, they can't stop you.

". . . Yeah, I guess that's a food riot. But you gotta eat . . . and they can't stop you."

NEW DEPUTY UNTRIED

King Shuffle Affects Six

A 31-year-old labor lawyer with little practical experience in union-management problems was appointed Thursday as deputy minister of labor, at a salary of $39,000.

James Matkin, a professor of labor law at UBC for the past three years, will replace former deputy Bill Sands. Sands is marked for "a very important assignment within the department," according to Labor Minister Bill King.

Despite the demotion in status, Sands' salary will go up to $33,000, a raise of $5,500 from the old deputy minister pay level.

In another appointment King named James Kinnaird, vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, the new associate deputy in charge of industrial relations at a $33,000 salary.

Other top civil servants involved in the department shuffle are: John Melville, one-time assistant deputy, who becomes director of manpower training and development at a salary not yet fixed; James Edgett, another former assistant deputy, who becomes director of legislation.

Surprise news was still Matkin's appointment. The Alberta native attended Harvard Law School and studied under Archibald Cox, currently the special Watergate prosecutor.

In 1972 he acted as special assistant to Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz in the mediation of the longshoremen's dispute. During his research at UBC, he was involved in a critical examination of the now-defunct Mediation Commission.

King said his new deputy

Coffee Held For Prices

LONDON (AP) — The world's major coffee producers voted Thursday to withhold 10 per cent of their 1973-74 exports in order to keep prices up.

The 33 countries that voted produce 90 per cent of the world's exportable coffee.

Same Stranded Sub Rescued Here in '70

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The company which built Pisces III, the mini-submersible now lying at the bottom of the Atlantic, said Thursday this is the second time the vessel has had to be rescued from the ocean floor.

International Hydrodynamics said Pisces III was stranded in 600 feet of water for 5½ hours during a dive Nov. 12, 1970, near Vancouver.

The company had never previously disclosed the earlier incident.

"No problems were encountered in the rescue operation and since it was not considered a newsworthy event there were no releases made to the press," the company said in a prepared statment.

Messervey, general manager of Vickers oceanic division, is on board the Vickers Volager which is heading the rescue of crewmen from Pisces III.

Referring to the 1970 incident, International Hydrodynamics said the vessel was on its first dive following maintenance work.

"Shortly after launching and during the descent the pilot noticed that the submersible was becoming tail heavy and within 30 minutes was at the bottom at a depth of 600 feet," said the company in its statement.

"It was apparent that the tail sphere had become flooded and it later proved that the reason was that a vent plug had been removed and not replaced during maintenance.

"Within two hours the Canadian Navy submersible SDL-1 was launched and attached a line to Pisces —— which was thereupon winched up back to the surface."

Bomb Shatters London Street

LONDON (AP) — A bomb exploded outside a luxury hotel early Friday. Security chiefs said they feared Irish guerrillas were stepping up their terror campaign in Britain.

Police had eight minutes' warning that the bomb had been left outside the Cumberland Hotel, and there were no casualties.

The hotel is at Marble Arch, close to the fashionable Oxford Street shopping area, and through the years has been popular with Canadian visitors.

A bomb warning was telephoned to the Press Association, the British domestic news agency, by a man who said police should cordon off a 600-yard area around the arch.

"You've got plenty of time," he added.

The bomb, which had been planted in a pile of rubbish on a side street, shattered dozens of windows and wrecked three autos when it went off.

Several hundred guests, many in night clothes, were ushered from the hotel to others nearby while police searched unsuccessfully for further bombs. Then they

Cholera Scare Empties Naples

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Tourists departed by the hundreds, health officials dispensed free vaccine and trucks sprayed disinfectant along streets and piazzas Thursday amid fears of a cholera outbreak.

Rescuers Race Clock

CORK, Ireland (AP) — A midget submarine dived near the bed of the gale-whipped Atlantic off Ireland early today to try to locate a sister vessel trapped for two days 1,375 feet below the surface with two Britons aboard.

As the seas mounted steadily, rescuers raced against the clock to save the crew of the stricken mini-sub Pisces III.

The rescue sub, Pisces II, was launched from its mother ship, The Vickers Voyager. A spokesman for the operation said Pisces II had established a sonar contact with the trapped submarine but had not located its exact position.

Scuffles Not Planned

No demonstrations like the one by about 150 young militants who stormed the Centre Block breaking windows and scuffling with police were planned. But other forms of resistance were.

Chief union negotiator Richard Smith announced that strike leaders would urge their members to ignore the law if passed unchanged, thus running the risk of a two-year prison term for disobeying a federal statute.

Theoretically this applies to all violators, but in practice only the leaders would be charged.

To accede to the proposed bill "would betray the 56,000 workers whose interests we were elected to protect," Smith said.

"We will not send them back to work for the meagre wage increases proposed in the bill."

(In Victoria Roy Head, strikers' spokesman, said the general feeling is that after striking for a month there is no way the men will go back and accept terms that were previously rejected.

("We'll go along with the general feeling across Canada that there will be no return to work until such times as our leaders order us back.

("And even if our leaders told us to go back, I don't think the men would go unless there is a better settlement than Munro is offering."

(Head said he felt the Ottawa demonstration was a "stupid thing," but he questioned whether all the men involved were actually strikers.)

Making a Mistake

Labor Minister John Munro, who has played a major role through a month of rotating strikes and a week of national walkouts, said he thought the union leadership was making a mistake with its threat not to obey the back-to-work order.

There would be a change in attitude, he said, when the workers realized that an 8.5-per-cent increase in wages proposed for the first year of a two-year agreement was strictly a base figure.

Although union leaders agree they would support the bill if it was "sufficiently improved," there were indications that many of their members would not. Many who marched on the Hill said they wanted no part in a legislative settlement — that the end result always favored the railways.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis, who had attempted to cool the demonstrations with assurances that his party would work toward a generous settlement, urged the Commons to throw out the bill and replace it with one in line with union demands.

His suggested new bill, which would have given the workers a wage increase of 21.6 per cent in a two-year contract, meshed with a proposal by conciliation board union nominee John Weldon of Montreal in July. But he was ruled out of order by Speaker

Nixon Plans Tape Appeal

The president's decision on his next step in the historic legal battle came 24 hours after John Sirica, chief U.S. district court judge, ordered Nixon to produce for his private inspection the tapes demanded by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Railmen To Defy Job-Return Act

Lucien Lamoureux on procedural grounds.

The Conservatives are preparing an amendment that would include cost-of-living wage increases in a final settlement. It will be moved during committee of the whole House debate today.

Lead-off Conservative speaker, labor critic James McGrath (St. John's East) blamed the dispute on what he called the government's inability to come to grips with the inflation problem.

"It is easy for us to forget that it is men and women and families that are involved here."

While the demonstrations and debate rocked Parliament Hill, the effects of the national strike continued to grip the country.

Grain shipments bogged down further, some workers in industries relying on rail service for supplies have been laid off and tourists in the island provinces of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island remained stranded for want of railway-run ferry service.

In the House, Munro echoed statements made Monday by Prime Minister Trudeau when he announced the emergency recall of the House to deal with the strike. Widespread economic loss had thrown the country into peril.

While the recall was implemented to end the rail strike, Parliament probably will go on to deal with inflation-related problems once the strike bill passed. Trudeau indicated this was a possibility when he answered opposition questions during the daily question period.

The back-to-work bill could be approved today, but if it isn't, there has been speculation the House will sit Saturday.

The demonstration, unprecedented in history here, was to have been an orderly protest aimed at impressing MPs with the union cause.

In the end, four strikers and two guards were treated by the Commons nurse for injuries. Many others were left nursing bruises and security forces replaced the normal crowds of tourists that flock to the Hill. The Parliament buildings later were closed to visitors.

No one entered the Parliament buildings without a pass.

Gorde Hunter
Love 'em

AT HAND, a letter suggesting y'r obedient servant is hopelessly and maliciously biased against millionaires. All came about because of a recent Hunter cartoon depicting Pierre Elliott Trudeau with head barely above the cost-of-living water line. Pierre was saying it wasn't so bad, that his head was still above water and the caption read, "how to beat inflation — inherit a million."

The letter writer, who wishes anonymity, said it was a clear case of hating Trudeau because of his wealth and that wealth should have nothing to do with judging a person's contributions to society.

AT THIS POINT I wish I could issue the usual disclaimer, that some of my best friends are millionaires but that wouldn't be quite right. I have many millionaire friends, but not best friends.

Be that as it may, I must deny the allegations. Maliciously biased is the wrong phrase. Hopelessly envious would be a much more accurate definition — but not envious enough to let the envy spoil all the good things the world has bestowed upon me.

I begrudge Pierre Trudeau not one of his few million dollars. How he got them is of no real concern either, although I've got a strong hunch that had he sweated a small stake into a fortune, he would have a better understanding of the tribulations facing the not-so-fortunate today.

IT STANDS to reason he can not be as sensitive to the problems of the poor. He can not be fully conversant with the rigors of keeping body and family clothed and fed in today's runaway period of almost hopeless inflation.

He, for instance, will never have to worry about his retirement. he does not have to scrimp and save to augment an inadequate pension plan. He has never been directly involved with the problem, hence a certain insensitivity to it.

MILLIONAIRES? Bless 'em, and I sincerely hope this country will be able to produce more and more of them if for no other reason that in the process of making millions, a man usually provides employment for many others and that's the whole idea of the free enterprise exercise. Leave it all to the state or to the socialist theory, bet your bottom dollar this country's gross national product would be countless millions behind what it is today.

I never met the late John David Eaton, but I do know that this quiet millionaire provided work for thousands and that his huge fortune was used in many philanthropic ways.

THE SAME could be said of the late Max Bell, who left something in excess of $20 million to charitable foundations and who gave many millions to worthy causes during his lifetime.

I had, a few years ago, the task of approaching oil millionaire Frank McMahon in an effort to get a new stadium built in Calgary. After the initial pleasantries, I suggested that inasmuch as the provincial government had just refused any financial participation in the project, that maybe he was our only hope to get the thing built.

McMAHON drummed his fingers on his desk and quite casually said he would look into it. Within two days he had given — no strings attached — $350,000 cash and backed a note for another $400,000 with a piece of property he owned south of the city.

And, you know, when the stadium was finally built and they named it McMahon Stadium, you'd be surprised at the number of letters and phone calls I received asking the question — "what's McMahon getting out of it." The cynical set, who couldn't believe a man would give away that kind of money without getting something in return. Yes, he got something in return — his name above the entrance and that's all.

McMAHON was one of the richest men in Canada, yet back in the middle Forties he was working for roughneck's pay in the oil fields. His own hustle and drive made him rich and again, many other thousands benefitted through jobs in his numerous companies.

I've also known some other very wealthy men who wouldn't give the time of day to charity, real cheapskates who must surely have believed they could take it with them.

But they're in the minority. The good ones outnumber the misers 50-1.

You read me wrong, dear lady. Millionaires we need. Envious, yes, maliciously biased, no.

were allowed to return to their rooms.

The explosion followed three fire-bombings Thursday in the heart of Birmingham, and the defusing of a gelignite bomb in a crowded London commuter rail station.

No casualties were reported in the Birmingham blasts in three downtown stores. They came a few hours after two explosive charges went off in Solihull, a residential suburb of Birmingham late Wednesday.

The London bomb, two pounds of explosives packed in a plastic bag, was spotted by railway workers on a footbridge in Baker street station in the heart of the capital.

The station was jammed with office workers heading home, and the charge was timed to detonate at 5:30 p.m., the peak of the evening rush hour. It was spotted at 4:45 p.m. and defused by police bomb experts in 10 minutes.

enough air to survive until about 1 a.m. B.C. time Saturday.

Tom Clark, spokesman for the owners, said there is no comparison between the situation of the British sub and an American research minisub that became entangled in wreckage off Florida in June, leaving two men dead.

"Our sub is not tangled up with anything," Clark said.

"There was a question in the American tragedy of whether aluminum compartments were at fault," he added.

"Our sub is simply a steel sphere. It hasn't go aluminum or plastic compartments. The problem doesn't arise."

Pisces III, the 20-foot-long crippled sub, was lying in mud with its nose at an angle of 70 degrees. Inside are Roger Mallinson, 35, and Roger Chapman, 28.

On board the Voyager were two other midget submarines, which will be used to attach a rope to the crippled craft, and a team of six divers.

Sir Leonard Renshaw, chairman of Vickers Oceanics, the firm that owns the stricken submarine, said that once the line is attached, the mother ship will haul the minisub to a position 50 feet below the surface. At this stage divers would attach a new rope to the submarine.

Union Officers Fired

shortly after the union served 72-hour strike notice on the company. The 1,100 workers voted more than 60 per cent Tuesday and Wednesday in favor of a strike.

The union called an emergency meeting Thursay evening and decided at it to stay off the job at least until the eight fired men have been reinstated.

Hehr said he felt further talks with the company were "beyond reach, at least until we get legal advice. I'm sure the company won't talk to us."

Hehr said folowing the emergency meeting that "in spite of all my suggestions that they (the other union members) go back to work and adhere to the letter of the law, they ignored that completely and the position taken by the membership tonight is there is no way they will go back to work until the eight people terminated are fully reinstated."

Meanwhile, MacMillan Bloedel has applied to the B.C. Supreme Court for an injunction to halt the walkout.

The hearing has been adjourned until today in Vancouver.

And the three-day Labor Relations Board hearing, called to investigate company complaints of a work slowdown during contract negotiations, has adjourned without making a ruling on the claim.

A MacMillan Bloedel spokesman said the strike by International Woodworkers of America at Port Alberni was illegal and involved a pay dispute. He said the suspended man had left his job to join other workers discussing rates for a particular job category.

A spokesman for the IWA termed the suspension "an over-reaction by the company" and said he expects it will be next week before the workers return to their jobs.

Sweden's Ailing King Stays in Respirator

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden's 90-year-old King Gustaf VI Adolf, gravely ill following stomach surgery, is running a fever and may have contracted pneumonia again, his doctors said Thursday.

The team of physicians treating the king at the hospital in Helsingborg, southern Sweden, abandoned plans to remove him again from a respirator.

Chretien Plea for Aid Turned Down

Police Won't Budge Indian Sit-Ins

OTTAWA (CP) — Indians occupying the Indian affairs building here were settling down for an all-night stand behind third-floor barricades after Ottawa police refused a department request to evict them.

The demonstrations, which began early Thursday morning, stopped the work of the federal department as the Indians controlled access to the building.

A spokesman in Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien's office said the minister had asked Ottawa city police to evict the Indians, but the police refused.

Native Youth Association officials, whose members are occupying the building, allowed 20 city police in with them. One policeman is stationed on each of the 15 floors, three are in the lobby and two at the doors.

More than 200 Indians, aged 15 to 30, moved in at dawn Thursday, with sleeping bags and enough food to sustain them for 24 hours, the planned duration of the occupation.

Vic Pierre, an NYA official, said they came to protest the government's youth liaison specialist program, and what he called inaction on the James Bay hydro project, the Jay Treaty guaranteed Indians the right to cross the Canada - United States border without customs scrutiny.

"We're tired of having Indian affairs ram programs down our throat. We want to be consulted. We know what programs we need, and government help must be co-ordinated with the aims of the Native Youth Association."

A spokesman for Chretien said the department gave the NYA $5,000 for a meeting in Sault Ste. Marie, but none of its members showed up for the meeting.

"When they asked for money for the native congress at St. Regis, we asked them to account for the $5,000 they had received earlier. That's what it's all about," the spokesman said.

St. Regis is an Indian reserve near Cornwall, Ont.

Under the youth liaison specialist program, the department hired 33 Indians at an annual salary of $12,000, to help NYA.

In a meeting with the minister in June, the youth group asked the department to shelve the program and negotiate the form any programs would take. Demonstrators said department employees who were refused admittance to the building were bigoted and insulting.

When three Indian affairs employees attempted to enter the building, an Indian security man, wearing an Iroquois head dress, beaded necklace and bracelets, buckskin vest and armband, stood unruffled, his arms folded across his chest, and shook his head.

The employees demanded that city police intervene. City police ordered the three away. One went home quietly. Two stayed to argue for a few minutes, but a crowd gathered and the employees left.

Texasgulf Shares Offered

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Development Corp. said Thursday it has been offered nearly all the 10 million shares it needs to buy control of Texas-Gulf Corp. if an American judge approves, and extended its purchase offer for another week.

A spokesman for the crown corporation said as of Wednesday, it was just 234,450 shares short of the 10 million shares needed to purchase control of the large natural resources firm from its predominantly U.S. stockholders.

The offer to purchase the stock for $29 a share was extended to 5 p.m. Sept. 7 New York time. CDC will stop accepting stock offers when it hits the 10 million total, the spokesman siad.

CDC attorneys, meanwhile, speculated they may receive by next Tuesday U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals' decision on whether the $290 million Canadian stock purchase is legal under U.S. federal and Texas state laws.

Texasgulf officers, including president Charles Fogarty, went into Seals' federal court in Houston, Tex., to try to block the sale.

They contend it could adversely affect U.S. national interests and stockholders to have the firm controlled by the Canadian government corporation. They also argued that Texas law requires majority U.S. and Texas control of any international firm incorporated in that state.

The firm gets more than 60 per cent of its Canadian copper, zinc and silver mines near Timmins, Ont. It now has only one Canadian on its board of directors, Alex Barron of Toronto.

RICHARD BOWER — Publisher and Editor-in-Chief

Now's the Time

IF, BY POLITICAL CHANCE, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has been biding his time for the right moment to present a strong case for the imposition of wage, price and profit control—that moment has come.

Once it has settled the rail strike, Parliament can hardly avoid paying some heed to the broader economic problems which now beset the nation—problems which have been magnified to a degree through the consistent refusal of the ruling Liberal-NDP alliance to either recognize or act upon them.

Nor can the Progressive Conservative Party be held to be entirely innocent in the matter. It has taken far too long to realize that the situation today is of such grave proportions that immediate and strong measures must be taken if the present emergency is not to become a national disaster.

However, dilatory as they have been, only the Tories seem to be able to accept this fact at this point of time. And it is only they who have put forward any kind of a sensible or workable solution, namely: wage, price and profit control.

Undoubtedly the institution of overall controls would introduce new difficulties, but with determination and just administration they can be made to work as successfully as they worked in two world wars.

The advantages of such a policy would far outweigh the disadvantages. The foreseeable benefits that would be derived would range, for instance, from a more equitable distribution of consumer goods to an easing of industrial strife, from a reduction in prices to increased production, from aiding those on fixed incomes to the stabilization of the economy.

Opposition to such a move may be expected from two major sources—the heads of large industry and the leaders of trade unions, neither being desirous of losing the power or pelf they now enjoy. It can be anticipated that they will continue to bring every pressure available upon all political parties to dissuade them from taking the action which is so desperate a need.

But the average consumer—the everyday wage and salary earner, the housewife, the small businessman, the pensioner—would welcome it. And it is time they made themselves heard and felt in Ottawa. It is time that they made the parliamentarians aware of the vital fact that the average consumer is also the average voter.

Strongman at Cairo

A NEW STATE WAS CREATED in North Africa on Wednesday.

It was given no name. But it is the product of the union of Egypt, which still likes to be known as the United Arab Republic, and Libya, the sprawling, oil-rich desert land that was one of the bloodiest battlegrounds of the Second World War.

This improbable alliance between Egypt's more than 30 million people with Libya's scattered two million — and that's a generous estimate — has come about mainly through the machinations of Col. Moammar al-Khadafy, a formidable and ambitious man of 35 who has forced his attentions on a sometimes reluctant President Anwar Sadat.

Announcement of the agreement of union comes at a politically critical moment in the Middle East. United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim is in Israel. He has just left Syria (formerly Egypt's partner in the ill-starred United Arab Republic) and has already talked with leaders in Lebanon. He is due in Cairo today.

Dr. Waldheim insists that his travels are only to familiarize himself with problems on the spot and to make personal contacts with political leaders. His visit in no way portends a new initiative to bring the Arabs and Israelis to negotiation, he says. But there can be small doubt that if he sees an opportunity to promote a meeting of the hostile leaders he will seize it. Because, like the Israelis, Dr. Waldheim believes that face-to-face talks are the only possible means of finding a compromise which will solve the Palestinian refugee problem and provide a basis for peaceful co-existence in the Middle East.

It has sometimes seemed, in the last five years, that President Sadat was beginning to listen to that proposition — although he was careful to preserve the options by periodically threatening to resume the war against the Israelis where it was abandoned in 1967.

Having terminated the intimate relationship with the Soviet Union, the Egyptian leaders were almost totally dependant on financial help from oil-producing neighbors even to maintain a hypothetical balance of armed strength with Israel. But now President Sadat has Libya's millions as a sort of dowry.

Those millions will help stiffen resistance to any talk of compromise.

Col. Khadafy seized power by the ruthless elimination of opposition. President Sadat is the product of the democratic process. Col. Khadafy is driven by his hatred of the West. President Sadat prefers a form of neutrality. Col. Khadafy is not likely to allow his new ally to temporize. And if it comes to a contest there is little doubt which of the two will emerge the strongman.

The prospect is not exactly comforting, either for the Israelis or the worried oil customers in the West.

CBC Bans Gaelic On Nova Scotia Air

The Time issue of August 27 reports that the CBC has forbidden the use of Gaelic for Gaelic-speaking listeners over a local radio station in Nova Scotia. The Scots are as much a founding race as any other in Canada.

If francophones base their right to a radio program in B.C. on the fact that they are a founding race, the Gaelic Scots have as good a claim, at least in Nova Scotia, where their proportion in numbers is far greater than the francophone population in B.C.

What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander and if the CBC management doesn't want to recognize this principle they should be replaced.

Illegal Strike Rewards

So now we're living in a province where union members are richly rewarded for staging an illegal strike at the time when it will do the most damage to the most people.

Nice prospect, isn't it?

Dangerous Potholes

A lifelong cyclist, I have a sturdy bicycle with large tires. But they are in no way sufficient to lessen the shock and jolt one receives in encountering one of the many pot holes which abound in Victoria's lesser streets. For example, take the east end of Michigan Street, between Government and Douglas: here the road is very bad with very many pot holes. An extremely dangerous hazard to the many young cyclists (some with 10-speed bikes difficult to handle) going to South Park Elementary School. Cars are allowed to park on both sides of this short stretch of road. Why? Have we to wait for a serious accident to occur before action is taken?

Parents should ask City Hall what they are doing. Highrise and other apartment buildings pay high taxes; surely we can afford to keep city roads in a decent state of repair.

Aldermen with high emoluments and most with lucrative businesses as well, can easily afford luxurious cars which will spray humble pedestrians with mud and water from these pot holes. Our hard-working newspaper carriers should also be considered. These boys do a fine job with heavily laden bicycles, especially on the coming dark mornings. Let's take care of them.

I am asking parents to closely examine the neighborhood streets, especially near schools, and call the City Hall or the alderman if they know who is responsible for city paving. We want immediate action.

JOHN KENNY,

Strengthening Democracy

Thursday, August 9, 1973, Canadian Press wire service carried a story about an armed forces employee whose beard was not approved by management and therefore they fined him and cost him his job.

While this may only be a petty example, it demonstrates in a down-to-earth manner the absolute power that management has and the arbitrary manner in which they exercise it.

The only way individuals can protect themselves, their jobs and their humanity at the workplace and in fact the only way to protect and strengthen democracy in this society is to join and participate in labor unions.

Being bastions of democracy yourselves, I trust that you will do your utmost to support unionism and in this particular case to lobby the federal government for changes in legislation to give armed forces personnel the rights and protections of collective bargaining.

In Times Of Trouble

It is our deep appreciation for all the help and kindness shown to us and our five children during the recent ferry tie-up at Sidney that impels us to write this letter.

What could have been a most unpleasant 26-hour period of waiting was made as comfortable as possible by the actions of many private citizens, the police, ambulance service, welfare department, aldermen, private companies, Kinsmen, and many others. It is most heartening to find that people are so willing to help strangers when they see them in difficulties. We shall always think warmly of the citizens of Sidney, B.C., and wish them to accept our most sincere thanks.

Labor Court Advocated

I am indeed shocked to realize that the unlicensed personnel of the B.C. Ferries were allowed to cause all this inconvenience to the travelling public, as well as shut off the supply of essentials to the homeowners, the business people and the construction people. They have also disrupted the holidays of a vast number of people.

Would it be possible to set up a labor court consisting of two representatives from labor, two representatives from management, and the government appoint a suitable judge. These five persons could hear the arguments of the representatives of management and labor and render a binding decision.

The right to strike has had its uses but in today's world it is not necessary. Its use causes a great number of hardships to every strata of our society, who are not involved in the labor dispute. When labor does go on strike, the two parties have to return to the bargaining table before a settlement is reached.

If labor and management were to present their case to the labor court say 90 days before their present agreement expires, the case could be adjudicated and a decision rendered before the expiry of their agreement. Before my retirement I belonged to a union with a no-strike agreement and we were able to settle our differences by arbitration. The settlement was binding on both parties.

I would appreciate hearing your opinion of this problem.

A Changing Way of Life . . . . . . and a Changing Scene

Japan Adapts to Pace of Progress

By MICHAEL FRAYN from Tokyo

Look out of the living-room window of even the most comfortable middle-class house in Japan and the next house is never more than a few feet away. Or the next factory. And beside the bamboo fence of the last house on the outskirts, beside the wall of the last factory, the rice paddy commences.

Four-fifths of Japan is uninhabitable mountains, so that 108 million people have to live, manufacture, and grow their food in the small area that is left. This dense civilization must have thickened almost in front of the eyes during the last 120 years, since Japan — then an impoverished feudal society with a population, limited by famine, of some 30 millions — was forcibly opened to the world by the great imperial powers.

And not only thickened, but changed, and changed again. Working in timber rather than stone or brick, the Japanese have never built to last. Nearly half of Tokyo was reduced to ashes in the great earthquake of 1923, and well over half of it destroyed again in the fire-raids carried out by the Americans in 1945. Hide Ishiguro, a philosopher at London University, who had been back to Japan for only two short visits in the last five years, was constantly astonished as she showed me round Tokyo by the sight of new buildings, and baffled by miles of new subway line. The population has increased by half since the war, and shifted like sand; the great majority of Tokyo's inhabitants were born elsewhere.

It's been difficult to build upwards for fear of earthquakes, though clumps of high-rise buildings are appearing now in Tokyo which are designed to resonate freely in time with the shockwaves. In Osaka they have escaped downwards, and dug out a huge underground shopping centre two floors deep, with its own decorative subterranean river. (An earthquake expert I talked to was very gloomy about what would happen down there when a big quake shattered the exits and extinguished the lights.) The dense, low urban sprawl on the surface is dominated by towering wire cages like gigantic aviaries, inside which you can take out your frustrations on a golf-ball, to keep sane while you work to become rich enough to hit it out in the open (I saw advertisements in the Japan Times offering up to $67,500 for membership in a real golf club).

I felt an almost physical sense of being pressed in upon. At sunset one sweltering Sunday night I found myself waiting in the centre of a rather scruffy little commuter town near Tokyo while a friend went to make a phone call. We and a million other people had been walking round Kamakura all day, looking at temples and hydrangea-viewing, and we were just about to join what looked like a 25-mile traffic jam back to the city. The shops were all open still, loud pop music was playing, and there was a noise like steel rain coming from a pachinko parlor where a hundred or more men were standing shoulder to shoulder playing banks of quickfire vertical pinball machines to win domestic provisions.

I suddenly became aware that somebody huge was staring at me. I looked up — and there on a hill outside the town was a gigantic Buddha gazing placidly down through the tangle of overhead electric wires. Suffering from either cultural shock or severe sensory overload, I took refuge in a charming riverside prospect across the street, with little bridges leading to a little garden beyond. There in the river below me, when I leaned on the balustrade, were the remains of five bicycles, one on top of the other, all thrown in from the same point. And over them, like a fountain playing upon a piece of statuary, gushed an abundant spring of pure, odoriferous sewage.

The roads are clogged with the nation's products; the rivers and seas with its waste-products. Miss Ishiguro begged me to make great efforts not to write yet another article about pollution, or the economic miracle, or employees singing company songs. But the subject of pollution it wasn't possible to avoid. Entire pages of the English-language papers were full of nothing but pollution news; conversations returned to it again and again.

At Minamata (the place which gave its name to Minamata disease, a form of mercury poisoning), the fishery co-operative was being commissioned by the local authority to fish the bay and bury whatever it caught. In Saeki, fishermen occupied the offices of a company discharging waste-products into the bay until a company executive knelt before them in apology. In Kobe, the president of a fish transportation company whose business had been hit by the scare burned himself to death on the tombs of his ancestors. Ten thousand fishmongers met in Tokyo to protest. The prime minister instructed all the members of his cabinet to set people's minds at rest by eating fish for lunch every day.

Stewing in the damp Pacific heat (though of course it snows in winter), surrounded by a tightpacked mass in a state of agitated and rapid transformation, I sometimes felt as if I was inside some kind of pressure cooker.

It seemed to me that people did work hard, as the legend has it. Most companies still work a six-day week. Wives complain that their husbands get home so late that they scarcely see them. Miss Ishiguro made a point of undermining all these generalizations by taking me to see a university computer centre which could be run only eight hours a day because it was staffed by government employees who refused on principle to work overtime. She introduced me to an executive in a pharmaceutical company who worked from nine to six, five days a week (and who sang not company songs but the B. Minor Mass and the Verdi Requiem with a local choir). His firm was just going over to a system whereby office staff put in 160 hours a month arranged in any way they chose.

But a Swedish woman I met in Kyoto, who had lived in Japan for a number of years, and worked in the offices of Japanese companies (she spoke fluent Japanese) was very vehement about the effect which "the company" had on life for its employees. "The effect?" she cried. "The company is life! And the real slave of the company is the boss. He has to work long hours — till nine, till ten — and the system is that no one else feels able to leave before he does. Men feel that they have to demonstrate their strength by working until they drop. And sometimes that happens. Every now and then in the office where I was working, late in the evening, a man would literally collapse and have to be taken home."

A teacher from a university in Nara told me that it was the men in their thirties and forties who were the real force behind the economy. The younger people were more interested in leisure, and the economy would slow down as they took over. All the same, the pressure still begins early in life.

Secrets of Success

By FRANK LOWE

All my life one of my favorite indoor sports has been to read biographies and autobiographies of successful men, probably in the vain hope that some of that success might rub off on me.

So very early in life I had it impressed on me, from reading these tomes, that the key to success was careful planning.

A man should look ahead and plan his progress step by careful step.

So I got into this planning thing pretty heavily. But somehow it hasn't worked. I mean, it isn't just the little things such as knowing it will rain if I plan to go on a Saturday outing.

It includes big things. For instance, years ago I finally got together sufficient courage to walk into my boss's office to demand a raise. Ten bucks a week, for a seven-day week, just didn't seem sufficient.

I carefully rehearsed my pitch and then, breathing deeply to try to calm my nerves, I walked in. My boss looked up, said he was glad to see me because he had been planning to tell me I was fired.

To this day I have a feeling that if I hadn't gone in and reminded him of my presence this wouldn't have happened.

Then there was my freighter cruise. I was single, I had been lucky in the freelance market, so I had some money and the skipper of the freighter was an old friend who offered to lug me half-way around the world as his guest.

I was just leaving my apartment with my kit when the phone rang. The freighter, I was informed, had hit a large, hard rock and wouldn't be sailing any place ever again.

Even my marriage did not come off as planned. Oh, the ceremony was okay and all that.

But the honeymoon was only a day old when my wife asked me why I was dressed so formally when we were planning to go to the beach.

I had to tell her that she was going to the beach, but I was going job hunting. A funny thing had happened to me just prior to arriving at the church.

At first this kind of thing didn't bother me too much. I thought it might be happening because I was young and I would probably out-grow the malady.

No such luck, however. If anything my plans began to backfire on an even more horrendous scale. In fact, I resorted to trickery in the hopes that this would help matters.

In other words, I never announced or told anybody about my plans. I hoped that if I kept quiet perhaps the jinx would go away.

Mind you, this is not as easy as it sounds. When a wife asks where we are being transferred to, it takes a brave husband to reply: "I won't tell you."

Or what do you say to your boss when he says he is drawing up the company vacation schedule and asks when you are planning to take off?

Do you say: "None of your business?"

But even if I was that foolhardy, it wouldn't do me any good. I found this out just the other day when I made a quiet, mental vow to join my wife for a brief vacation in Bermuda — to surprise her.

Because I had no sooner made that quiet, mental vow when the man who would look after things for me while I was away went to hospital.

I guess, with my planning luck, I am doomed to a life of mediocrity.

Problem Money, Not Technology

Poor Countries Must Grow More Food

By RICHARD CRITCHFIELD
from the United Nations, N.Y.

With world food reserves at their lowest level in 20 years and North American farmers putting land back into production to relieve scarcities at home, there is intense new pressure on the poor countries to grow more food.

Their main hope of expanding food production lies in the new high-yielding dwarf varieties of wheat and rice which can double or triple harvests provided they get enough fresh water and fertilizer.

But country after country lacks the foreign exchange to buy necessary inputs.

For most poor countries the main problem is money, not technology. During the past year in Southeast Asia, I have seen one concrete example after another of governments frustrated in their attempts to grow more food because of insufficient foreign aid.

The Philippines, for instance, is critically short of fertilizer but lacks the foreign exchange to buy it. Nor can it proceed with land reform—upon which modernization of its feudalistic agriculture depends—without $250 million to $300 million in aid needed over a three-year period for compensation to largely middle-class landlords. Split between the United States, Japan, and the World Bank, at $30 million a year apiece, this is a cheap form of aid.

At present, demand for fertilizer in Bangladesh is double the supply; farm productivity in Bangladesh is very low, and the technological potential is there to double rice output in a decade. This would be more than enough to feed the population and transform perhaps the world's neediest case into a self-sufficient nation.

This year, requiring 2 to 3 million tons of grain from outside, Bangladesh presently has a lobbyist in Washington trying to persuade Congress to divert wheat shipments away from Russia.

The United States is supplying almost half of Russia's huge grain purchases of 28 million tons from abroad this year, almost three times bigger than any country has ever imported in history (India, at the height of its 1966-67 famine, received just under 10 million tons a year from the United States). The Russian purchases have not only helped bring about the U.S. food scarcity but have also caused something of a panic among the famine-threatened countries.

South Vietnam, despite the war, is relatively better off than some of its Southeast Asian neighbors. Last year it produced 3.8 million tons of rice, just 10 per cent short of self-sufficiency. Yield per hectare increased 32 per cent between 1969 and 1972 because of the new high-yielding rice and increased use of fertilizer. But U.S. aid — $595 million this year — continues to be vital.

Population control is also suffering from low levels of foreign aid. The World Bank this year came up with a $3-million, 5-year, family-planning package for Indonesia geared to 1.2 million acceptors. But by the time the much-delayed funding finally started, successes in East Java and Bali had brought the total of Indonesian acceptors to over 2 million, and there was no money for sufficient followup.

A few angry voices in the poor countries have argued that only the Chinese totalitarian formula offers a way to combine economic advance with full employment and equitable income distribution. But for most poor countries the continuing development formula is aid (preferably soft, untied, and channeled through multilateral agencies), state control of industry, currency and trade, and reliance on foreign and domestic private investment and agricultural modernization. This has meant the gap between rich and poor has inevitably widened.

The drama of Indonesia, the Philippines, Thailand, and most poor countries today is the race between the onset of revolutionary politics and the arrival of enough foreign and domestic investment in manufacturing for export to make such revolutionary politics unnecessary. To buy enough time for this race to be fairly run the poor countries must grow enough food.

North Americans are naturally distressed about this summer's meat shortages and rising food prices. But their average daily intake of about 3,000 calories — 40 per cent derived from animal products and 35 per cent from cereals, starchy foods, and sugar — has not actually fallen. The poor two-thirds of the world's people are, in contrast, getting less than the 2,000 daily calories — 80 per cent of it starch and sugar — they got to eat 10 years ago.

In a very real sense, insufficient assistance has crucially slowed down the world's struggle to grow more food and have fewer children. There is no longer enough wheat and rice to feed the earth's present inhabitants, and the population continues to rise 66 million a year.

The forecast is not for inevitable global famine. It is for global famine which can be avoided if the United States and other rich countries provide enough foreign aid for fertilizer, insecticides, irrigation works, feeder roads, landlord compensation, and family planning. And old "trickle down" aid economics will not be good enough. A way has to be found to fill the cisterns directly at the bottom.

Oil Samples Hold Solution

'Fingerprinting' Pollutants

By WARD MOREHOUSE from Wickford, R.I.

Two ships are anchored in a bay containing an oil spill. Both deny doing the damage. There are no witnesses, no photographs, and plenty of fouled beaches.

How to track down the polluter?

One answer is "fingerprinting" — taking samples of the oil, analyzing it in a laboratory, and checking it against computer data of oil samples from each ship.

And a team of scientists at Rhode Island University claims to have developed a foolproof fingerprinting method.

Their system, according to a spokesman for the university, is unique because it uses a region of the infra-red scale that has not been used before in investigating oil slicks. The way samples absorb or emit infra-red (heat) radiation of different wave-lengths depends on their molecular makeup.

Dr. Christopher Brown, director of the Rhode Island University project and himself an assistant professor of chemistry there, says that this kind of fingerprinting is the most accurate way of linking mystery oil spills to delinquent tankers. If a fingerprint — the specific molecular composition of oil in a mystery spill — has been previously coded by computer, he says, matching spill and source is simple and quick.

However, despite the test's reported accuracy, the method is not widely used. Dr. Robert Hildebrand, head of the U.S. Coast Guard's research and development centre in New Groton, Conn., says only one civil case has been prosecuted thus far using lab tests; not a single criminal case has used the technique of "fingerprinting."

And the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) calls lab testing "a last resort" for identifying polluter sources in court.

One problem is that not all suspects in an oil spill investigation want to co-operate.

Brown says his team has analysed a number of large and small spills over the past several months. Last April, for instance, when the Pennant, an oil tanker, spilled 100,000 gallons of fuel oil in Narragansett Bay, fouling its beaches, they were able to pinpoint the tanker as the source of the slicks. But most mystery spills go unidentified, and polluters unpunished, because of the time lag between the spill discovery and the lab test results.

"We're trying to develop a machine that is portable enough to take with us on a boat," says Patricia Lynch, Brown's assistant.

New London U.S. Coast Guard Ensign John Bair, in charge of monitoring spills for the region, contends on-the-spot witnesses and photos are the best means of hooking offenders. Ensign Bair and the EPA — both backed by federal law — can obtain oil samples in places where Ahadjian is beginning to fear to tread.

Hildebrand said his research and development lab in New London has been "informally exchanging information" with the university team. "We're both going to the top of the pyramid. The Coast Guard is still at the non-operational and development stage.

"We're trying to find the best method that will hold up in a court of law. The URI scientists think they discovered the unused infra-red spectrum method first, but we've had it in our back pocket for a long time."

Nevertheless, Hildebrand called gas chromatography and fluorescent spectroscopy "more promising fingerprinting methods."

Is there any co-operation from U.S. oil companies for the university's efforts? Yes, some have supplied oil and kerosene samples, but grants for research, no. At present, Miss Lynch and Ahadjian are working gratis.

According to Richard T. Deuling, vice-president of the analysis division for EPA Region 2 (including New York and New Jersey) no "standardized fingerprinting method" is likely to develop in the near future.

In short, he says, the more tests that are run on a sample, the more probability there is of a match-up. He calls analysis "the cherry on top of the ice cream and the cake."

The federal Water Pollution Control Act contains both civil and criminal penalties for oil spills. Enforced by the Coast Guard since January, 1973, civil penalties bring a maximum of a $5,000 fine; criminal violations — so called when spillers fail to report spillage — are punishable by up to a $10,000 fine and a year in jail.

There were 20 spills in eastern Connecticut during 1972. Of these, 18 have been civil cases, two criminal, the Coast Guard reports.

Of 1,100 oil slicks reported in New York City's harbor 350 to 400 cases were prosecuted. Ten were criminal.

To date, the Coast Guard holds all hearings on violations.

Log Business Booming

Artist's drawing shows MacMillan Bloedel's self-propelled, self-dumping log carrier to be built by Yarrows shipyard at Esquimalt. Yard will require about 200 additional men to build $6.8-million vessel which will be started at once for completion in fall of 1974. It will have double capacity of Haida Carrier, MB's log barge which was largest in world when launched in 1961. The 420-foot vessel will carry 15,000 tons of logs at 12 knots from Queen Charlotte Islands to Lower Mainland mills.

Payola, Drugola Probed

Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — A federal grand jury here is about to take a hard look at reports of widespread payola, drugola and organized crime infiltration in the multimillion-dollar recording industry.

Investigators here already are studying the reported use of sex, narcotics and money as illicit inducements in certain segments of the music world as well as possible shakedowns, tax frauds, kickbacks and arson.

"This is a big investigation and we don't know how far it's going or what the final dimensions will be," said one of many federal and local investigators.

"But you can bet it'll be a helluva lot bigger than the payola scandal of the 1950s.";

The impending probe, expected to get under way in about two weeks, is described as an expansion of the earlier investigation launched in June by a federal grand jury in Newark, .NJ..

A number of California witnesses, including several recording industry figures, are being called to testify during the New Jersey inquiry into reputed underworld influence and financial finagling in the ranks of the recording industry.

In Los Angeles, meanwhile, wideranging investigations are being conducted in several related areas.

Although the investigations are cloaked in secrecy, facets under scrutiny are known to include:

- Payola and drugola that involves the use of cash or narcotics by record companies for payment to radio station personalities and music stores as an inducement to play or purchase the companies' records.
- Internal revenue service agents reportedly are scouring financial and personnel records to see if record companies are evading taxes by charging off payola payments as legitimate promotional expenses or disguising unusual cash transactions in other ways.
- Shakedowns involving the kickback of fees ranging from 15 per cent to 25 per cent of an artist's weekly salary to secure bookings in Las Vegas and other entertainment capitals through organized crime figures who control many nightclubs and casinos.

"There is some basis for a number of these reports," said one investigator, "because we've found that many of the key spots are run by people in, or on the fringes, of organized crime."

Arson, including a recent series of suspicious fires in the Los Angeles area that caused an estimated $8 million in damage to recording companies, warehouses and music-related businesses.

Mercury Reaches Records As Toronto Swelters

TORONTO (CP) — Those overnight lows weren't so low at 13 weather stations which today reported new or equalled records for Aug. 30 minimum temperatures as a heat wave continued in Ontario.

Torontonians without air conditioning had to try sleeping in at least 76 sweltering degrees overnight — four degrees higher than the previous record in 1959.

At the Toronto International Airport, the temperature was a cooler 71, three degrees over the previous high minimum set in 1953.

The weatherman says the heat wave is expected to continue for at least another day.

Sweltering New Yorkers also suffered the summer miseries Thursday amid power and water shortages. Stagnant air in a stifling heat wave sent auto inspection workers home sick in Washington and forced production cutbacks at two Pittsburgh area steel plants.

Baltimore Mayor William Schaefer ordered fire hydrants fitted with spray sprinklers and opened for frolicking youngsters. Philadelphia ordered 28 city pools kept open two more days after 70 persons staged a protest sit-downn against the scheduled closings.

Cantaloupes cracked under the heat in a Detroit market. A Chicago judge put his O.K. on a shapely young law clerk's decision to wear a halter top and miniskirt into his courtroom.

The summer's worst heat wave simmered on in much of the eastern half of the nation. The national weather service said "little change is expected in the weather pattern."

The mercury soared to 99 — a record for the date — in Boston, to a record-tying 98 in New York, and into the high 90s across a wide expanse of the east and midwest.

Players Stage Auditions

Casting for the fall production of St. Luke's Players will begin at 8 p.m. Sept. 7, in the fireside room of St. Luke's Church Hall, Cedar Hill Crossroad.

The play selected is Get Away Somewhere Quiet, a light human comedy by well-known Victoria playwright Joan Mason Hurley. It is set in a holiday resort in the Gulf Islands and concerns the problems of the two proprietresses and their guests.

Peter Mannering of Bastion Theatre will direct.

Prospective new members for the Players are invited to attend the auditions and try out for parts.

Anyone For Tennis?

Booming interest in tennis has increased a call in Greater Victoria for instruction in the game, and the four municipalities are responding to that call with a fall adult tennis program.

Sessions will begin Sept. 15 and continue until Christmas, according to instructor Gordon Hartley.

Classes will be held Saturday and Sunday mornings on Beacon Hill and Gordon Head Recreation Centre courts, and will include lessons for beginning players besides giving those who already play a chance to improve their game.

Registration takes place Wednesday, Sept. 12, from 8 to 9:30 p.m. at the Gordon Head Recreation Centre on Feltham Road.

Non-Union Moving Firms Plan Court Test of Union-Only Bids

Non-union Victoria moving companies are determined to take the provincial government to court, if they continue to be excluded from bidding on government contracts.

"We'll take our case to the Supreme Court of Canada, if necessary," Roy Elphick, spokesman for the firms in question said Thursday.

Briefs protesting Bill 153 were presented to Premier Barrett and members of the cabinet earlier Thursday.

The brief claims that Bill 153 applies to the construction industry only; the bill's intent to eliminate bids on government contracts by non-union companies, the brief says, has been "manipulated and interpreted" to include other types of industry, including moving firms.

The non-union moving companies in question have retained Victoria lawyer Ian Stewart to represent them in their fight against Bill 153.

"We'll wait until after next Monday's cabinet meeting. If we don't get any satisfaction, we'll start legal proceedings," Elphick said.

"It's bad legislation and we want a proper interpretation, other than that by some political commissar," he added.

Elphick also said that deputy public works minister George Giles originally informed the non-union moving firms they were excluded from Bill 153 and would be able to continue bidding on government contracts.

Some time later, however, Giles wrote another letter stating he had now been instructed that the provisions of the bill would also apply to moving firms, he said.

Day Off for Most

All government offices, banks, libraries and liquor stores will be closed Labor Day, but licenced pubs will remain open.

There will be no mail delivery or post office wicket service, but normal holiday service will apply for special delivery and mail receipts and dispatches.

The Provincial Museum will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Hospital Funds Use Reviewed

Planning studies are still being made to determine the best uses of the $22.5 million authorized for regional hospital improvement in a referendum last March.

This was the statement of J. D. Forrester, the Capital Region's director of hospital planning at a Victoria General Hospital board meeting Thursday night.

Forrester told the board that a laboratory planning study has been completed and forwarded to the hospitals, while studies on pediatrics, obstetrics, radiology and other services are still in progress.

The hospital referendum, approved by voters last March 31, did not give any specific details of how or where the $22.5 million was to be spent.

Vandals Damage Lawns

The legislative buildings and Beacon Hill Park were targets of vandals early Thursday.

At 2:40 a.m. police received a report of two youths using bricks to break windows on the west side of the legislative buildings. Two young men seen in the area were held by police for questioning but later released.

In a separate incident, park patrol reported that lawns at the Burns monument and Bay Way in Beacon Hill Park had been badly damaged by cars driven over them.

Art Display Ends Sunday

The exhibition of works of European masters, on display at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria since mid-July, is nearing the end of its Victoria visit.

Up to date more than 11,000 people have gone to the gallery to see this exhibit, making it the most successful show ever from an audience point of view.

Now time is running out for those who have not yet seen these paintings. The exhibit closes Sunday.

Band Concert Series Ends

Final concert in the free series offered on summer Sundays in Beacon Hill Park takes place at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The series has been presented by the city of Victoria, the Trust Fund of the Recording Industries and the Victoria Musicians' Association and attendance this year has reached an all-time high.

Master of ceremonies will again be Jim Shearer and performers will include Betts and her Buddies, guitarist-vocalist Peter Chipman and the Henry Fielding Orchestra.

Variety in music will be featured as has been the case all summer, when concerts have ranged from symphony to country music.

Rail Trip Postponed

An E and N Dayliner excursion planned by the Juan de Fuca Railway Association for Sunday has been postponed because of the railway strike.

The trip, from Victoria to Port Alberni, is now planned for Sept. 23. The Dayliner will leave Victoria at 8:30 a.m. and return at 7 p.m.

Gregory Named Group Officer

School Bus Information and Schedules for the School Year, 1973/74

School Board Policy – Pupil Transportation

School bus transportation, subject to available seating space, may be provided for:

KINDERGARTEN—Pupils living 2 miles or more from the nearest elementary school in which a Kindergarten class has been established.

A.M.—Such pupils enrolled in the morning sessions will be transported to school on the regular bus runs. However, as the numbers do not warrant a special run at noon, the parents of such pupils may apply for a transportation allowance in lieu.

P.M.—The parents of such pupils enrolled in the afternoon sessions may apply for a transportation allowance in lieu of transportation to the afternoon sessions.

—Pupils will be transported home on regular after school bus runs. The parents of a pupil living in an isolated area 2 miles or more from the elementary school and for whom bus transportation cannot be provided, may apply for a transportation allowance.

GRADE 1-3 —Pupils who live 2 miles or more from the nearest elementary school.

GRADE 4-7 —Pupils who live 2½ miles or more from the nearest elementary school.

GRADE 8-12—students who live 3 or more miles from the nearest secondary school.

Mileage distances are calculated by the most direct route on established roads or walk areas. The distance is computed from the home property acess at the road to the entry at the school site.

SPECIAL CLASSES have been established at Brentwood Elementary School. All pupils who will attend these classes have been advised.

The bus schedules for the morning runs only are as indicated. The afternoon runs in general will be the reverse of the morning runs. The schedules are subject to change if circumstances require. All times given are approximate and subject to adjustment as needed.

BUS PASSES:

School bus service is provided at the discretion of the Board of School Trustees. Those students who are eligible for school bus transportation will be issued bus passes. The passes must be available for inspection by the School Bus Driver at any time. School bus passes may be withdrawn by the Principal of the School attended by the student for conduct or behaviour which is considered by the School Bus Driver as unnecessary, distracting or intentionally annoying.

Grade 8—To report at 10:30 a.m.

PARKLAND SCHOOL OPENING

The School Board is pleased to announce that through special contracting procedures the Parkland School has been constructed in the record time of 8 months.

Transportation strikes have held up the delivery of some vital equipment and furniture. The school district is making every effort to locate these and expedite delivery.

Consequently Parkland School will not be in FULL operation on the first day but the following arrangements will give the students the best start possible:

Grade 12—Register 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, September 4
Grade 11—Register 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, September 5
Grade 10—Register 8:30 a.m. Thursday, September 6
Grade 9—Register 8:30 a.m. Friday, September 7

All students will be able to pick up books and assignments. Regular classes will commence in about a week's time, depending on arrival and installation of furniture and equipment. Staff will be on hand each day to assist students when necessary.

If the scheduled delivery time of the sewer pumping station continues to be delayed the above arrangements may have to be postponed. Last minute notice of this will be given by radio and local TV. Parents and students are requested to listen for this announcement.

Mrs. R. Parrott,
Chairman of the Board of School Trustees

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The rally which had taken the market sharply up in the last three sessions quieted Thursday, and the market finished slightly down.

Brokers attributed the recent recovery which came after a long slide of several weeks, to the broadly undervalued position of the market and improved buyer psychology.

Among Canadians on the New York exchange, McIntyre was up 3¼ at $54½; Alcan ½ at $33⅛; Hudson's Bay ⅛ at $26⅞ and International Nickel ⅛ at $31⅞.

Ante Shrinks in Oil-Patch Poker

By GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist Business Editor

The poker game for petroleum in B.C. goes on and on.

Thursday the exploration part of the industry showed that it is willing to put another $3 million (but only that) into the pot and stay for another round.

The occasion was the quarterly oil and gas rights competition, at which time various companies contribute to the provincial coffers by paying bonus bids and rental fees for the right to go drilling for oil and gas.

It was a small sale — the smallest in fact in more than two years — and it came at a time when the sales figures are usually the biggest of the four quarters. For instance, in August, 1972, companies contributed about $7.5 million for 72 parcels. This time the sum was about $3.01 million for 41 parcels.

One may ask why the seeming disinterest in oil and gas in B.C. if there is an energy crisis? The answer probably is that oil companies are cautious and want to see a few more cards being held by the new government. The NDP administration laid a few of them on the table last spring by announcing a big increase in royalties for oil and threatened more for natural gas.

That brought loud protests from such groups as the B.C. division of the Canadian Petroleum Association who were particularly put out over what amounted to the end of an agreement on royalties that they thought they would enjoy through 1975.

Curiously, the association appeared to have tempered its views two weeks ago near the end of a provincial energy commission hearing in Vancouver. A spokesman, Kenneth Fitzgerald, said that a survey of the companies doing business showed that 93 per cent of producers' revenue over the years 1970, '71 and '72, is being reinvested in B.C.

Fitzgerald said the survey was undertaken to dispell "great gobs" of rumors that they are pulling out. He said that the CPA was concerned about the rumor and undertook the survey to prove it was not true.

Next requests for land must be in the hands of the mines department by Sept. 13 and the next disposition of rights is scheduled for Nov. 21.

The results of the energy commission hearing are scheduled to be made ready by Sept. 15, which is just two days after the deadline.

Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said in a carefully-worded statement Thursday that he was satisfied with the sale in view of the projected changes that are expected in the Petroleum and Natural Gas Act which will be an outcome of the commission report.

"This report is supposed to be ready by Sept. 15 and I am sure that the industry is waiting to see what recommendations come out of the report. Due to these reasons there were only about one-half the number of parcels of land put up for sale this time and in relation to the sale last August, the receipts are quite comparable," said his statement.

There are other soft areas in the industry. Mines department figures show a marked decline in crude oil production in footage drilled.

At the end of June, there were 584,026 feet drilled in B.C. compared with 765,539 at the same time in 1972. The biggest decline in this phase of operations was in development wells.

Oil production is also off 2.04 million barrels to the end of May 1972 compared to 1.81 million barrels the same date this year.

Natural gas production is up and so is its value. The figures read 208.3 billion cubic feet worth $20.2 million at the end of May this year against 194.6 billion and $18.5 million at the same time in 1972.

Another curious, but easily explained fact: value of crude production is up — from $26.7 million to $27.1 million. Major oil companies are now paying producers almost $1 more per barrel and motorists know what that means these days when they pull into their friendly neighborhood gas stations.

Minister Optimistic

Mine Given Advice

Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said Thursday he is optimistic that Bradina Mines Ltd. won't be shutting down its lead and zinc mine in Houston, a small community halfway between Prince George and Prince Rupert, despite a company warning that it will close.

The mine is not a profitable venture, and Bradina spokesmen claim they are having difficulty keeping up a complement of 125 workers because of a high turnover rate.

Said Nimsick: "I'm in hopes the mine will keep going after the advice our department has given them."

He added that the company appeared to be guilty of bad planning.

"They have poor recovery. Lots of minerals are going into the tailing pond that would make the difference between a profitable venture and an unprofitable venture."

The minister said he found it hard to believe that the mine couldn't find enough men to keep the mine running smoothly, and referred to labor problems that the company has undergone since a drying-room burned down.

It was not adequately replaced, he said, and a couple of wildcat strikes resulted

Nimsick said his department had advised Bradina it could break down a labor-management "wall of suspicion" by bringing some workers into some parts of the decision-making process.

Asked if the government would take over the mine should it close, Nimsick said: "This is a bridge that will be crossed when we reach it."

Industry Feels Effects

Rail Strike Hits Trail Smelter

TRAIL (CP) — Cominco Ltd. announced Thursday it will begin shutting down parts of its giant operation here because of the nationwide rail strike.

a spokesman said the company's smelter will shut down today, while the lead refinery, which closed last weekend, will remain closed at least through next week.

Other divisions will be kept open, but if the rail strike continues beyond the weekend, they also will be shut down, the spokesman said.

He said no layoffs of regular employees are anticipated, if rail service resumes shortly. The smelter will begin operations again Sept. 4 if rail service is restored on the weekend, the spokesman said.

PINE FALLS, Man. (CP) — The Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. plant here closed down Thursday morning when the supply of coal gave out.

George Weiss, product superintendent at the plant, said employees were doing maintenance and clean-up work now, but declined to comment on possible layoffs.

He said the needed supplies are in Winnipeg, and that the plant would be able to start operations quickly once the trains resumed service.

EDMONTON (CP) — Hard hit by the week-old national rail strike, oil companies are running short of some vital supplies in Alberta and the Northwest Territories.

Gulf Oil Ltd. spokesman Paul Theriault said in Edmonton that the stoppage of rail delivery of all lubricating oils and greases "has hit us pretty hard — our warehouses are getting pretty depleted."

Texaco and Imperial Oil spokesmen both said they wouldn't experience a problem in Alberta if scheduled truck shipments of lead for their refineries arrive.

Shell Oil spokesman Dave Webster said trucks in the Edmonton area are running 14 days behind on deliveries to dealers. There could be a shortage of gasoline sometime next week if the rail strike is not settled, he said.

Tentative Deal In Strike

HAMILTON (CP) — A tentative agreement was reached in the eight-week-old strike of 800 civic outside workers, including garbagemen. Union and city negotiators said the 23½-month contract calls for a package increase of 75 cents an hour, 72 cents of it in wage increases.

Building Razed

CALGARY (CP) — A fire at Stampede Park destroyed the $11,000 Grand Igloo building used as an exhibition area and three-dimensional cinema. No one was injured in the blaze.

All Markets On Holiday

TORONTO (CP) — All Canadian and United States stock exchanges and commodity markets will be closed Monday, Sept. 3, for the Labor Day holiday.

Stranded tourists meet to plan strategy

While Newfie Ferries Stand Slack:

Circus Soothes Tourists

PORT AUX BASQUES, Nfld. (UPI) — Gentle Ben is losing his hair and the monkeys and dogs are ailing, but the Emmet Kelly Jr. Circus feels the show must go on for visitors stranded by Canada's rail shutdown.

"The circus has been a godsend," said Louis Silbert of Branford, Conn., organizer of the ad hock "tourists committee," representing the U.S. tourists stranded on the island province of Newfoundland.

Silbert said his committee has sent telegrams to President Nixon, the secretary of defence and the secretary of health and welfare to provide an emergency airlift for the U.S. tourists and their cars.

He said the presence of the 2,000 visitors "is a menace to the local people from a point of view of health." He said there have been 50 cases of diarrhea and vomiting reported and they are worried about the danger of an outbreak of disease because of overcrowding.

"We demand that the U.S. government ask for immediate clearance from the Canadian government to install an air cargo lift to bring home the stranded U.S. citizens," Silbert said.

Among those stranded on Newfoundland are members of the Emmet Kelly Jr. all-star circus, who have been entertaining children with games.

But while the circus troupe kept their fellow travellers laughing, they were facing serious problems themselves because of improper food for their 20 performing animals.

In Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island Premier Alex Campbell said his government was launching a damage action against the federal government, but is more interested in working out a new arrangement for ferry service to the island.

The premier said the damage action is "for a symbolic amount" of less than $1,000 and is a test case to determine "once and for all federal responsibility for providing P.E.I. with continuous ferry service."

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Trudeau said the federal government is "not equipped to satisfy all the requests" for special transportation emerging from the railways dispute.

He told Jack Marshall (PC — Humber — St. George's—St. Barbe) that he could not commit government aircraft to pick up tourists stranded in Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island because the rail strike has stopped ferry service.

Canada Asked To Sue Over Vessel Seizure

VANCOUVER (CP) — David McTaggart, captain of the protest vessel Greenpeace III, arrived back in Canada early this morning.

He called on the Canadian government to take France to court over the illegal seizure of his boat.

McTaggart looking tired and drawn, and wearing sunglasses to protect his right eye which he said was injured when he was beaten by French sailors, was greeted by members of the Greenpeace foundation and about 30 wellwishers.

France seized the Greenpeace III off Mururoa Atoll, site of French nuclear test blasts, about two weeks ago.

"I would like the Canadian government to make a legal case of the illegal cordoning off of international waters," McTaggart said. "You can get to the atomic bomb that way."

McTaggart described the seizure of his vessel by the French and said that he was "sure the sailors were told to lay into us.

"It happened very quickly. Three men jumped up onto the rail and they just grabbed me and pulled me over to the side into a dinghy.

"They were starting to beat me on the head and then I got smashed in the eye very quickly. It felt like the eye had been driven through the back of my head. It just splashed blood out immediately."

In Ottawa, an external affairs department spokesman said there is little point in taking the case to the International Court of Justice because the court cannot enforce any finding it might make.

But the spokesman said the department is prepared to consider helping McTaggart in a claim against the French government.

After McTaggart's Greenpeace II collided with a French naval vessel about a year ago, Ottawa helped him claim for damages against the French government. That case still has not been concluded.

Members of the Canadian Bar Association Thursday listened to the navigator of the protest vessel Greenpeace calmly describe his beating by French sailors and then moved to ask the Canadian government to consider action against France.

Nigel Ingram told the closing session of the CBA annual convention that French sailors who boarded the Greenpeace in international waters in the South Pacific first attacked McTaggart.

"They beat him and then carried him over the rail into a dinghy where they continued to beat him ...andhesuf-eye,"Ingramsaid.

Quakes Jolt Colombia

BOGOTA (AP) — Two violent earthquakes jolted major portions of Colombia on Thursday, damaging churches, homes and office buildings.

Forty persons died in Caracas, Venezuela, in mudslides unrelated to the quake, officials said.

There were no immediate reports of casualties resulting from the quakes, centred near the border with Venezuela, 340 miles east of Bogota.

Mudslides took a heavy toll in a crowded Caracas slum in the same area earlier Thursday.

The unrelated incidents came two days after the worst earthquake in Mexican history.

Frightened residents of this capital city of more than two million people ran into the streets as the tremors upset furniture and shook pictures from walls.

The hillside covered with tin shacks had been softened by heavy rains Wednesday night. Rescue workers estimated that about 50 homes inhabited by poor migrant workers from Venezuela's interior states were swept away or buried.

In Mexico, the official death toll reached 527 Thursday as the Mexican government pumped food, medicine, water and emergency shelters into the broad interior disaster zone rocked earlier this week by the worst quake in the nation's history.

The government interior ministry Thursday released an official casualty figure listing 527 dead and 4,075 wounded.

In the hardest-hit areas, bulldozers crushed still-standing walls and swept tons of debris from wide areas demolished by the quake. In Ciudad Cerdan, Rio Blanco and smaller villages, whole residential sections were being bulldozed.

Electric power was restored in most areas and the government sent water trucks to distribute drinkable water. Health department doctors are vaccinating survivors against typhoid.

In Alaska, a moderate earthquake that measured about 5.0 on the openended Richter scale rocked a wide area Thursday.

The quake occurred 70 miles southeast of Anchorage in Prince William Sound at 5:30 p.m. local time.

The quake was felt strongly in Palmer, Anchorage, Whittier, Valdez and Seward, but no damage was reported.

Indian Working To Save Tongue

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Louis Miranda, 81, a Squamish Indian band chief for 53 years, is helping the St. Thomas Aquinas secondary school fight the rapid disappearance of his language.

In the term beginning next week, the Catholic school is offering the Squamish language as an alternative to French in Grades 8 and 9.

Assisting and supervising the course will be Sister Margaret Sadler, a teaching nun who began her own study three years ago with Miranda.

Vanessa Paull and Nancy Williams, high school graduates from the Mission reserve, will teach the courses.

Randy Bouchard, co-ordinator of the B.C. Indian language project, said most of the credit for the course goes to Miranda, who stepped down as chief in the late 1960s and began concentrating on the salvaging of the Squamish language.

Olympic Organizers Rebuke Boycott Reports

MONTREAL (CP) — The organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympics has every intention of living up to its original plans to provide adequate facilities for the various sports, spokesmen for the committee said Thursday.

The committee members were commenting on reports from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, that the International Swimming Federation (FINA) has decided to boycott the 1976 Games here unless adequate facilities are provided for the sport.

FINA president Harold Henning of the United States said the Montreal committee had not lived up to its promise of 2 9000-seat stadium for swimming events and adequate training facilities for competitors.

The main swim hall will be built adjacent to the main stadium and will have space for 9000 spectators. Half of this number will be accommodated in permanent seats, with the remaining 4500 onlookers housed in either temporary seats or as standees.

Simon St. Pierre, executive vice-president of the committee, said if a pool with a seating capacity of 25,000 was built he had no doubt the swimmers could pack it with spectators during the Games, but said he felt such a facility would fall into ultimate disuse after the Olympics.

The FINA president's statement charged the organizing committee had failed to "fulfil its promises upon which the Olympic Games were allocated to Montreal at the IOC conference in Amsterdam in 1970."

St. Pierre said the committee had "never promised anything further" than the facilities included in its latest plans.

FINA also complained about "the lack of adequate competition pools . . . and insufficient training facilities."

Andre Kaltenbach, director of information for the organizing committee, said the "basic rules of the federations and the IOC" were being respected in the committee's plans for the various installations.

"We have seen nothing in writing concerning his (Henning's) statement," Kaltenbach said, after the Belgrade news report was read to him on the telephone. "But after a quick consultation we feel sure our installations are more than the minimum standard for the Olympics."

Kaltenbach said he felt the FINA statement "left several doors open" and there will be considerable negotiation before the swimming body's decision becomes irrevocable.

Henning demanded that the organizing committee "tell us in writing what the facilities will be so we can have an official picture of the situation."

"So far we have had only vague, verbal expressions from the organizing committee," he said. He said FINA was tired of waiting.

The various sports federations benefit financially from attendance at the various venues, therefore it is to a federation's advantage to have the largest possible seating capacity at its events.

Phillies Bounce Slugging Expos

Greg Luzinski's two-run single in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted Philadelphia Phillies to an 8-7 National League victory over Montreal Expos, Thursday.

The victory moved the Phillies into fifth place in the East past the New York Mets who dropped a 1-0 decision to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Luzinski's single came off reliever Mike Marshall with two out and the bases loaded. Singles by pinch-hitter Mike Anderson and Cesar Tovar and an error by shortstop Larry Lintz on Denny Doyle's grounder had loaded the bases.

The Philadelphia rally spoiled a fine evening for Montreal sluggers Hal Breeden and Bob Bailey. Breeden had four hits, including his 12th and 13th home runs, and Bailey had three hits, including his 23rd homer of the season.

Marshall had replaced starter Steve Renko when he gave up home runs to Montanez and Luzinski in the fifth inning.

At St. Louis, Jose Cruz drove in the only run with a 10th-inning single to give the Cards a 1-0 win over New York Mets.

Lou Brock had opened the inning with a double and was sacrificed to third by Ted Sizemore.

Al Hrabosky relieved St. Louis starter Reggie Cleveland in the 10th inning to score his second victory against one defeat. The two allowed the Mets only four hits while losing-pitcher Tom Seaver gave up nine for only his eighth defeat in 23 decisions.

The victory gave the Cardinals a two-and-a-half game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

McAllister Named Coach Of National Soccer Team

Capt. Bill McAllister of Victoria is the new coach of the Canadian national soccer team.

He received word of his appointment on Thursday, and will take up his new duties immediately although he won't actually be joining the team for three weeks. He will take a leave of absence from his job as director of athletics at Royal Roads.

Capt. McAllister, who has been associated with the national team for some time as assistant coach for Western Canada, is scheduled to leave for Toronto on Sept. 19 to take charge of the Canadian team on its European tour. He succeeds Frank Pike of Toronto.

The Canadian team leaves the next day for Italy, where it opens its tour on Sept. 23 with a match in Naples. Then it's off to Malta for two games, the first against Malta City on Sept. 28 and the second two days later against the Malta national team.

From Malta, the Canadians move to Copenhagen for an Oct. 3 match against the Danish under-23 national team. That is followed on Oct. 7 by a match against the Luxembourg national team, and the tour concludes on Oct. 10 in Belfast against the Northern Ireland national team.

Capt. McAllister said Thursday he plans to take 18 players on the trip, and midfield player Brian Robinson of Victoria will be one of the eight British Columbia players on the youthful Canadian side.

Other West Coast players to be included in the Canadian lineup are goalkeepers Greg Weber and Tony Chursky and Sam Lenarduzzi, Chris Bennett, Neil Ellet, Brian Gant and Buzz Parsons. All are from the Vancouver area.

Bates Rally for Win And Semi-Final Berth

HULL, Que. — Victoria Bate Construction rallied Thursday to score a 4-3 victory over Northwest Territories and earn a berth in the Canadian senior men's softball championship semi-finals.

After early-inning problems the Victoria hitters found the range, pounding out 10 hits including a home run and triple against the darkhorse team that had upset highly-favored Saskatchewan earlier in the week.

Down 3-1 in the seventh, Bates fought back to tie the game when Harvey Stevenson hit a pinch-hit single and Doug Boden followed with a 300-foot home run over the centre-field fence.

The Territories had jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on a two-run homer by Ray Stokely.

Bates' victory left them as the only undefeated team in the Green Division as previously-unbeaten Nova Scotia lost, 4-3, to Saskatchewan. Victoria now leads the division with a 4-0 record while Nova Scotia is second at 4-1 and is also guaranteed of a berth in the semi-finals.

Victoria will play its final game of the round-robin today at 8 a.m. Victoria time. If Bates lose, they would have to play Nova Scotia at 11:30 today to decide first and second places.

The first place teams in each division will meet the second place teams of the opposite division in the semi-finals tonight with the winners meeting in the final game Saturday.

In other games Friday, Yukon scored its first victory of the tournament, 9-6 over New Brunswick and Richmond Hill, Ont., the 1972 world champion, brought its Red Division record to, 4-1, with a 4-0 blanking of St. John's, Newfoundland.

Richmond's victory guaranteed it of at least a second-place finish in the Red Division. Hull, the host city and Red Division leader, has a 4-0 record with one game remaining. If Hull should lose its game to Alberta then a deciding game would be played today to decide the division champion.

The championship game on Saturday will be telecast at 11 a.m. PDT.

Favorites Post Convincing Wins

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Defending champion Marvin (Vinny) Giles and British amateur titleholder Dick Siderowf led a charge of the favorites through the third round of the United States amateur golf championships Thursday.

Giles displayed his best golf of the week on the 6816-yard Inverness Club course, turning in a two-under-par round in a 3-and-2 conquest of Danny Yates.

Siderowf also was happier with his game after trimming Jeff Lindsey of Salem, Ore., 2 and 1 as the field narrowed to 32 for the fourth roundd today.

Kocsis of Royal Oak, Mich., the oldest player in this field, bowed 4 and 2 to Stewart Alexander of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Edwards fired the second-best medal round of the day — a two-under-par 69, however, the young Edmonds, Okla., star still lost to Harold Andrews of Jackson, Mich., who fashioned a 68 for a 1-up victory.

Clemente Widow Files Huge Suit

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — The widow of baseball star Roberto Clemente filed a $15-million suit in federal court Thursday, charging two aviation firms and the United States government with negligence in connection with the death of her husband.

The Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder died last Dec. 31 in an air crash off the coast of Puerto Rico shortly after taking off in a chartered cargo plane on a relief mission to earthquake-shattered Nicaragua.

Four others died in the crash and the widow of another victim filed a suit for $3 million.

Defendants in the suit are the McDonnell-Douglas Corp., manufacturers of the ill-fated DC-7; the Curtiss-Wright Corp., which produced the plane's engines, along with the U.S. government.

Both firms were charged with negligence and breach of warranty. U.S. aviation inspectors were accused of failing to inspect the aircraft properly.

The suit charges that the plane was allowed to take off despite its being overloaded with cargo. It also claims the cargo was not properly secured and the crew was inadequate and unqualified.

Eagles Triumph

Eagles trimmed Castaways 5-0 Thursday in the deciding game of the best-of-seven Industrial Softball League final at Macdonald Park.

Winning pitcher Warner Smith allowed only two hits while loser Corky Jossul was touched for seven.

Eagles also won the league championship.

Island Youths Earn Hockey Scholarships

Mel Bridgman and Tom McEvay of Victoria and John Jordan of Nanaimo will receive their first year's tuition at a B.C. university of their choice.

Bridgman, a graduate of Mount Douglas Secondary School, plans to enter University of Victoria this fall. He started his minor hockey career in Thunder Bay and moved to Victoria in 1969.

The hard-shooting centre, who has played several games for Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League, had ankle surgery last year but still managed to score more than 80 points for Nanaimo Clippers of the B.C. Junior Hockey League.

A graduate of Esquimalt Secondary School, McEvay will enter the University of B.C. to study education. He was a goaltender last season for Esquimalt of the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Jordan, who has played eight years in the Nanaimo minor hockey program, will also enter UBC and will take a science course leading to a degree in oceanography. The husky forward started last season with the clippers, moved to the juvenile Nanaimo Buckaneers, then rejoined the Clippers for the playoffs.

The Molson program, now in its eighth year, has provided about 80 scholarships for B.C. youths. The awards to Bridgman and McEvay are the eighth and ninth presented to Victoria residents.

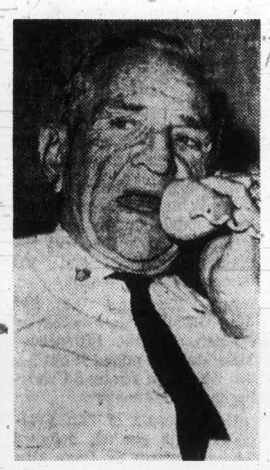
Casey Was Never at a Loss for Words

Baseball's Premier Orator



Stengel
... always talking

By JIM MURRAY
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

The last thing I remember asking Casey Stengel was what he thought of the "designated pinch hitter" rule, adopted this year by the American League.

You might think I wanted a current answer on that but Casey, you see, belongs to no particular time and space or century. The best available information is, he was found in a gingerbread house, that he hadn't been born, he was whittled or that he fell off a cuckoo clock.

It was understandable Casey should have thought I wanted the opinions of John McGraw and Connie Mack and Ban Johnson on the proposed rule change which removes the pitcher from the batter's box and trifles with the sanctity of the grand old game of baseball, because Casey has one foot planted firmly in 1910, the one that's been broken so often it looks like a sack of prunes and 60 years of history is just another inside-the-park homer to Casey.

Casey speaks a language which is popularly believed to be decipherable only to certain forest creatures and Snow White, and it is delivered in a deep-throated rumble which could be used to warn ships in a fog. You have to sort through the jumble of verbs and nouns, if any, to find contents Casey believes truth should come suitably cloaked in debris and have to be searched for. Like, oil comes in mud, doesn't it, and gold has to be sifted in a pan of silt?

So, your witness. Remember the question, simple enough, was "What do you think of the designated pinch hitter rule?"

"Well, you would have to say I was platooned now, wouldn't you? Look it up. McGraw was in those three world series with that team which they say was so powerful it batted with telephone poles and McGraw had to do somethin', didn't he, and he won two out of three and you could look it up I played 75 games and you could say I was platooned because when they had a sidearmer in there McGraw said maybe it will do you some good with the bad leg and all if you was to bat in 75 games instead of 150 and I batted .368 but Hornsby hit .424 which is 50 points more than me and you would have thought I was the best hitter in the world only Hornsby was in it.

"You would have to say I was a platoon manager and some of them fellas commenced to get mad at me but I said, 'My goodness! What the hell's wrong with that lineup, it's got 8 names on it, hasn't it?'

"What? Well, I'm comin' to that. Now, no ones's been able to decide that question. I saw Cronin (Note: president of the American League) at three dinners and the commissioner at three. Well, I had that fella on the Yankees, he became a very good doctor (Note: Bobby Brown, ex-Yankee infielder) but you would have to say at third-base you would want someone who made more house calls, get it? But to tell you the truth he could pinch-hit, that's why we became very successful as I had Johnny Mize, too, I won three of our pennants platooning and I had Brown, he became a terrific doctor but the only man I ever see who could tag high and get somebody out was Bourdreau (Note: Lou, Cleveland shortstop) as normally you can't get anybody out that way unless the umpire blows it but put him at third and you would have to say it was a good thing he could hit but Mize, now he could go up there and pinch-hit even you had to wake him up to do it and he would hit the ball so hard you would think the only way they might get him out was if it would blow up on the bat but they couldn't play him in the seats.

"Well, this man said, My goodness! How are you going to sell all those hot dogs now that the pitcher isn't in it as everybody got hungry when the pitcher was up because they've seen how he can hardly hold the bat upright without someone helps him get it to his shoulder but you see how some pitchers can be athaletes as you will notice Joe Wood played 79-80 games alongside Speaker in right field without needing an ambulance and Ruffing they used to hit for the rightfielder some times and, of course, Ruth was a pitcher if he didn't have to save baseball.

"It's a sad thing to ask some of them players to play."

So, Casey was in favor of the new rule?

"Well, Chicago is the centre of the world in railroading and Cleveland draws 3 million people and you would have to say Lemons (Note: pitcher Bob Lemon) was the best pitcher I ever saw and you would wonder where the hell three million people would go without they set fire to the town and maybe it's like going to the movies and the guy never gets the girl and when I started in this game all I wanted was enough money to go to dentistry school as my father said there would always be people in the world who needed their teeth pulled."

Well, then, it would be fair to say Casey wanted to give the rule a try?

"That's what I said," said Casey.

Best bets for salmon fishermen the up-coming holiday weekend are Pedder Bay to Sooke for a mixed bag of pinks, jacksprings and the occasional big chinook; Cowichan Bay for big chinooks; and the tyee salmon grounds in Alberni Inlet, Campbell River and Gold River.

However, salmon fishing has been quite spotty.

The current cool weather should improve fishing for trout and bass in the lakes and trout in the rivers, although rivers will still be very low.

Competitive fishermen can fish in the Esquimalt Anglers' Association three-day derby Saturday, Sunday and Monday with weigh-ins, by water, at Fleming Beach Ramp and boundaries from Trial Island to Race Rocks. There are $250 worth of merchandise prizes for big fish along with hidden-weight draws, plus a consolation draw prize of a boat, motor and trailer.

Tyee anglers can fish Alberni Inlet Saturday, Sunday and Monday in the Alberni Times derby for a top prize of $5,000 cash.

At Sooke this week, seiners averaged 70 sockeye, 50 coho and 1000 pinks a day, so the big pink run is still building up in Juan de Fuca Strait. This should be the peak weekend for sports anglers off Otter Point, Secretary Island, Beechey Head, Pedder Bay, William Head and, perhaps, the Victoria and Oak Bay waterfronts.

There has been good fishing this week for pinks right in Becher Bay and around Church Rock and Frazer Island and out as far as three miles with three pounds of weight.

Big chinooks are still being taken in Sooke area waters, although most anglers are out after limits of pinks and jacks.

Cowichan Bay was hot Thursday morning with a good number of big chinooks weighed in, but the bite came on late, around 9 a.m., and the crack-of-dawn fishermen got skunked. Best fishing was along Skinner Bluffs, and trollers had most of the action.

Mid-Island waters are slow, but producing some fish, especially around Nanaimo. Qualicum Bay has had a couple of tyee, which could indicate arrival of the big chinooks.

Alberni Inlet is rated fair for tyee, and Campbell River is at its peak. Gold River anglers are wondering what has happened to their tyee run, although they have had some fair action. This is the first big cycle year since the pulp mill opened, and return of the tyee salmon is being watched carefully.

Anglers are having good action taking jack chinooks in the Gold River.

Bates Beach coho fishing has slowed down considerably, although there are still spurts of action about a mile and a half from shore.

Anglers from various Island points are becoming more and more disturbed about lack of kelp in the usual kelp beds this year and it may be time for the federal fisheries to initiate a crash research program.

It is the kelp which protects the needlefish, which the coho and chinooks chase. That is why there is often good salmon fishing along the kelp beds.

But, with no kelp to speak of this year, anglers are finding the fish in mid-channel and very deep, usually feeding on shrimp.

What is happening to the kelp? Is it pollution? Is there some mystery disease killing it off? Now is the time for research, before it is too late.

The grouse-shooting season opens Saturday, and the current wet weather means the logging gates should be open. Western Forest Industries, which closed its gates last weekend because of fire hazard, will have them open this weekend. So will Pacific Logging.

Victoria Fish and Game Archers met with success at last weekend's opening for archery season for buck deer.

Dwayne Nicholl got a spike buck in Bonanza Lake country.

Dwayne hung his camouflage jacket on a tree around Bonanza Lake, and it was so well camouflaged he couldn't find it. It had an eight-power monocular in the pocket, and he will pay a reward for its return.

Victoria Gun Club shooter Wayne Watson was high overall at the Qualicum-Victoria inter club skeet shoot at Qualicum last Sunday. Gail Harding of Qualicum won the women's events, the junior 12 gauge winner was Doug Harding and sub-junior winner, 20 gauge, was Grey Harding, to make it quite a score for the Harding family. Qualicum took the inter-club team skeet trophy from Victoria Gun Club with a score of 229 against Victoria's 227, out of a possible 250.

Lynch, Baker To Play

Jim Lynch and Norm Baker will be back in the lineup when Victoria McDonalds face Richmond Roadrunners in the fourth game of the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse playoffs tonight in Richmond.

Lynch, who has an ankle injury, and Baker, who had the flu, missed the third game of the playoffs Wednesday, when Victoria dropped a 17-9 decision to the defending champions.

Marlboro Centre Signs with Toros

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association announced Thursday the signing of 18-year-old Wayne Dillon to a three-year contract.

Dillon, a centre, is the fourth player who would have been eligible to return to Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series this season who has signed a WHA contract.

Mark and Marty Howe will play with their father, former NHL great Gordie, for Houston Aeros and Tom Edur has signed with Cleveland Crusaders.

Financial terms of the contract were not announced, although Dillon said its third year is renegotiable.

He said the Toros agreed to allow him to continue living at home and attend high school classes.

Dillon, who turned 18 May 25, led the Memorial Cup-champion Marlboros in scoring last winter with 47 goals and 60 assists for 107 points.

Kiwi Clinches Dinghy Crown

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — If Clive Robert doesn't feel like sailing today, he doesn't have to. The Aukland, N.Z., sailor clinched first place in the OK Dinghy standings at the Canadian Olympic Training Regatta with his fourth consecutive win Thursday.

He now has an insurmountable lead ahead of Toni Rose of Victoria and Rob Woodbury of Brockville, Ont.

Either Rose or Woodbury could finish in second spot, depending on their showing in the sixth race today.

Lee Davis of Birmingham, Mich., made it two wins in a row Thursday to move into first place in the Fireball standings.

John Winsor of North Vancouver dropped to second while Joan Filsinger of Stone Harbor, N.J., the best-placed woman in the regatta, was third.

Island Clubs Well Represented In Canada-U.S. Cricket Match

Four Vancouver Islanders will be in the 12-man lineup when Canada plays the United States in a three-day test cricket match that starts Saturday at Beacon Hill Park.

Three of the players, Dave Clark of Castaways, Kortwright Richards of Oak Bay and Tim Lord of Cowichan were named to the starting XI and Jim Wenman of Incogs was chosen the 12th man.

Clark the only one of the four who has played for Canada before, is an outstanding batsman, while Richards, Lord and Wenman are all bowlers.

The test is the first in the 178-year history (53 matches) of the International Series to be played in British Columbia and only the third in Western Canada — Calgary and Winnipeg each hosted one test.

The first match in the series was played in 1844 between the Toronto Cricket Club and St. George's Cricket Club of New York and the series is now the oldest existing cricket competition between two nations.

In the 10 matches played since the modern version began in 1963, Canada has won four times, the U.S. three times and there have been three draws.

The U.S. team will consisst of Basil Brown (captain), Oscar Durity, Anil Lashkari, Hasib Khan, Ron Ramlall (all of Southern California), Alan Amin, Wes Hurde, B. D. Ramnanan (all of Chicago), J. G. Manzoor (St. Louis), Bob Thompson (New York) and Aslim Khan (Seattle).

In an effort to avoid a draw this year's match has been extended from two to three days. Saturday's play runs from 1:30 to 6:30 p.m., Sunday's from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Monday's play runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Hampshire Wins Title

LONDON (Reuter) — Hampshire carried off the English country cricket championship title Thursday for the second time in their history at Bournemouth.

When they reached 225 for five against Gloucestershire they had taken 10 points from the match. This gave them a total of 237 points and they still have a game to play.

If Surrey wins its game against Northamptonshire, it will have 211 points which would leave it to get 26 points from its final game — a figure never achieved by any county under the present points scoring system.

Hampshire won the title for the first time in 1961 on the same Bournemouth ground.

Early Bird Sweeps

Victoria Resident Draws Alouettes

WINNIPEG (CP) — A cross-section of Canadians were drawn Thursday in the $400,000 Manitoba Golden Sweepstakes' early bird draw based on the 1973 Grey Cup football championship.

First prize of $2,500 for the draw will go to the person whose ticket is matched with the winning team in the Canadian Football League final to be played Nov. 25 in Toronto.

Ticket holders and their teams:

British Columbia Lions — R. D. Stirling of Vancouver; Calgary Stampeders — Horace Eavis of Cornerbrook, Nfld.; Edmonton Eskimos — J. Hamel of Flin Flon, Man.; Hamilton Tiger-Cats — Clara MacDonald of Port Coquitlam; Montreal Alouettes — A. F. Chambers of Victoria; Ottawa Rough Riders — Grant Dixon of Angus, Ont.; Saskatchewan Roughriders — R. Early Knockout Predicted When Foreman Defends Title

TOKYO (AP)—World heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman slumped back in a chair in a sweltering gym Thursday and commented on his handlers' predictions he would knock out challenger Joe (King) Roman within two rounds.

"I hope they're right," he said.

The 15-round title fight starts at 8:30 p.m. PDT tonight but the 24-year-old Foreman went through a brisk workout, sparing two rounds and working on the punching bags to develop his speed.

Roman, 25, had tapered off to long walks. Both fighters planned only loosening up exercises today on the eve of Foreman's first defence of the title he won by knocking out Joe Frazier in the second round Jan. 22 in Kingston, Jamaica.

Local boxing experts have stressed Roman's speed, and his camp's announced strategy is to keep out of range of Foreman's knockout punch until the champion is worn out.

"If he's fast, good for him," said Foreman. "I really don't know what he's got going for him. I'll find out. . . ."

Of Foreman's 38 victoris, 35 have been by knockout, including 11 first round knockouts.

"The sooner you get it over with, the less chance you have of getting hit," said Foreman's trainer, Dick Sadler.

He predicted chances of an early knockout are good if Roman comes out fighting.

The managers have agreed on waiving the Japan Boxing Commissions' rule that three knockdowns in one round amount to a knockout. An eight-count for each knockdown will be mandatory and the count for a knockdown will continue after the bell except in the last round. Scoring will be by five-point must system, with the winner of each round receiving five points and the loser four or less.

King
. . . defending champ

Nastase Nearly Eliminated

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Defending-champion Ilie Nastase of Romania stood on the brink of defeat in the second round of the United States Open tennis championships Thursday when his match was suspended by darkness..

The flamboyant, long-haired favorite was only four points away from being eliminated by unseeded Andrew Pattison, a 24-year-old Rhodesian, when officials called the match.

The score stood 7-6, 6-2, 3-6, 4-6, 3-5.

Defending champion Billie Jean King and other members of the women's big four had about as much trouble with heat and humidity as with opponents in their first-round matches.

King, the 29-year-old defending champion, defeated Peggy Michel of Pacific Palisades, Calif., 6-2, 6-3.

King broke service on Michel, a last-minute qualifier, twice in the first set and twice in the second.

Michel relied on a good first serve to stay in the match, but King's variety of shots and experience overwhelmed the young Californian.

Althought King, the No. 1 seed going for her fourth title, was in command throughout the match, she entertained the centre court crowd with her usual animation and pep talks when she netted a ball or sent one out.

More of the oppressive heat and humidity that hung out the West Side Tennis Club prevailed again but the women had somewhat of a break. Their matches are best-of-three-set affairs, while the men's are best-of-five.

Margaret Court of Australia, seeded second, whipped Pat Pretorius of South Africa, 6-1, 6-2, while third-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., defeated Rani Fox of North Miami Beach, Fla., 6-3, 6-3.

Evonne Goolagong of Australia zipped past Barbara Anne Downs of Alamo, Calif., 6-1, 6-0.

All four matches were played in early afternoon on the third day of near-record heat for New York. Thursday's high temperature was announced as 98 degrees.

All eight women seeds made it into the second round, Kerry Melville of Australia struggling to a three-set tiebreaker victory and the others advancing easily.

Ann Kiyomura of San Mateo, Calif., came within an eyelash, but the fifth-seeded Miss Melville pulled it out 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 with a strong 5-1 showing in the tie-breaker.

Rosie Casals of San Francisco, sixth seeded, defeated Kathy Latham of Palo Alto, Calif., 6-3, 6-3; Margaret Wade of Britain, No. 7 seed, beat Glynis Coles of Britain, 6-4, 7-6; and Olga Morozova of Russia trimmed Sue Stap of Deerfield, Ill., 6-3, 6-0.

Taiwan Rejects All Allegations

NEW YORK (AP) — A Taiwan official says Tainan City, the winner of the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., did not break Little League rules in its victory sweep last weekend.

Consin Shah, Nationalist China's consul-general in New York, flatly denied accusations that the Taiwan representative had violated age eligibility, district size and practice time regulations.

Several team managers and Little League volunteer administrators lodged the complaints after Tainan City became the third consecutive Taiwan team to capture the world championship, and Little League president Peter McGovern ordered an investigation Monday.

Shah denied allegations that Taiwanese officials forged birth certificates of players to meet the age limit of 10-to-12 years.

"The census form is the most important document a person has in Taiwan," he said.

PROVINCIAL COURT

Cases involving impaired driving occupied much of the time in Provincial Court Thursday, with two disposed of in Judge William Ostler's court and five in the traffic court of Judge Harold Alder.

In the first court Dennis Wayne Weir, 23, of No. 2-2943 Bridge, was fined $300. He was checked by police at about 2:30 a.m. Thursday on Fernwood Road, when seen to drive his car ("to park it properly," he said) after being warned not to drive by the officers.

Patrick William Crothers, 17, of Nanaimo, was fined $350 after being seen driving erratically and through a red traffic light at about 4:45 a.m. Thursday on Gorge.

In traffic court Daniel William Rafter, 18, of 720 Miller, was fined $350 and prohibited from driving. The offence of impaired driving occurred at about 4:15 a.m. Aug. 10 on Falaise Crescent in Saanich.

John Philip Hughes, 18, of 2448 Sutton, was also fined $350 and prohibited from driving. He had been checked at about 9:40 p.m. July 29 on McKenzie Avenue.

Richard Douglas Lee, 22, of 2003 Quadra, fined $350 and prohibited from driving, had been checked on July 30 in the 2100 Block Oak Bay Avenue.

Bohdan John Peter Kostiuk, 44, of 2832 Colquitz, was fined $300. He had been checked July 15 on Gorge Road.

Sentence was suspended by Ostler, with a six-month probation period, for Lorne Alan McNeil, 425 Wilson, who had been charged with assault causing bodily harm.

Madeline Kozub, 1024 Pandora, was also given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for three months, after pleading guilty earlier to a charge of common assault.

In the only case involving drugs to the disposed of, Ostler fined Brian Nelson Offer, 22 of 520 Agnes in Saanich, $200 after the accused pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

Following a trial Thursday afternoon, Judge Alder found Alvin Terrance Magnus, 32, of 777 Meaford Avenue, guilty of impaired driving and fined him $350. Magnus was also fined $200 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

The charge dated back to May 4 when, at about 4:45 a.m., Magnus was driving his car north on Trans-Canada Highway at Grange Road. Court was told his car crossed the centre line, sideswiped a southbound vehicle, then kept on.

The other driver chased the accused and caught up with him 2½ miles away, when police were called.

Watch For Children

School's in again as of next Tuesday, and Inspector Brooke Douglass of Victoria city police traffic department asks all car drivers to be on the alert for small pedestrians.

"There'll be many small children off to school, and home again, for the first time. They may not be sure of traffic regulations, and excited about their new life," said Douglass.

"Consequently, I urge all drivers to be on the alert that day and on school days thereafter. Emphasis is placed on the first day because it is possible that the schools' own safety patrols may not yet be organized and on duty."

Injured Man Still 'Fair'

William McQuillin, 2730 Hamilton, remained in fair condition Thursday at Royal Jubilee Hospital where he is being treated for facial cuts and a spinal injury received in a car collision on Sooke Road Sunday in which John O'Connor, 57, of 3620 Park Drive, Metchosin, was killed.

Youths on Trial

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (UPI) — Fifteen Basque youths are on trial before a military court on charges of attacking and insulting the armed forces and using violence in an unauthorized demonstration.

Mayor Hits Skeptics

Bird
... cold water

Provincial governments aren't really interested in solving municipal problems because they may as a result lose control over municipalities. Fredericton Mayor J. W. Bird, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said Thursday.

In a press release from Fredericton, Bird charged that at their recent meeting in Charlottetown, municipal affairs ministers of the 10 provinces took a skeptical approach toward the forthcoming conference in Edmonton of municipal, provincial and federal government representatives.

"With two full months to go before the Edmonton conference, the 10 ministers appear to already be throwing cold water on the prospects for its success, even before it starts," Bird said.

"They seem to have agreed on a skeptical approach to the conference and such negative attitudes are put forward at the risk of scuttling a mature three-way examination of the national implications of municipal problems, and of inhibiting a responsible and potentially valuable three-way approach to solving them," he said.

He warned that unless the provinces seize the opportunity for intimate feedback about municipal problems and their prospective solutions, offered by the tri-level conference, they (the provinces) "can only be judged to have assumed defensive positions."

Bird also stressed that all meetings at the Edmonton conference should be open to the press, contrary to meetings last week of the 10 municipal affairs ministers.

"Only then can the citizens of Canada judge the value of tri-level consultation and measure the quality of the contributions made to it by their federal, provincial and municipal governmetns," he said.

"Let the provincial governments set aside any concern about losing control of their municipalities, as their constitutional authority is clearly acknowledged."

U.S. Sets Record for Prices

Farm Products Soar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Signalling more potential food price increases, the U.S. agriculture department reported Thursday that the average price of all raw farm products soared a record 20 per cent to a new all-time high in the month ended Aug. 15.

Farm prices also topped 100 per cent of parity for the first time in 21 years, the department said.

The monthly farm price report was the first major economic indicator to measure the impact of the July 18 end to wholesale and retail ceilings on all foods except beef. It showed prices 62 per cent above a year earlier.

Rising prices for beef cattle, wheat, hogs and corn led the increases along with higher prices for soybeans, eggs and cotton. They were only partly offset by lower prices for tomatoes, potatoes and apples.

Daily market price reports since Aug. 15 have shown some net decline for livestock and other commodities. But the mid-month report showed a resumption to that point of the year-long farm price spiral which was broken only by a brief decline in April and by last month's price index which was unchanged from June.

Fire Risk Brings VW Recall

TORONTO (CP) — Volkswagen Canada Ltd. says 3,900 Karmann Ghia vehicles owned by Canadians are involved in a recall of units built between August, 1967, and April, 1972.

The recall is to have a trunk wall sealed to prevent gasoline vapors from entering the passenger compartment. The work is being done without cost to owners.

In letters to go out to Karmann Ghia owners Friday Volkswagen warned: "Until the repair work is completed do not use any open flame or cigarette lighter inside the car under any circumstances."

Planes Passed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration ruled Thursday that Delta Airlines' 14 DC9s were airworthy despite an investigation that disclosed pilots had been having trouble with navigation devices on a DC9 that crashed at Boston's Logan Airport last month. The FAA said it had no evidence "to warrant any imposition of operational restrictions."

Cologne Ford Plant Struck

BONN (Reuter) — Police quelled violent clashes Thursday between militant strikers and workers demanding an end to a wildcat strike which closed the Cologne plant of West Germany's Ford Motor Co. Monday.

Police said they had arrested eight people.

Attention Telephone Customers

OVERTIME DISPUTE CAUSES SERVICE DELAYS

B.C. Telephone advises its customers that some installation and repair services are being temporarily curtailed due to an unprecedented demand for service and a continuing ban on overtime work by the Federation of Telephone Workers. Although B.C. Tel has increased its outside work force by more than 300 employees so far this year, the union's actions have hindered our efforts to meet customer demands.

Every effort is being made to return service to normal as quickly as possible.

In the meantime, the company must give priority to installations of new residential and business telephones, transfer of telephones for people who are moving and out-of-service repairs.

Services such as installation of extension telephones, changes in party line status, relocation of telephones and addition of optional equipment are being reduced to a minimum for the time being.

B.C. Tel greatly regrets the inconvenience caused its customers and asks for their co-operation during this difficult period.

Mao Retains Post: Committee Chosen

By CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Chinese Communist party central committee re-elected Mao Tse-Tung as chairman Thursday and established beneath his imposing figure a new leadership group dominated by military men and Mao's old guard followers.

Premier Chou En-Lai retained his position as the power behind Mao, being re-elected as one of five vice chairmen of the committee, Mao has been its chairman for almost 40 years.

The new central committee, meeting in its first plenary session, also elected a political bureau (politburo) consisting of 21 full members and four alternates. This is the group that runs the day-to-day affairs of the party.

The central committee meeting followed the 10th National Congress of the Communist party that ended two days ago. The congress elected the 319-member committee, made it clear that China considers the Soviet Union its main threat, and endorsed the government's policy of improving relations with the U.S.

Results of both the congress and the central committee meeting were made known by communiques received here.

The makeup of the politburo indicated that the so-called moderate elements, centered around Chou, definitely had maintained the upper hand over the radical or leftist faction.

This was most apparent in the selection of members of the politburo's standing committee. Of the nine standing committee members, at least seven were clearly identified with the moderate faction that has spearheaded the drive for improving China's relations with the U.S.

Significantly missing from the standing committee, however, were Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, and his reputed nephew, Yao Wen-Yuan. Both were closely linked as the leaders of the radical faction. Although both retained seats in the politburo their influence appeared to have diminished considerably.

The one member of the standing committee previously identified with the leftist group is Chang Chung-Chiao, the top party official in Shanghai. But it generally is believed that he has swung toward the moderate line championed by Chou.

The only real question mark in the standing committee is Wang Hung-Wen, a young newcomer to the politburo and top party ranks. Wang is the third ranking party official in Shanghai after Chang and Yao, who is second. Wang rose to prominence during the cultural revolution and is considered a protege of Chiang.

Stay Given Three Men

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) — Stays of proceedings were entered by the crown Wednesday in the cases of Grant Slater, Peter Ejack and Peter Schneider, all of nearby Taylor, B.C. charged with possession of stolen property from the Pacific Petroleum plant at Taylor.

They were among 16 persons charged in the spring in connection with a major theft of petroleum products from the plant between July 1, 1971 and Dec. 31, 1972.

Four men have been placed on two-year suspended sentences on charges in the case.

Chickenfeed

Farmers Charge Gouging

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Although feed manufacturers are just about out of supplies, the majority of chicken and dairy farmers have 10 days' to two weeks' food supply on hand, according to Wally Taylor, manager of Cowichan Co-operative Services of Duncan and the Nanaimo Farmers' Co-operative.

The major problem facing all in the industry is "price gouging" on the part of the Canadian Wheat Board which has increased the price of wheat in British Columbia from $3.67 a bushel to $5.62, and the price of barley from $2.40 to $3, he said.

If chicken farmers have to pay these prices, predicted Taylor the price of eggs will increase by 15 to 17 cents a dozen.

Taylor made his statements Thursday, as Roy Head, spokesman for striking railwaymen in Victoria, said there is no way his union will stand idly by and see animals starve and farmers wiped out.

Head said two boxcars of feed were located and released in Victoria Wednesday, and if more were located they would also be released.

Taylor said he has asked the provincial agriculture department to declare Vancouver Island a disaster area, partly because of the lack of feed after five weeks of interrupted deliveries but mostly because of the sudden price increases.

He said he wants the province to subsidize feed manufacturers so they can continue to retail feed at current prices with the government absorbing any losses.

"Regardless of what happens now with regard to the rail strike, we are facing a month of instability and high costs," said Taylor.

And, Taylor added, he couldn't see railwaymen going back to work under federal government terms of settlement.

"You can't expect men to settle for an increase that doesn't even cover the cost of living increases," he said. "And you can't expect men to work for the kind of money these men are offered.

Here Mrs. Darlyne Gage and daughter Pamela, 9, of 3064 Jenner, examine school supplies to make sure they match items on list.

Moral Issues Outlined At Pesticides Probe

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

The moral issues involved in the use of pesticides and herbicides Thursday were placed before a Royal Commission hearing in Victoria.

The emotional presentation of Wendy Bender, who said she has a pest-free Saanich garden without the use of poisons, was in striking contrast to the clinical presentations from the B.C. department of agriculture and B.C. Hydro, which preceded hers, and the interpretations of the new federal pesticide act which will continue today.

Moral Values

There appears to be, she said, a total unconcern with moral values on the part of the scientific fraternity.

"I feel that the men who make use of and sell these chemicals feel most comfortable at the level of discussing formulas. When morality and things of that nature are discussed," she added, "they retire behind their formulas."

Scientists, she said, seem to regard mankind and all the creatures of the earth as experimental animals.

Grows Own

"I don't mean to say all scientists are evil men with vested interests, but I do say I don't wish to be experimented with," she said.

Mrs. Bender said she will not buy any B.C. produce preferring to grow her own vegetables or to buy from friends who also grow vegetables without using poisons.

Since the use of pesticides, she said, walking into an Okanagan apricot orchard is more like walking into a crypt.

Woman Won't Buy B.C. Produce

"There are no birds or insects there," she said, "There are just a lot of apricots."

Mrs. Bender said the most immoral thing she has read recently is a growers' booklet on vegetable production put out by the B.C. department of agriculture.

"If I were a vegetable grower I would believe there was no alternative in raising vegetables but to spray everything numerous times and kill everything except what I was growing with very few moral considerations in terms of what these things do."

Stop Pests

Mrs. Bender suggested education for consumers on sprays used by growers, and education for growers on the results of the sprays.

She also suggested more research and more use of alternatives such as growing plants like garlic alongside brussels sprouts to stop pests, or importation of natural predators.

There is no consideration given to the state of the soil, and she maintained that healthy plants grown in good soil are in large part disease and pest-resistant.

The department of agriculture brief said that pesticides are essential in agriculture today.

"If their use were denied, producers in this province would be placed at a serious economic disadvantage in relation to growers in other provinces and other countries.

"An inevitable decline in B.C. food production would mean more imports and ultimately higher food costs to the consumer," said the brief.

The brief added: "The department of agriculture in B.C. always recommends the minimum use of pesticides and gives strong support to all available non-chemical methods of control."

Food Seized

The Canadian food supply is being monitored continuously for pesticide residue through five regional laboratories of the health protection branch — one is located in Vancouver, the brief pointed out.

New Programs

The brief pointed to various experiments and new programs of pest control without the use of pesticides.

For example it has now been demonstrated that the sterile male technique is effective and practical against the codling moth, but the launching of a valley-wide program in the Okanagan has been delayed because of the costs involved.

Only Few

Losses caused by weeds are a major concern of industry and the average economic loss to weeds has been reported in Canada to exceed $1,000 per farm, the brief stated.

Hand work is not usually as effective as herbicides and the high cost of labor is also very expensive.

Biological controls of weeds by means of insect introductions are desirable but expensive and have been effective in only a few cases, the department reported. It costs about $80,000 just to introduce a given insect for biological control purposes.

Regular Basis

The department recommended that education institutions in the province be encouraged to provide pest control courses on a regular basis for lay people as well as those wishing to become certified as pesticide applicators or dispensers.

It also recommended that the federal agriculture department be asked to substantially increase research on pest control methods in B.C. with special emphasis on regional ecological variations. The B.C. Hydro brief was presented by environmental superintendent Robin Garner.

Mislead Public

He said that there is a risk that sensational reporting by the media of unproven or inaccurate statements as to the ecological effects of specific chemicals will confuse and mislead public opinion to the point where a consensus is reached that any and all chemical controls are too dangerous to be tolerated.

"A large industry is a suitable and obvious target for people who wish to discredit the use of pesticides," said Gardner.

Blow Up

"We have to admit that in the past there have been misuses or poor application techniques of herbicides by B.C. Hydro personnel.

"The press tend to blow up the picture out of all perspective. They are too willing to latch onto unsubstantiated information and portray it as fact.

"B.C. Hydro and the department of highways are probably the two biggest industrial users and we are obviously going to be open to a great deal of criticism."

Skipper Says No Go This Season

Ill-Starred Ship on Lip of Passage

B.C.'s "floating trade fair," the ferro-cement sailboat Arctic Dogwood which has been bedevilled by accidents and seasick passengers, won't be attempting a Northwest Passage crossing until the fall of 1974.

Its 51-year-old skipper, Bob Masters of Victoria, returned home this week from Alaska where the boat will hibernate for the winter. He could not be reached for comment.

Next year, the government-backed Dogwood will make another try at becoming the first sailboat ever to negotiate the Passage west to east, destination Halifax.

"Because of time lost through seasickness and accident, it had to be wintered earlier than usual," said George Baker of the B.C. trade department which put up $25,000 toward the not-so-historic maiden voyage.

Baker, who is handling publicity for the boat, described it as a "floating trade fair" because the crossing was expected to promote B.C. industry.

"The idea was that with the completion of the voyage, the Dogwood would have been a household word."

Baker said Thursday that Masters was searching for other sources of money, including the federal government.

Asked why the B.C. government donated $25,000 of taxpayers' money to a project that might flounder because of a lack of sufficient cash from other sources, Baker had no comment.

In its voyage up the West Coast, the Dogwood was plagued by bad luck. On the leg from Alert Bay, Master's wife Audrey, a trained nurse, and photographer Eric Rankin fell seasick.

Masters then decided to put into Homer, Alaska. Because of engine trouble, he asked the U.S. Coast Guard's Ironwood for help in berthing.

The Dogwood's rigging was damaged and a three-foot gash torn in her bow above the waterline when the Ironwood tried to nudge her alongside.

Then, ice sealed off Point Barrow and the Dogwood had to be abandoned for the winter and most of next summer until the point is once again ice-free.

Commuter Line May Reach Sooke

Hiking Route Studied

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Colonist Reporter

A rapid-transit commuter line for Greater Victoria, operating on a little-used CNR right-of-way as far as the Sooke area, is being considered by the B.C. government.

This would involve the purchase by the government of a section of the right-of-way, probably to Rocky Point.

"We're seriously thinking of putting it in, yes, but not in the immediate future," Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said Thursday.

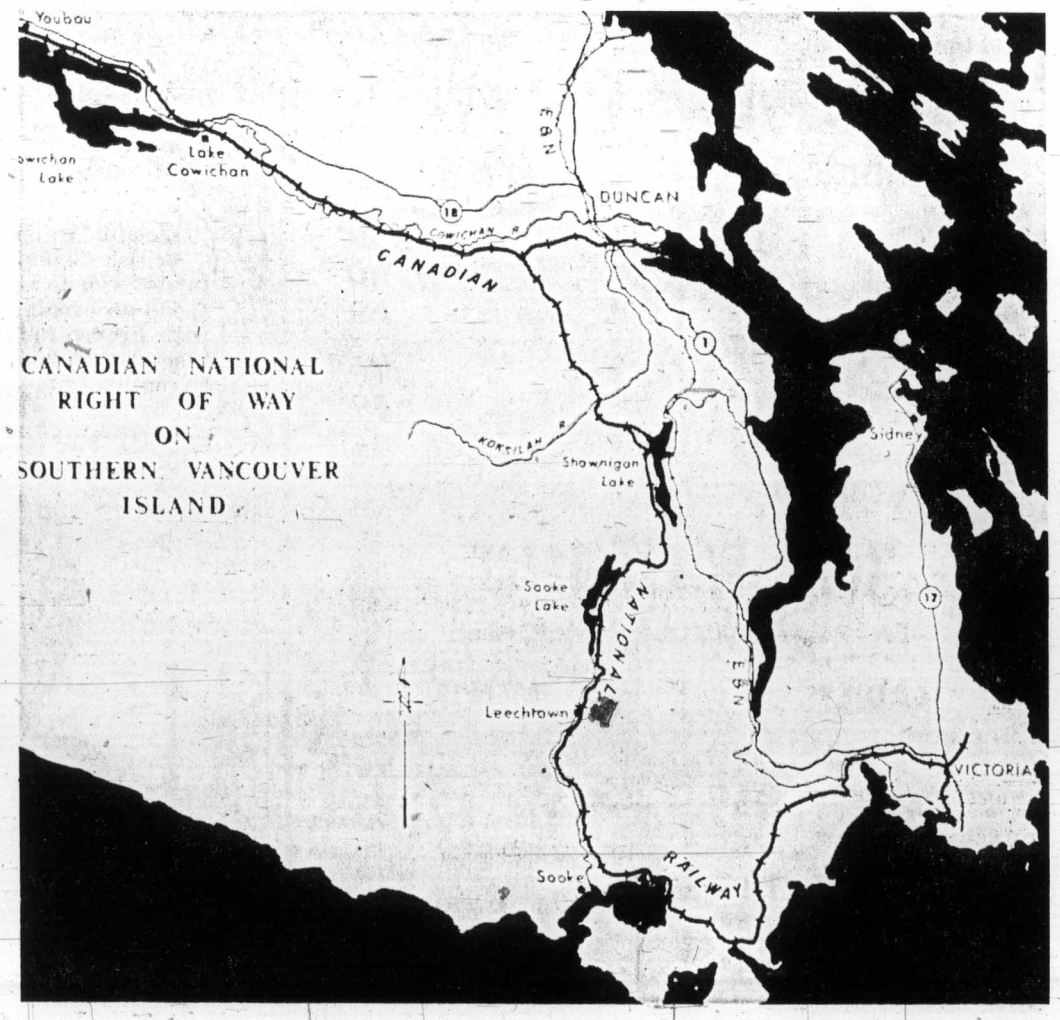
"I think there will be a need for it in a few years."

Meanwhile, Recreation Minister Jack Radford announced Thursday his department is studying with CNR the possibility of converting the right-cycling route.

It has dispatched three young British Columbians to hike the entire route between now and October to prepare a report. They are David Preston of Vancouver, director of the B.C. Cycling Association, Don Tarasoff of Cobble Hill and John Mikitka of Victoria.

"To a generation of people conscious of pollution and of physical and mental health ... the 82-mile railway corridor provides an unequalled opportunity for the development of a provincially significant non-motorized parkway," Radford said in a news release.

Accessible from Greater Victoria, Sooke, Shawnigan Lake, Duncan, Lake Cowichan and Youbou, the route, which varies in width from 60 to 120 feet, could be developed as a year-round facility for individuals, families and groups, he continued.



Radford noted that Victoria, with a bicycle population of 100,000, has no cycle paths.

Along the CNR route, he said, cyclists from Greater Victoria could have access to such recreational areas as Thetis Lake Park, Fort Rodd Hill National Historic Park, Witty's Beach and East Sooke regional parks, and Matheson Lake and Devil's Potholes provincial parks.

A spokesman for the department said Thursday that if the plan is found to be feasible, the tracks and ties would have to be torn out and a hard surface put in place.

B.C. Tories Name Aide

The two-man B.C. Conservative party caucus has appointed a Winnipeg man as research assistant, at a salary of $1,011 a month to be paid by the provincial government. He is Ken MacLeod, 29, who most recently worked as executive assistant to the leader of the Manitoba Conservative party, Sidney Spivak.

Indian Protest Gets in Groove

By GORDON HAMILTON
Colonist Duncan Bureau

As the Cowichan Indian fishing protest entered its second day Thursday, life at the Indian camp had settled into the routine of hard work.

The leaders were finished talking to the reporters who swarmed over the site Wednesday, and were busy organizing the cutting of stakes for the weir and the handling of daily campsite chores.

A barricade, which closed the only access road to the camp on Wednesday, had been moved aside and there is free access to the camp, but only Indians are coming and going.

"There has been no need to keep it up," said demonstration leader Gordon Elliott. "Nobody has been coming down here bothering us, but if we have to, then we'll put it up again."

Except for a TV crew, which buzzed the site in an airplane and caused a momentary stir, the camp was quiet and orderly. Women tended pots of food on the fire, and from the tangle of alder and willow which form a backdrop to the camp came the sound of axes and machetes cutting into the trees.

The actual construction of the weir seemed to be a problem for the demonstrators. It is 40 years since a weir was placed across the Cowichan River. Work was supposed to begin on it Wednesday morning. Then Elliott said they would start Thursday. Now it is Friday, with Saturday being the expected completion date.

In spite of the quiet and peaceful atmosphere of the camp, however, the determination and silent anger which prompted the Indians to defy existing fishing regulations still hangs in the air. The expected influx of Indians from throughout B.C. has not materialized, but in ones and twos the Indians are coming to the site, bedrolls and utensils tucked under their arms. Elliott said Wednesday that supporters had arrived from other coast communities and Interior salmon fishing villages.

The protest was organized by Elliott, who is 29, articulate, and a former university student, to protest what he feels are restrictive regulations concerning native fishing rights.

He said the demonstrators are prepared to remain at their river campsite and harvest fish collectively in the traditional, but illegal way, until they can effect a change in the Fisheries Act.

"We've been oppressed to the point we decided it's time to do something about it," he said.

Ferries Make Extra Trips

Scores of cars were still waiting after the last scheduled ferry departed, an hour late, around 11 p.m.

B.C. Ferries personnel said the queue began about 2:30 p.m. and at one point traffic was backed up more than a mile.

Empty House Burned Out

A fire which broke out at 12:30 a.m. today gutted a small wooden house at 334 Prospect Lake Road, Saanich.

The house, recently purchased by new owners whose identity was not immediately known, was empty at the time.

Bread Wholesale Price Jumps

McDonald's Bakery Ltd. in a bid to recover spiralling ingredient costs will raise the wholesale price of bread by 10 per cent on Sunday.

John McDonald, president and general manage of the Victoria bakery, said Thursday Vancouver Island retailers will pay 2½ cents more for a 16-ounce loaf of bread and 3¾ cents more for a 24-ounce loaf — increases of 9.3 per cnet and 10 per cent respectively.

The increase, says McDonald, will recover higher costs of ingredients, including a 50 per cent increase in the price of flour.

In Vancouver, President David Devine of McGavin Toastmaster, said wholesale bread prices will go up at all McGavin owned bakeries on Sunday.

In announcing the increase McDonald said the bakery paid 50 per cent more for its September supply of flour than for its August supply because of price increases which followed a change in the federal wheat subsidy in July.

McDonald
. . . higher costs

In addition to higher flour prices, increased costs for shortening, packaging, gasoline and distribution all contributed to the need for higher prices at the wholesale level, he said.

McDonald's, like most large bakery firms, buys flour one month in advance. Its September supply was purchased at the Aug. 1 price and it will pay the Sept. 1 price for its October supply.

However, the cost of flour continues to rise and tooday's price is up more than 100 per cent over the price paid prior to July 19, when the change in the wheat subsidy was announced McDonald said.

"A further increase will be necessary in October to reflect the higher cost the bakery expects to pay for its October flour supply," McDonald said.

And McDonald said he understands the increase in bread prices at the wholesale level will be reflected by similar percentage increases at the retail level.

The increase will mean bread will be as much as six cents a loaf higher at the retail level Ruth Lotzkar, president of the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Consumers' Association said in Vancouver.

She said the increase is "outrageous" and "particularly upsetting because this is a basic food."

Ms. Lotzkar said the association recognizes that the bakery industry is faced with higher costs.

"It may be that the government will have to be asked to subsidize flour prices . . . perhaps at the expense of the export market," she said.

Homesick Saigon Waif Adopted by 18 'Parents'

Pamela Slyth, an employee of the Victoria Public Library came across an ad for the Foster Parents Plan of Canada.

She remarked to a friend and fellow employee that she thought the Foster Parents Plan an agency worthy of support.

Her friend agreed and the two of them posted a notice on the library bulletin board asking any of their fellow employees interested in sponsoring a foster child to sign up.

Eighteen of them did and the group is now sponsoring a nine-year-old Vietnamese girl named Huynh Thi Mai Huong.

Huong was born in Cambodia but now lives in Saigon with her mother and four sisters.

Her father is dead.

The family lives in the back part of a house. Their living area measures 12 feet by 12 feet and has brick walls and a cement floor.

The family's possessions include one plastic table and chair set, one table and four chairs, one wooden bed, one cupboard, one foodsafe, one old plank table and an old bicycle.

Some months ago, Huong was entrusted to a relative as her mother could not afford to support all the children.

But Huong was so homesick she had to be taken home.

For $17 a month, the group of library employees will provide Huong's family with a monthly cash grant, goods such as vitamins, blankets, towels, soap and medical and dental care.

As the aim of the plan is to give the family the tools to become independent and self-supporting, education is stressed.

All foster children (and their brothers and sisters if possible) attend school.

Vocational training courses are available to foster children, their brothers and sisters and in some cases, their parents.

The Foster Parents Plan is a non-profit organization and is currently working in 10 countries in South America and Asia.

More than 50,000 children are being aided by individuals, groups, such as the group of library employees and families in Canada, thee U.S. and Australia.

For information on the plan, write to Foster Parents Plan of Canada, 153 St. Clair Ave. West, Toronto 7, Ont.

Feed Costs Bring High Egg Prices

Higher egg prices are expected following a $30-a-ton increase in the ccost of feed this week.

Spokesmen for the Surrey Co-operative Association said Wednesday egg production costs will go up 17 cents a dozen.

The B.C. Egg Marketing Board has said increased production costs will be passed on to the consumer.

This should mean a 17-cent-a-dozen increase in the price of eggs, although Ed Morgan, secretary manager of the board said other cost variables might result in a lower price hike.

Morgan said prices in B.C. change every Friday but that he doubts there will be any change by today.

The next time prices could go up would be next Friday, he said.

The feed price increase is due to higher grain prices resulting from the rail strike.

Domestic grain shipments which normally sell at $121 a ton were blocked by the strike forcing feed producers to buy export grain at $190 a ton.

The Canadian Wheat Board turned down a proposal by the Surrey Co-operative Association to allow buyers to buy export grain and replace it with contract grain when the strike was over.

Canadian Wheat Board chief commissioner G. N. Vogel said the refusal was made because it would have meant further delays in providing grain to ships which could have resulted in demurrage penalties of $2,000 to more than $4,000 a day for ships without strike clauses in their contracts.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: In recent years, a growing number of psychiatrists have come to share the Gay Liberation view that homosexuality is not an illness, but an alternative life style.

At the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, Dr. Judd Marmor, an expert in sexuality at the University of Southern California, argued that "homosexuality in itself is no more a sign of mental disturbance than is adherence to a vegetarian diet, sexual abstinence, or other patterns of behavior not shared by the majority of society.

"It is quite clear," said Marmor, "that from an objective biological viewpoint, there is nothing sick or unnatural about homosexual object choice. Those who insist that there is are merely reflecting the social disapproval that they have been brought up to feel for such behavior in our culture."

I doubt I will ever read this in your column but it would be interesting to get your response to it. — Gay.

Dear G.: Dr. Judd Marmor is an extremely competent, highly respected psychiatrist. He is also a friend of mine. I have heard him lecture and read his material. We are in agreement in many areas, but not this one.

Many good psychiatrists support Marmor's position. At least as many (probably more) disagree with him. Dr. Harold Voth of Menninger's, Dr. Zigmond Lebensohn of Sibley Memorial in Washington, D.C., and Dr. Sara Charles, University of Illinois, come to mind as three who do not.

Thousands of homosexuals have written to me and asked where they can go to get themselves "straightened around." They consider themselves twisted or they would not be asking for help.

Occasionally I hear from homosexuals who are at peace with themselves, but they are few and far between.

Consumer Watchdogs Eye Food Increases

The Consumers' Association of Canada has pledged to do more in the fight against food price increases.

Following a meeting of the national executive with Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, the CAC has decided to expand its role of monitoring the market and acting as a clearing house for local consumer problems specifically in the area of food prices.

The expanded role will require local consumers' associations to keep tabs on food prices in a number of food stores in their areas and to designate one of their members to receive reports of price increases from consumers.

Andrews
. . . needs date

size, weight or grade, name of manufacturer and date of purchase. Consumers are also encouraged to report the place of purchase.

Mrs. Andrews says it is imperative that consumers reporting a price increase report the date the item was purchased.

"We have to have exact dates because the Food Prices Review Board is trying to find the reasons for food price increases and knowledge of dates will help us see a pattern in increases if one exists," she said.

The executive of the Victoria branch will also be active in watching local food prices for increases.

Mrs. Andrews says she expects to split the task among members.

"We'll have one person watch milk prices, another bread prices, and so on."

The branch will send consumers' reports to the national office daily where they will be forwarded to the Food Prices Review Board to assist in the identification of areas that require investigation by the board.

Upholds School's Motto

She's No Loner

Janice Matthews, a member of the 1973 graduating class of St. Joseph's school of nursing, has won the school's "non nobis solum" (not for ourselves alone) award.

The award is given to the student who is considered to have participated most fully in all aspects of the school program and who most exemplifies the best traditions of nursing.

The award is decided by the student body, faculty and house mothers, and is a presentation from the Sisters of Saint Ann.

Miss Matthews, a native of Nanaimo, says the name of the award (not for ourselves alone) is the motto of the school.

"The award is given to the best all-round student," she said. "Academic marks are considered too."

Miss Matthews participated fully in the school's extra-curricular activities as a member of the choir and the Nurses' Christian Fellowship and as an organizer of talent shows, hootenanys and teas.

Exhibition Attracts Biggest Crowds Yet

More than 11,000 people have viewed 36 paintings from the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts exhibited at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

Gallery administrator Allen Houghton said the exhibit has been the biggest success ever in terms of attendance.

$130 Million Aids Doomed Children

Lewis Clown Who Cried

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Scratch the hard, biting humor of Jerry Lewis and you will find a soft, compassionate man who has done more to help doomed children than any entertainer on earth.

Lewis has raised $130 million to fight muscular dystrophy in the last 23 years in a one-man crusade that all but dwarfs his accomplishments as a comedian.

Were it not for his ability to evoke laughs, Lewis would be an emotional ruin. His unceasing campaign to raise funds for the muscular dystrophy association brings him into close association with hundreds of the 140,000 children suffering from the fatal disease.

Jerry calls them his kids. The father of five sons himself, Lewis and the stricken kids share an instant rapport. Their courage and the comedian's love for them is at once beautiful and heartbreaking.

The clown who cried is a cliche. But it is an accurate portrait of Jerry Lewis and the children with muscular dystrophy.

Sunday and Monday, for an unrelenting 20 hours, Jerry will star in his annual telethon to raise funds for the muscular dystrophy association.

"We raised $10 million during last year's telethon," Jerry said, poring over an out-sized briefcase brimming with data for the telethon. "It was great, 103 per cent of the pledges were realized. That meant people sent in more money than they pledged.

"I've been working on this year's telethon for seven months now. And I hope we can top last year's total."

The 1973 telethon will emanate from Las Vegas, Nev., for the first time. In the past, Jerry has travelled to New York for the mammoth, most successful of all telethons.

"There aren't enough star names in New York anymore," he explained. "And I don't want to do the show from Hollywood because of the attitudes here, you know the glamor and tinsel attitude. Not for my kids.

"We're flying in stars from Hollywood on jets donated for the cause, including a big plane from Howard Hughes. And there will be 1,000 volunteers manning the telephones to accept calls for pledges."

An enormous amount of the overhead will be assumed by Lewis who has spent a personal fortune on the campaign year after year. He has signed 153 stations to carry the telethon across the country, offering his services free for appearances at other times of the year when necessary.

The excitement of the telethon, the jokes and laughs, are the superficial manifestations of Lewis' work for the association which had only $700 in its coffers when Lewis joined the fight 23 years ago.

Through his efforts the association disbursed $17 million for research in 1972 alone.

Jerry writes some 15 letters a week to parents of his kids who succumb to muscular dystrophy. In turn, children suffering from the disease write him regularly, making small contributions to the fight. These missives in childish scrawl move the comedian to tears and an agony of frustration.

"Any child can wake up one day with muscular dystrophy," he said. "None of them lives to be 20 years old. We're going to beat this disease. Our researchers tell me the end may be only two years away if we can keep bringing in the money to continue our program.

"But the horrible part of it is that even during the 20 hours of the telethon to help them, 75 of my kids will die of muscular dystrophy."

Haiti Palace Blazes Again

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — For the second time in two months, a mysterious fire broke out in Haiti's presidential palace. Flames and smoke poured from the rear of the palace about 4 p.m. B.C. time and the emergency siren sounded on the palace roof.

Italian Films Shown Free

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Days of Italian Cinema started here Wednesday with a free public screening in an open-air Venetian plaza before a crowd of 5,000. The 10-day event takes the place of the Venice Film Festival, ended by slow bureaucracy and political rivalries.

The world's oldest film festival remained without a director and staff when parliament did not pass a revision of its charter. A controversy between those who favor a more commercial festival and those who prefer a highbrow event has bogged down the charter bill.

Carnies on Rampage

BETHANY, Mo. (UPI) — Carnival workers rampaged through rock concert fans Wednesday night, firing guns into the air and beating up young people until a force of 40 state and area law officers moved to end the disturbance early Thursday.

Four of the workers were arrested on charges ranging from carrying concealed weapons, to assault and inciting a riot. A local resident was also arrested, and several handguns, shotguns and rities were confiscated. At least two persons were hospitalized with injuries and many others suffered bruises and scrapes, and Sheriff Melvin Smith said, "We were very fortunate we got nobody killed."

French Slap Ban on Love Affairs of Jesus

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Danish film maker Jens Joergen Thorsen said Wednesday it would take more than a papal condemnation, an official French ban and a possible loss of Danish government support to thwart his plans to make a film on The Love Affairs of Jesus Christ.

The national French Cinema Centre decided Tuesday to ban the shooting of the movie on location in southern France beginning next month.

"The whole thing is ridiculous, with condemnations from a lot of people who haven't even read my script," Thorsen said.

"If these reactions truly reflect today's Christian message then my film will come closer to the truth than I originally imagined."

But while Thorsen refused to concede defeat, there were signs that the financial basis of his project might be crumbling.

The Danish government film institute, which guaranteed a 600,000 kroner ($100,000) bank loan for the movie, said it would have to reconsider its backing in the light of the French ban.

Leif Feilberg, institute director, said a change of filming location also would change the preconditions on which the credit guarantee was based.

"We have to protect our own financial interests and will demand documentation by Thorsen that the budget remains tenable," Feilberg said, indicating that new locations would inevitably increase costs.

Feilberg said a reassessment of the project would have no bearing on moral or artistic project.

Under pressure by conservative politicians and Lutheran and Roman Catholic clergy here, the institute stood firm on the artistically motivated decision to support Torsen's project.

Thorsen was unperturbed. He said there is private capital ready to take over despite a ban against the movie throughout the Roman Catholic world.

No Danish film project ever created a stir comparable to the storm which blew up after Thorsen hinted his movie would include a bank-robbing Jesus riding a motorcycle in the nude and making love to Mary Magdalene in a brothel.

Last Sunday Pope Paul denounced it as "an ignoble and blasphemous outrage," and gasoline bombs were thrown at the Danish ambassador's residence in Rome Tuesday. In a number of other countries, Danish embassies reported a stream of protest letters.

In Copenhagen, the Young Christians held a protest rally, started a leaflet campaign and pledged to sabotage the filming wherever Thorsen went.

Denmark's small Catholic minority joined forces with Lutheran vicars in a country-wide protest movement, and conservatives moved to raise the matter in parliament.

Thorsen said the reactions showed that his film "hits home with those who fear an attack on their Jesus monopoly." He said he planned the film to be a poetic story of human love and of the dream to save the world.

Thorsen now is considering filming it in North Africa or South America.

Stratford Festival

Fonda Film Opener

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Stratford Festival announced Thursday the program for its annual international film festival, which will begin and end with the North American premieres of major feature films.

Organized by the Ontario Film Institute, the eight-day festival will open Sept. 15 with A Doll's House, starring Jane Fonda, a film made in Norway by British director Joseph Losey, who will attend the premiere.

The festival will show 24 motion pictures produced in Europe and North America, including six vintage films made by Douglas Fairbanks.

The closing night will offer the North American premiere of Paper Chase, made by 20th Century-Fox and filmed partly in Toronto. Director James Bridges is expected to attend the screening, along with three of the stars, Timothy Bottoms, Lindsay Wagner and John Houseman.

Actress Dies, Cause Sought

BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP) — Tests were being made Thursday to determine the cause of death of Canadian actress Margaret Bray, 30, who died Wednesday at a Beckley hospital.

Police said her death may have been due to an overdose of a prescribed barbiturate.

County coroner Dr. Ross Daniel said, "the pathologist's autopsy report indicated that's what could have happened, but we won't know anything for sure until the test results are returned in a week or so."

Mrs. Bray starred as the female lead in both West Virginia outdoor historical dramas, Honey in the Rock and Hatfields and McCoys. Her husband, David Bray, directed both shorts.

Her body was cremated Thursday. A funeral home spokesman said relatives were to return Mrs. Bray's remains to her hometown of Vernon.

Dick Still Loves Liz

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Richard Burton swore anew his love for Elizabeth Taylor as he arrived in New York Wednesday with a lawyer friend who said the couple probably can't reconcile their differences.

Burton, Miss Taylor's husband for nine years, tried to put down talk of a divorce by asking, "What divorce?" and proclaiming:

"She's absolutely adorable; I love her."

But his companion, lawyer Aaron Frosch, told reporters: "I don't expect them to be reconciled.'

Frosch said he is not handling the Burton's marriage matters. But Burton is expected to visit the Frosch house on Long Island while on a two-week respite from movie-making in Rome.

Miss Taylor is in Rome acting in another film. Burton said he was able to leave because his director, Vittorio DeSica, is ill.

A spokesman for the Burtons announced in New York July 31 that the couple will seek a divorce in Switzerland, the country of their legal residence.

M.V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

The Four O'Clock or Marvel of Peru is a flower not very widely grown these days, which is rather a pity, for it is just as attractive now as when our grandmothers grew it in their cottage gardens. The plants are exceptionally easy to grow, from large seeds sown outdoors in the spring, and the big, satin-petalled flowers bloom in at least seven different colors, all sweetly fragrant, and all from a 25-cent packet of seeds.

It doesn't seem to be generally known, though, that the roots of the Four O'Clock can be lifted and stored in much the same manner as dahlia tubers are kept from year to year. Buried in a box of peat moss, sawdust or sand and stored in a cool corner of the basement, the fleshy roots can be planted out again next spring and will give large plants and earlier flowers than those grown from seed.

While I have never tried it myself, I have been told that the roots of the Scarlet Runner Bean can be dug up and stored in the same way, although I can't see there is any particular advantage to be gained in this case.

It is a frustrating experience to have a splendid crop of apples or pears on your backyard trees, only to have one of our autumnal gales come roaring in, littering the ground with bruised and battered fruit.

In earlier days, the only protection we could give our fruit was to spread a good thick layer of straw under the tree to cushion the fall. This is still worthwhile where a good supply of straw is readily available, but the modern method is to spray the tree with a hormone chemical which causes the fruit to stick to the branches like grim death!

The garden shops stock this chemical under such trade names as Fruitone, Kling-Tite, Hormex, Stop-Drop and the like, and it is widely used by commercial holly growers to keep the berries from falling off the harvested branches. For fruit, it is best applied about a week before the normal fruit drop is expected, and the stems of the apples and pears must be thoroughly wetted. It is no good applying a spray falling like the gentle dew of heaven —the tree must have a real drenching.

When the hormone spray is used, you must be sure to pick the fruit at the normal harvest time, or it may become overripe on the tree. Some kinds, like Winesap and McIntosh, may be allowed to stay on until nicely ~~colored~~, by Delicious tends to turn soft inside if left on the tree 10 days or so after the normal harvest date.

My neighbor Ernie has been trying his hand at growing a row of Kohl Rabi in his vegetable plot this year, and he is inordinately proud of his plants. Flourishing great things, they are, with swollen, bulb-like stems almost the size of a soccer ball.

I'm afraid Ernie is going to have a bit of a shock when he tries eating them, for such overgrown specimens are utterly useless for the table. Picked small, when not much bigger than an orange, Kohl Rabi is a delicious vegetable, with a sweet, nutty flavor far superior to turnips, but if you let them get much larger, the roots become hard, hot and woody, more fitted for cattle feed than for human consumption.

Art Buchwald

Some time ago the American boss of a friend of mine told the friend, "I admire you people who live abroad. You don't take pills. In America we're always taking a pill for something or other. We're becoming a nation of hypochondriacs. But you people don't depend on pills."

My friend agreed. "We can't get any."

Well, it was a good story, but not necessarily true. The majority of Americans coming to Europe are weighted down with every imaginable medication prescribed by family doctors. Each one is a miracle drug in its own right, and I haven't met an American tourist yet who isn't willing to share his medicines with the less fortunate people who live abroad.

Just recently I had occasion to see how many Americans will come to the aid of their fellow men. It all started off when I complained at a dinner party of having a sore throat.

"I have just the thing for you," the hostess said. "It's Slipawhizdrene. You take one every two hours."

One of the guests said, "Slipawhizdrene is outdated. My doctor gave me Heventizeall. It doesn't make you as sleepy, and you only have to take two every four hours."

"I left the United States two weeks after you did," another woman said, "and Heventizeall has been superseded by Deviltizeall. I have a bottle at the hotel, and if you stop by I'll give you some."

The only Frenchman at the table said, "Why don't you gargle with aspirin?"

The people at the dinner couldn't have been more shocked if he had said a four-letter word. The Frenchman's American wife was so embarrassed she almost burst into tears.

He looked around helplessly. "But what did I say wrong?"

The husband of the hostess tried to smooth things over. "You see, Rene, in America we have gone beyond aspirin. You French believe in food; we believe in miracle drugs."

"They're all barbarians," muttered one of the Americans.

After the dinner I stopped by the hotel and picked up an envelope of Deviltizeall. I took two before I went to bed. At four in the morning I no longer had my sore throat, but I was violently sick to my stomach. I remained in this state until morning. I had a luncheon date with a Hollywood producer, but I couldn't eat anything.

"I've got just the thing for an upset stomach. It's called Egazzakine. Here, take one now and one at four o'clock."

I took the proffered pill, and in a half-hour my stomach settled. Only now, my eyes started to run, and I began sneezing.

Making my way blindly to the office, I ran into another American friend in front of the Lancaster Hotel. He recognized the symptoms immediately. "You've probably got an allergy. Come upstairs and I'll give you something for it."

We went up to his room, and he took out a leather case filled with various bottles.

"Let's see," he said, reading from a slip of paper. "The yellow-and-black ones are for jaundice, the green-and-blue ones are for pneumonia, the white-and-red ones are for rheumatism, the pink-and-beige ones are for heart trouble — oh, yes, the brown-and-purple are for allergies. Here, take two now and two at four o'clock."

"Don't do it," he warned. "That's what you're probably allergic to."

I took the brown-and-purple capsules and went to the office. In about an hour, my tear ducts had dried up and I had stopped sneezing.

I felt perfectly well, except I couldn't move my left arm.

I reported this to my friend at the Lancaster who said, "The doctor warned me it happens sometimes. He gave me something else in case it did. I'll send it over with the bellboy."

The bellboy brought over some orange-and-cerise tablets.

I took two and it wasn't long before I could lift my arm again.

That evening during dinner I discovered I had my sore throat back. But I didn't mention it to a soul.

HOLLYWOOD — New Love Story in the life of Paramount boss Robert Evans' is that gorgeous Victoria Principal. Evans is looking for movie scripts for her but will make sure that Steve McQueen is not the co-star.

Bob once was married to Ali MacGraw until she teamed with McQueen in Getaway. Now McQueen and Ali are married.

Victoria is a good actress. She was exceptionally good with Paul Newman in The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean and is currently in The Naked Apes.

But she has a problem It's youth, believe it or not. "I have lost several good roles because the male stars thought I was too young for them to play opposite me." She said that actresses who are around 30 are getting the good roles. Victoria is 23.

"But there just aren't any parts being written for young girls these days," she says. Things may be different now that she is dating Evans. He hires screenwriters by the truckload.

Michael Caine has no ambitions to be a producer. Now making Drabble, he feels that all of his productions have been handled well. "Most producers," he says, "are still in the office casting birds two days after the picture is finished." But he would like to direct a film with newcomers. "I'd like to find some young unknowns, but there are no big men coming up. They've all got long hair and 18-inch waists. They look rather like my daughter."

Thoughts at large:

The trouble with fiction is that most of the rattling good storytellers don't have anything worth saying, while the novelists with something to say generally don't know how to spin a yarn.

Our modern dismissal of "mere theory" in favor of "solid facts" seems a little silly when we consider that the most solid fact of the 20th century — the conversion of matter into atomic energy — was the consequence of pure thinking by a theorist, Einstein, who never performed a single experiment in his life.

Bruce Lowther

Would you like to be known as a King or Queen of Trivia?

Starting today, this column starts its silliest contest yet — an occasional feature in which I ask a really difficult Bureau of Useless Information question and the first few readers to answer correctly will win nothing but the honor of being named here as a Trivia Titan.

The first whizbanger: Who was Stinky Miller?

I'll add some clues (1) he was a fictional character in show business, (2) he was a one-shot character in a movie and another show-biz branch, (3) Oscar and Mr. Jones were fictional in the same affair.

If you remember Stinky Miller as fondly as I do, send your answer by mail with your name and address to Bruce Lowther, The Daily Colonist, 2621 Douglas, Victoria, B.C.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer — It seems hard to accept but it is a fact that "spunky kid" actor and later TV producer Jackie Cooper was born in 1921. Funny how he stayed in the business and got rich and so many other child stars didn't make it.

Today's question — The 1945 English multi-story movie Dead of Night is a classic among film chillers. Who played the ventriloquist and the two goofy golfers? And name the actor, moderately-famous father of a famous daughter, who "dreamed" it all. Answers Saturday.

Friday Highlights

C-6:00 p.m.—NFL football exhibition, Miami vs. Minnesota. Good teams but it's a sad day—7, 12.

C-9:00—Masterpiece Theatre again repeats The Golden Bowl by Henry James. A good series but it remains a dreadful day—9.

C-10:00—Video Space Notebook is a new experimental-TV series—9.

C-10:30—Why is it a sad and dreadful day? the last of Monty Python's Flying Circus, what else could it be?—2.

C-1:00 a.m.—An NBC rocker with Billy Preston, Steely Dan, Bo Diddley, Gladstone, Maureen McGovern—5.

CABLE 10 — 7:00 p.m., Arts Calendar with Erika Kurth; 7:30, Focus on Children; 8:00, Bullseye Ottawa; 8:30, Jazz Alley and Eddie Condon; 9:00, Health in B.C. reports on food for senior citizens; 9:30, Walter Donald and Contact 1.

Friday Movies

9:30 a.m.—Sleep, My Love (Sleep-inducing 1948 threatened-wife thing), Claudette Colbert, Don Ameche, Bob Cummings. I remember paying good money to see this in a theatre and falling asleep—4.

C-10:30—River Lady (1948 Yvonne de Carloser). What river? She ain't no Amazon but she's almost Volga—13.

12:00 noon—Six Bridges to Cross (pretty bad 1953 Tony Curtis, gangster). Too bad one of the six isn't a drawbridge that's up—13.

C-12:45—Go to Blazes (so-so 1962 English comedy)—6, 8.

C-3:30 p.m.—Ski Fever (1967 snow stuff, mostly a drag), Martin Milner, Tony Sailor. It won't give you a lift—5.

C-3:30—The Chalk Garden (1964 teenager-governess drama, very good), Deborah Kerr, Edith Evans, John and Hayley Mills—7.

● 8:00—Shadow of a Doubt (1943, Hitchcocks,'s favorite Hitchcock), Joseph Cotten, Teresa Wright, Macdonald Carey, Henry Travers, Hume Cronyn, Wallace Ford. The Merry Widow dandy—13.

C-9:00—Ambush Bay (1966 everybody-dies war action, really bad), Hugh O'Brian, James Mitchum, Mickey Rooney. No.—12.

● 11:20—In Which We Serve (1942 Noel Coward war classic). With John Mills, Bernard Miles, many more; see it—12.

11:30—The Spider (1958 horror junk). Fly away—7.

11:50—So Proudly We Hail (1943 Bataan-nurses war propaganda), Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard, scads more. One year younger than In Which We Serve and 1,000 times worse—2.

C-12:00—Journey to the Far Side of the Sun (bearable 1969 sci-fi), Roy Thinnes, Herbert Lom—8.

C-12:00—A Black Veil for Lisa (1969 narcotics-gangsters dubber), John Mills. He makes good films but not always—13.

12:55 a.m.—The Viking Women and the Sea Serpent (1957 garbage). Leif it alone—7.

1:45—Whispering Smith (1948 Alan Ladd western yawn). Even when shouting, Ladd was no taller than Disney's dog Old Yeller—12.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

World Champions

The winners of the Women's Pairs Championship (270 pairs) of the Pacific Southwest Regional Tournament held in San Diego were Mary Jane Farell of Beverly Hills, and Mrs. Frederick M. Ganz of San Francisco.

Today's interesting hand was played in the championship, and few declarers found the successful path. Most declarers were concerned with "finding" the trump queen when they should have been thinking of other things instead.

Vulnerable: Both
Dealer: South

NORTH
♥ K 8 2
♦ J 9 8 6 2

WEST
♥ Q J 10
♦ K Q 7 5
♣ Q 7 3

EAST
♥ 9 6 5 4

SOUTH
♠ K J 9 7 3 2
♥ A 7 3
♦ A 10
♣ A 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of hearts.

North's raise to two spades gave South sufficient reason to gamble on the spade game without any further investigation. South's wealth of control cards rated to provide a reasonable play for game opposite almost any decent raise.

Most Wests chose to lead the heart queen rather than the diamond king because of the solid three-card sequence, Q-J-10. This was a wise choice, since the lead of the diamond king would simplify declarer's problems immeasurably.

Many declarers were concerned about how to play the trumps. Seeing one loser in each of the side suits, it seemed imperative that the trump suit be picked up without loss. The routine plan lost the hand quickly as declarer won the heart ace and led a trump to dummy. A trump back to declarer's hand revealed the bad news and the hand was down one.

It takes careful play to make the hand. After winning the heart ace, instead of concentrating on trumps, declarer must establish the diamond suit. Declarer plays only one trump — the king — and then plays ace and 10 of diamonds.

West wins the queen and continues the heart suit. Declarer wins the king in dummy and plays the diamond jack and discards the heart loser — a loser-on-loser play. West wins the diamond king but the hand is now safe.

Declarer ruffs the third heart (a club lead would make no difference) and leads a trump to dummy's ace. (Had trumps divided declarer would make an over-trick.) West's high trump is left at large while declarer's losing club is discarded on dummy's established diamond.

Trump queens are a thorn in everyone's side. However, as this hand demonstrates, finding them is not enough. It's sometimes better to forget them completely.

The Royal Alexandra

Get yourself a piece of Oak Bay Before it's all gone

This could be your last chance to own an apartment by the ocean, right on Beach Drive and within walking distance of the world famous Oak Bay Marina and Restaurant, the Windsor Park rose gardens and just about anything else you could want at the Oak Bay Village.

Yes, there will be resales on Oak Bay. But one thing is almost certain . . . You'll pay a lot more for it than a new one of your choice at the ROYAL ALEXANDRA.

So, it stands to reason, if you're remotely interested in having a place in Oak Bay it would be worth your while to come see the ROYAL ALEXANDRA.

1-Bedroom Apartments From $31,000

2-Bedroom Apartments From $32,800

Almost every extra luxury has been provided . . . like a sauna, a therapeutic pool, exercise pavilion, hobby room, recreation lounge, underground parking with owner operated electronically controlled gates.

Fly Fishing on Some Rivers

Cool Weather Lures Trout

Cooler and wet weather has started up the trout and bass fishing in lakes and rivers.

It is too early to tell just how active any particular lake has been, but all should start producing now.

Jacksprings are now entering the rivers and may be taken on lures and cutthroats will be following the salmon into the river mouths.

Anglers should note that this year some rivers which would normally be closed to all fishing during the salmon spawning runs will be open this year for fly fishing only.

They include the Little Qualicum, Big Qualicum and Sooke Rivers, which will be fly fishing only from Sept. 1 to Nov. 30.

Campbell River between Tyee Spit and Elk Falls is closed to all salmon angling from Aug. 15 to Nov. 15; Goldstream and its tributaries closed to salmon fishing from Oct. 1 to Nov. 30; Nanaimo River from May 1 to Sept. 30; Nitinat River closed to salmon fishing from Sept. 1 to Oct. 20; Puntledge River from May 1 to Nov. 15; and Sproat River, from the lake downstream to 300 yards below the bridge, from June 15 to Nov. 15.

Threats Against Agnew's Daughter Denied

RIO DE JANEIRO — Brazilian police denied there had been threats against the life of Susan Agnew, daughter of vice-president Spiro Agnew, as reported from Washington. They said she had left hurriedly because of Agnew family problems.

The Washington reports said Miss Agnew, 26, left Brazil suddenly last week after nearly seven months of voluntary medical work on the hospital ship Hope, a floating medical centre anchored in the northeastern city of Maceio, since last February.

Local press sources said they had received an order from federal police saying it was prohibited to publish news of the interview in which she said she left Brazil because of a kidnap threat.

Railmen To Defy Job-Return Act

—CP

150 Storm Parliament

● Trail smelter closing down. Page 9.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave second reading Thursday night to proposed legislation that would order the national rail strike ended although enraged railwaymen say they will ignore the bill if approved in its present form.

Eight hours earlier the striking non-operating railway workers drove home their discontent with an 1,800-man march that led to one of the most violent eruptions in parliamentary history.

The bill proposes minimum wage increases and compulsory arbitration for the 56,000 non-ops, 20,000 shopcraft tradesmen and 14,500 trainmen. The tradesmen have been poised to strike but the bill forbids this.

In detail, the bill proposes wage increases for the clerks, porters and other non-operating members of 30-cents-an-hour retroactive to Jan. 1, this year, a five-per-cent raise on Jan. 1, 1974, and a further raise of three per cent on July 1, 1974. Average hourly wages would increase to about $4.15 an hour from about $3.54 an hour after the settlement was fully in effect.

For the shopcraft and trainmen, the proposed wage increases are 8¼ per cent on Jan. 1, 1973, 6½ per cent Jan. 1, 1974 and 1½ per cent on July 1, 1974. Average hourly wage for the first union now is $4.05 and for the latter, $4.25.

Approval of the bill in principal carried by a vote of 192-to-24. The New Democrats, who earlier failed to bring the bill more into line with union demands, voted against it.

The Commons adjourned for the night shortly after the vote, but union leaders in a nearby hotel continued to plot ways to counter the proposed legislation.

Railmen's Smith

Scuffles Not Planned

No demonstrations like the one by about 150 young militants who stormed the Centre Block breaking windows and scuffling with police were planned. But other forms of resistance were.

Chief union negotiator Richard Smith announced that strike leaders would urge their members to ignore the law if passed unchanged, thus running the risk of a two-year prison term for disobeying a federal statute.

Theoretically this applies to all violators, but in practice only the leaders would be charged.

To accede to the proposed bill "would betray the 56,000 workers whose interests we were elected to protect," Smith said.

"We will not send them back to work for the meagre wage increases proposed in the bill."

(In Victoria Roy Head, strikers' spokesman, said the general feeling is that after striking for a month there is no way the men will go back and accept terms that were previously rejected.

("We'll go along with the general feeling across Canada that there will be no return to work until such times as our leaders order us back.

("And even if our leaders told us to go back, I don't think the men would go unless there is a better settlement than Munro is offering."

(Head said he felt the Ottawa demonstration was a "stupid thing," but he questioned whether all the men involved were actually strikers.)

Making a Mistake

Labor Minister John Munro, who has played a major role through a month of rotating strikes and a week of national walkouts, said he thought the union leadership was making a mistake with its threat not to obey the back-to-work order.

There would be a change in attitude, he said, when the workers realized that an 8.5-per-cent increase in wages proposed for the first year of a two-year agreement was strictly a base figure.

Although union leaders agree they would support the bill if it was "sufficiently improved," there were indications that many of their members would not. Many who marched on the Hill said they wanted no part in a legislative settlement — that the end result always favored the railways.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis, who had attempted to cool the demonstrations with assurances that his party would work toward a generous settlement, urged the Commons to throw out the bill and replace it with one in line with union demands.

His suggested new bill, which would have given the workers a wage increase of 21.6 per cent in a two-year contract, meshed with a proposal by conciliation board union nominee John Weldon of Montreal in July. But he was ruled out of order by Speaker

Union Officers Fired, Harmac Shut

Firing of eight employees including four union officers — and the suspension of another worker touched off strikes by about 1,500 MacMillan Bloedel employees at two of the company's Island facilities Thursday.

Eleven hundred men at the Harmac pulp mill south of Nanaimo decided Thursday night to stay off the job until eight workers who were fired earlier in the day are reinstated.

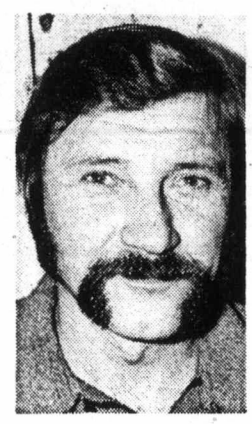
And at Port Alberni, the Ash, Cous and Taylor logging operations were closed down by a strike by about 400 men following the suspension of a worker who left his job to attend a workers' meeting.

Among the eight fired at the Harmac mill Thursday were the president, the chief negotiator and two other executive members of Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada. It was the latest move in a continuing dispute which has twice closed the mill in the past two weeks.

General manager of the mill, Gordon Woram, said the men were fired for taking part in "illegal picket lines" on Aug. 20 and 27 which forced shutdowns of the mill, eight miles south of Nanaimo.

Including among the men fired by the mill were Stan Shewaga, chief negotiator for the PPWC; Bud Hehr, president of Local 8: Bruce Tunstall, first vice-president of the local; and Ken Manzer, a member of the local's executive.

The other four men were employees of the mill's steam plant, including one whose suspension on Monday caused workers to walk off the job. The company responded Tuesday by shutting down the mill. It has been closed since then.



Shawaga
... out of job

In a prepared statement, Woram said that despite the union's contention that picket lines at the plant had been set up merely to inform employees of a B.C. Labor Relations Board hearing, they resulted in shutdowns and were therefore violations of the last collective agreement between the company and the union.

That agreement expired earlier this year and the PPWC has refused to accept terms agreed to earlier by other pulp industry unions.

'We'll Steal To Eat'

OTTAWA (CP) — "We'll steal food if we have to."

The sweating bleary-eyed Montreal railway worker, his shirt stained with the blood of a fellow demonstrator, stood with his friends in the Centre Block rotunda of the parliament buildings Thursday.

With no strike pay, how long could he hold out? How would he eat? He paused for a moment and then shrugged.

"They have big grocery stores in Montreal ... Dominion, Steinbergs and that.

"They always have lots of extra food. You just go in and take what you need. You gotta get it somehow. If 5,000 workers go in, they can't stop you.

"... Yeah, I guess that's a food riot. But you gotta eat ... and they can't stop you."

NEW DEPUTY UNTRIED

King Shuffle Affects Six

A 31-year-old labor lawyer with little practical experience in union-management problems was appointed Thursday as deputy minister of labor, at a salary of $39,000.

James Matkin, a professor of labor law at UBC for the past three years, will replace former deputy Bill Sands. Sands is marked for "a very important assignment within the department," according to Labor Minister Bill King.

Despite the demotion in status, Sands' salary will go up to $33,000, a raise of $5,500 from the old deputy minister pay level.

In another appointment King named James Kinnaird, vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, the new associate deputy in charge of industrial relations at a $33,000 salary.

Other top civil servants involved in the department shuffle are: John Melville, one-time assistant deputy, who becomes director of manpower training and development at a salary not yet fixed; James Edgett, another former assistant deputy, who becomes director of legislation.

Surprise news was still Matkin's appointment. The Alberta native attended Harvard Law School and studied under Archibald Cox, currently the special Watergate prosecutor.

In 1972 he acted as special assistant to Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz in the mediation of the longshoremen's dispute. During his research at UBC, he was involved in a critical examination of the now-defunct Mediation Commission.

King said his new deputy

Coffee Held For Prices

LONDON (AP) — The world's major coffee producers voted Thursday to withhold 10 per cent of their 1973-74 exports in order to keep prices up.

The 33 countries that voted produce 90 per cent of the world's exportable coffee.

Same Stranded Sub Rescued Here in '70

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The company which built Pisces III, the mini-submersible now lying at the bottom of the Atlantic, said Thursday this is the second time the vessel has had to be rescued from the ocean floor.

International Hydrodynamics said Pisces III was stranded in 600 feet of water for 5½ hours during a dive Nov. 12, 1970, near Vancouver.

The company had never previously disclosed the earlier incident.

"No problems were encountered in the rescue operation and since it was not considered a newsworthy event there were no releases made to the press," the company said in a prepared statment.

Messervey, general manager of Vickers oceanic division, is on board the Vickers Volager which is heading the rescue of crewmen from Pisces III.

Referring to the 1970 incident, International Hydrodynamics said the vessel was on its first dive following maintenance work.

"Shortly after launching and during the descent the pilot noticed that the submersible was becoming tail heavy and within 30 minutes was at the bottom at a depth of 600 feet," said the company in its statement.

"It was apparent that the tail sphere had become flooded and it later proved that the reason was that a vent plug had been removed and not replaced during maintenance.

"Within two hours the Canadian Navy submersible SDL-1 was launched and attached a line to Pisces — which was thereupon winched up back to the surface."

Rescuers Race Clock

CORK, Ireland (AP) — A midget submarine dived near the bed of the gale-whipped Atlantic off Ireland early today to try to locate a sister vessel trapped for two days 1,375 feet below the surface with two Britons aboard.

As the seas mounted steadily, rescuers raced against the clock to save the crew of the stricken mini-sub Pisces III.

The rescue sub, Pisces II, was launched from its mother ship, The Vickers Voyager. A spokesman for the operation said Pisces II had established a sonar contact with the trapped submarine but had not located its exact position.

The two Britons have

Bomb Shatters London Street

LONDON (AP) — A bomb exploded outside a luxury hotel early Friday. Security chiefs said they feared Irish guerrillas were stepping up their terror campaign in Britain.

Police had eight minutes' warning that the bomb had been left outside the Cumberland Hotel, and there were no casualties.

The hotel is at Marble Arch, close to the fashionable Oxford Street shopping area, and through the years has been popular with Canadian visitors.

A bomb warning was telephoned to the Press Association, the British domestic news agency, by a man who said police should cordon off a 600-yard area around the arch.

"You've got plenty of time," he added.

The bomb, which had been planted in a pile of rubbish on a side street, shattered dozens of windows and wrecked three autos when it went off.

Several hundred guests, many in night clothes, were ushered from the hotel to others nearby while police searched unsuccessfully for further bombs. Then they

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Tourists departed by the hundreds, health officials dispensed free vaccine and trucks sprayed disinfectant along streets and piazzas Thursday amid fears of a cholera outbreak.

Nixon Plans Tape Appeal

The president's decision on his next step in the historic legal battle came 24 hours after John Sirica, chief U.S. district court judge, ordered Nixon to produce for his private inspection the tapes demanded by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Love's Labor Took Three Years

Gulf Island Chronicler Miffed at Book Review

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Colonist Reporter

Lady of Culzean, the reviewer said, was written in a rather "stilted" style in the manner of "social writers" of the early 1900s. Gulf Island enthusiasts would be fascinated. Others would find it rather boring.

Three Years

"How can he say people would find it boring?"

Lady of Culzean, his one and only book that cost him $440 to have published in its second printing, might have created more of a stir with a title like What Really Happened on Mayne Island or The Lady in Gumboots.

Lack of Dash

But Borradaile is a simple man and Lady of Culzean is a simple book. The first printing of 250 copies two years ago sold out. The second printing of 500 is selling modestly well.

"I first wrote it for the benefit of my children. But I don't think they even read it. Still, I'm happy when I think that I've achieved something."

Rambling Estate

He managed the estate for more than 22 years and filed away dozens of stories and impressions in his prodigious memory. No notes, no diary, no tape-recorded recollections.

Culzean is gone now. The 35-room mansion at the northern tip of the Island was torn down in 1955.

Fits, Starts

Borradaile, who admits to being a frustrated writer, rebuilt the estate on paper, resurrected the characters, dug up old photographs and letters and produced the Lady of Culzean.

It was written in fits and starts. "I would write a paragrah, go over it, tear it up and then rewrite it. I got spells of inspiration."

Reconstruction of that particular period between 1925 and 1942 was a tortuous task.

First Draft

With the first draft finally completed, he showed it to Vancouver Island historian and newspaper columnist James Nesbitt. Nesbitt encouraged him to get the book into print, and the two men spent three hours hunched over the manuscript.

"That was quite a compliment. But look at this. In one passage I had written 'And I made my way to the upper deck of the ferry . . .' and Nesbitt told me I should change it to 'And I went to the upper deck of the ferry . . .' What do you think?

Researcher

While hardly an experienced writer, Borradaile is a tireless researcher. One of his favorite sources of information is old British parish churches and their records of births, deaths and marriages.

In one dig through the past, for example, he found that his great-grandmother, member of a wealthy Liverpool family, had inherited money accumulated by pirates in the family during the 18th century.

Borradaile has tried his hand at fiction, with little success. He started a book based on characters he had met on Salt Spring Island, and abandoned it after 5,000 painstaking words because he was afraid of offending people.

Proud Moment

One of his proudest moments came when universities all across Canada, alerted by a column written by Nesbitt, wrote asking for copies of Lady of Culzean to include in their historical libraries.

Borradaile claimed to have writer's blood in his veins, and he appears to have fallen victim to the creative itch.

Recently, he paid for the printing of a pamphlet on the great British politician Wilberforce, in which he speaks glowingly of the man who put a stop to the "odious traffic" in slaves. Wilberforce is a long-distant relative of his.

Verbal Fight

He has a fine low-key descriptive style.

It is a book of childish simplicity, on a topic of narrow historical importance, and will likely be forgotten in a few months. But Borradaile is content.

"I don't care if people read it or not," he confesses. "I just wanted to do something."

No Blame Found In Road Death

CHEMAINUS — A coroner's jury at Duncan has ruled that Bradley Clyde Thomas, 25, of Duncan died June 26 as a result of being struck by a car; that his death was unnatural and accidental, and that the deceased was intoxicated and negligent in crossing the highway.

Driver of the car which struck Thomas on the Trans-Canada Highway near the Fullers Lake Arena was Mervin Rodenbush of Lake Cowichan. No blame was attached to him. The inquest was conducted by Duncan coroner Thomas Lines.

School Bus Information and Schedules for the School Year, 1973/74

School Board Policy – Pupil Transportation

School bus transportation, subject to available seating space, may be provided for:

KINDERGARTEN—Pupils living 2 miles or more from the nearest elementary school in which a Kindergarten class has been established.

A.M.—Such pupils enrolled in the morning sessions will be transported to school on the regular bus runs. However, as the numbers do not warrant a special run at noon, the parents of such pupils may apply for a transportation allowance in lieu.

P.M.—The parents of such pupils enrolled in the afternoon sessions may apply for a transportation allowance in lieu of transportation to the afternoon sessions.

—Pupils will be transported home on regular after school bus runs. The parents of a pupil living in an isolated area 2 miles or more from the elementary school and for whom bus transportation cannot be provided, may apply for a transportation allowance.

GRADE 1-3 —Pupils who live 2 miles or more from the nearest elementary school.

GRADE 4-7 —Pupils who live 2½ miles or more from the nearest elementary school.

GRADE 8-12—students who live 3 or more miles from the nearest secondary school.

Mileage distances are calculated by the most direct route on established roads or walk areas. The distance is computed from the home property acess at the road to the entry at the school site.

SPECIAL CLASSES have been established at Brentwood Elementary School. All pupils who will attend these classes have been advised.

The bus schedules for the morning runs only are as indicated. The afternoon runs in general will be the reverse of the morning runs. The schedules are subject to change if circumstances require. All times given are approximate and subject to adjustment as needed.

BUS PASSES:

School bus service is provided at the discretion of the Board of School Trustees. Those students who are eligible for school bus transportation will be issued bus passes. The passes must be available for inspection by the School Bus Driver at any time. School bus passes may be withdrawn by the Principal of the School attended by the student for conduct or behaviour which is considered by the School Bus Driver as unnecessary, distracting or intentionally annoying.

PARKLAND SCHOOL OPENING

The School Board is pleased to announce that through special contracting procedures the Parkland School has been constructed in the record time of 8 months.

Transportation strikes have held up the delivery of some vital equipment and furniture. The school district is making every effort to locate these and expedite delivery.

Consequently Parkland School will not be in FULL operation on the first day but the following arrangements will give the students the best start possible:

Grade 12—Register 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, September 4
Grade 11—Register 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, September 5
Grade 10—Register 8:30 a.m. Thursday, September 6
Grade 9—Register 8:30 a.m. Friday, September 7

All students will be able to pick up books and assignments. Regular classes will commence in about a week's time, depending on arrival and installation of furniture and equipment. Staff will be on hand each day to assist students when necessary.

If the scheduled delivery time of the sewer pumping station continues to be delayed the above arrangements may have to be postponed. Last minute notice of this will be given by radio and local TV. Parents and students are requested to listen for this announcement.

Olympic Organizers Rebuke Boycott Reports

MONTREAL (CP) — The organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympics has every intention of living up to its original plans to provide adequate facilities for the various sports, spokesmen for the committee said Thursday.

The committee members were commenting on reports from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, that the International Swimming Federation (FINA) has decided to boycott the 1976 Games here unless adequate facilities are provided for the sport.

FINA president Harold Henning of the United states said the Montreal committee had not lived up to its promise of a 9,000-seat stadium for swimming events and adequate training facilities for competitors.

The main swim hall will be built adjacent to the main stadium and will have space for 9000 spectators. Half of this number will be accommodated in permanent seats, with the remaining 4500 onlookers housed in either temporary seats or as standees.

Simon St. Pierre, executive vice-president of the committee, said if a pool with a seating capacity of 25,000 was built he had no doubt the swimmers could pack it with spectators during the Games, but said he felt such a facility would fall into ultimate disuse after the Olympics.

The FINA president's statement charged the organizing committee had failed to "fulfil its promises upon which the Olympic Games were allocated to Montreal at the IOC conference in Amsterdam in 1970."

St. Pierre said the committee had "never promised anything further" than the facilities included in its latest plans.

FINA also complained about "the lack of adequate competition pools . . . and insufficient training facilities."

Andre Kaltenbach, director of information for the organizing committee, said the "basic rules of the federations and the IOC" were being respected in the committee's plans for the various installations.

"We have seen nothing in writing concerning his (Henning's) statement," Kaltenbach said, after the Belgrade news report was read to him on the telephone. "But after a quick consultation we feel sure our installations are more than the minimum standard for the Olympics."

Kaltenbach said he felt the FINA statement "left several doors open" and there will be considerable negotiation before the swimming body's decision becomes irrevocable.

Henning demanded that the organizing committee "tell us in writing what the facilities will be so we can have an official picture of the situation."

"So far we have had only vague, verbal expressions from the organizing committee," he said. He said FINA was tired of waiting.

The various sports federations benefit financially from attendance at the various venues, therefore it is to a federation's advantage to have the largest possible seating capacity at its events.

Phillies Bounce Slugging Expos

Greg Luzinski's two-run single in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted Philadelphia Phillies to an 8-7 National League victory over Montreal Expos, Thursday.

The victory moved the Phillies into fifth place in the East past the New York Mets who dropped a 1-0 decision to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Luzinski's single came off reliever Mike Marshall with two out and the bases loaded. Singles by pinch-hitter Mike Anderson and Cesar Tovar and an error by shortstop Larry Lintz on Denny Doyle's grounder had loaded the bases.

The Philadelphia rally spoiled a fine evening for Montreal sluggers Hal Breeden and Bob Bailey. Breeden had four hits, including his 12th and 13th home runs, and Bailey had three hits, including his 23rd homer of the season.

Marshall had replaced starter Steve Renko when he gave up home runs to Montanez and Luzinski in the fifth inning.

Lou Brock had opened the inning with a double and was sacrificed to third by Ted Sizemore.

Al Hrabosky relieved St. Louis starter Reggie Cleveland in the 10th inning to score his second victory against one defeat. The two allowed the Mets only four hits while losing-pitcher Tom Seaver gave up nine for only his eighth defeat in 23 decisions.

The victory gave the Cardinals a two-and-a-half game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bates Rally for Win And Semi-Final Berth

HULL, Que. — Victoria Bate Construction rallied Thursday to score a 4-3 victory over Northwest Territories and earn a berth in the Canadian senior men's softball championship semi-finals.

After early-inning problems the Victoria hitters found the range, pounding out 10 hits including a home run and triple against the darkhorse team that had upset highly-favored Saskatchewan earlier in the week.

Down 3-1 in the seventh, Bates fought back to tie the game when Harvey Stevenson hit a pinch-hit single and Doug Boden followed with a 300-foot home run over the centre-field fence.

The Territories had jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on a two-run homer by Ray Stokely.

Bates' victory left them as the only undefeated team in the Green Division as previously-unbeaten Nova Scotia lost, 4-3, to Saskatchewan. Victoria now leads the division with a 4-0 record while Nova Scotia is second at 4-1 and is also guaranteed of a berth in the semi-finals.

Victoria will play its final game of the round-robin today at 8 a.m. Victoria time. If Bates lose, they would have to play Nova Scotia at 11:30 today to decide first and second places.

The first place teams in each division will meet the second place teams of the opposite division in the semi-finals tonight with the winners meeting in the final game Saturday.

In other games Friday, Yukon scored its first victory of the tournament, 9-6 over New Brunswick and Richmond Hill, Ont., the 1972 world champion, brought its Red Division record to, 4-1, with a 4-0 blanking of St. John's, Newfoundland.

Richmond's victory guaranteed it of at least a second-place finish in the Red Division. Hull, the host city and Red Division leader, has a 4-0 record with one game remaining. If Hull should lose its game to Alberta then a deciding game would be played today to decide the division champion.

The championship game on Saturday will be telecast at 11 a.m. PDT.

McAllister Named Coach Of National Soccer Team

He received word of his appointment on Thursday, and will take up his new duties immediately although he won't actually be joining the team for three weeks. He will take a leave of absence from his job as director of athletics at Royal Roads.

Capt. McAllister, who has been associated with the national team for some time as assistant coach for Western Canada, is scheduled to leave for Toronto on Sept. 19 to take charge of the Canadian team on its European tour. He succeeds Frank Pike of Toronto.

The Canadian team leaves the next day for Italy, where it opens its tour on Sept. 23 with a match in Naples. Then it's off to Malta for two games, the first against Malta City on Sept. 28 and the second two days later against the Malta national team.

From Malta, the Canadians move to Copenhagen for an Oct. 3 match against the Danish under-23 national team. That is followed on Oct. 7 by a match against the Luxembourg national team, and the tour concludes on Oct. 10 in Belfast against the Northern Ireland national team.

Capt. McAllister said Thursday he plans to take 18 players on the trip, and midfield player Brian Robinson of Victoria will be one of the eight British Columbia players on the youthful Canadian side.

Other West Coast players to be included in the Canadian lineup are goalkeepers Greg Weber and Tony Chursky and Sam Lenarduzzi, Chris Bennett, Neil Ellet, Brian Gant and Buzz Parsons. All are from the Vancouver area.

Favorites Post Convincing Wins

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Defending champion Marvin (Vinny) Giles and British amateur titleholder Dick Siderowf led a charge of the favorites through the third round of the United States amateur golf championships Thursday.

Giles displayed his best golf of the week on the 6816-yard Inverness Club course, turning in a two-under-par round in a 3-and-2 conquest of Danny Yates.

Siderowf also was happier with his game after trimming Jeff Lindsey of Salem, Ore., 2 and 1 as the field narrowed to 32 for the fourth roundd today.

Kocsis of Royal Oak, Mich., the oldest player in this field, bowed 4 and 2 to Stewart Alexander of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Edwards fired the second-best medal round of the day — a two-under-par 69, however, the young Edmonds, Okla., star still lost to Harold Andrews of Jackson, Mich., who fashioned a 68 for a 1-up victory.

Clemente Widow Files Huge Suit

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — The widow of baseball star Roberto Clemente filed a $15-million suit in federal court Thursday, charging two aviation firms and the United States government with negligence in connection with the death of her husband.

The Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder died last Dec. 31 in an air crash off the coast of Puerto Rico shortly after taking off in a chartered cargo plane on a relief mission to earthquake-shattered Nicaragua.

Four others died in the crash and the widow of another victim filed a suit for $3 million.

Defendants in the suit are the McDonnell-Douglas Corp., manufacturers of the ill-fated DC-7; the Curtiss-Wright Corp., which produced the plane's engines, along with the U.S. government.

Both firms were charged with negligence and breach of warranty. U.S. aviation inspectors were accused of failing to inspect the aircraft properly.

The suit charges that the plane was allowed to take off despite its being overloaded with cargo. It also claims the cargo was not properly secured and the crew was inadequate and unqualified.

Eagles Triumph

Eagles trimmed Castaways 5-0 Thursday in the deciding game of the best-of-seven Industrial Softball League final at Macdonald Park.

Winning pitcher Warner Smith allowed only two hits while loser Corky Jossul was touched for seven.

Eagles also won the league championship.

Island Youths Earn Hockey Scholarships

Mel Bridgman and Tom McEvay of Victoria and John Jordan of Nanaimo will receive their first year's tuition at a B.C. university of their choice.

Bridgman, a graduate of Mount Douglas Secondary School, plans to enter University of Victoria this fall. He started his minor hockey career in Thunder Bay and moved to Victoria in 1969.

The hard-shooting centre, who has played several games for Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League, had ankle surgery last year but still managed to score more than 80 points for Nanaimo Clippers of the B.C. Junior Hockey League.

A graduate of Esquimalt Secondary School, McEvay will enter the University of B.C. to study education. He was a goaltender last season for Esquimalt of the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Jordan, who has played eight years in the Nanaimo minor hockey program, will also enter UBC and will take a science course leading to a degree in oceanography. The husky forward started last season with the clippers, moved to the juvenile Nanaimo Buckaneers, then rejoined the Clippers for the playoffs.

The Molson program, now in its eighth year, has provided about 80 scholarships for B.C. youths. The awards to Bridgman and McEvay are the eighth and ninth presented to Victoria residents.

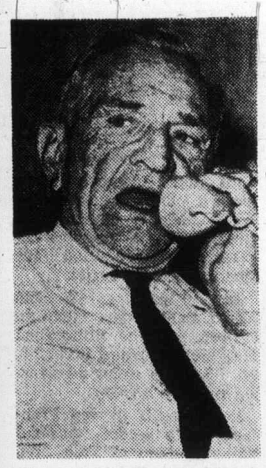
Casey Was Never at a Loss for Words

Baseball's Premier Orator



Stengel

By JIM MURRAY
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

The last thing I remember asking Casey Stengel was what he thought of the "designated pinch hitter" rule, adopted this year by the American League.

You might think I wanted a current answer on that but Casey, you see, belongs to no particular time and space or century. The best available information is, he was found in a gingerbread house, that he hadn't been born, he was whittled or that he fell off a cuckoo clock.

It was understandable Casey should have thought I wanted the opinions of John McGraw and Connie Mack and Ban Johnson on the proposed rule change which removes the pitcher from the batter's box and trifles with the sanctity of the grand old game of baseball, because Casey has one foot planted firmly in 1910, the one that's been broken so often it looks like a sack of prunes and 60 years of history is just another inside-the-park homer to Casey.

Casey speaks a language which is popularly believed to be decipherable only to certain forest creatures and Snow White, and it is delivered in a deep-throated rumble which could be used to warn ships in a fog. You have to sort through the jumble of verbs and nouns, if any, to find contents Casey believes truth should come suitably cloaked in debris and have to be searched for. Like, oil comes in mud, doesn't it, and gold has to be sifted in a pan of silt?

So, your witness. Remember the question, simple enough, was "What do you think of the designated pinch hitter rule?"

"Well, you would have to say I was platooned now, wouldn't you? Look it up. McGraw was in those three world series with that team which they say was so powerful it batted with telephone poles and McGraw had to do somethin', didn't he, and he won two out of three and you could look it up I played 75 games and you could say I was platooned because when they had a sidearmer in there McGraw said maybe it will do you some good with the bad leg and all if you was to bat in 75 games instead of 150 and I batted .368 but Hornsby hit .424 which is 50 points more than me and you would have thought I was the best hitter in the world only Hornsby was in it.

"You would have to say I was a platoon manager and some of them fellas commenced to get mad at me but I said, 'My goodness! What the hell's wrong with that lineup, it's got 8 names on it, hasn't it?'

"What? Well, I'm comin' to that. Now, no ones's been able to decide that question. I saw Cronin (Note: president of the American League) at three dinners and the commissioner at three. Well, I had that fella on the Yankees, he became a very good doctor (Note: Bobby Brown, ex-Yankee infielder) but you would have to say at third-base you would want someone who made more house calls, get it? But to tell you the truth he could pinch-hit, that's why we became very successful as I had Johnny Mize, too, I won three of our pennants platooning and I had Brown, he became a terrific doctor but the only man I ever see who could tag high and get somebody out was Bourdreau (Note: Lou, Cleveland shortstop) as normally you can't get anybody out that way unless the umpire blows it but put him at third and you would have to say it was a good thing he could hit but Mize, now he could go up there and pinch-hit even you had to wake him up to do it and he would hit the ball so hard you would think the only way they might get him out was if it would blow up on the bat but they couldn't play him in the seats.

"Well, this man said, My goodness! How are you going to sell all those hot dogs now that the pitcher isn't in it as everybody got hungry when the pitcher was up because they've seen how he can hardly hold the bat upright without someone helps him get it to his shoulder but you see how some pitchers can be athaletes as you will notice Joe Wood played 79-80 games alongside Speaker in right field without needing an ambulance and Ruffing they used to hit for the rightfielder some times and, of course, Ruth was a pitcher if he didn't have to save baseball.

"It's a sad thing to ask some of them players to play."

So, Casey was in favor of the new rule?

"Well, Chicago is the centre of the world in railroading and Cleveland draws 3 million people and you would have to say Lemons (Note: pitcher Bob Lemon) was the best pitcher I ever saw and you would wonder where the hell three million people would go without they set fire to the town and maybe it's like going to the movies and the guy never gets the girl and when I started in this game all I wanted was enough money to go to dentistry school as my father said there would always be people in the world who needed their teeth pulled."

Well, then, it would be fair to say Casey wanted to give the rule a try?

"That's what I said," said Casey.

Best bets for salmon fishermen the up-coming holiday weekend are Pedder Bay to Sooke for a mixed bag of pinks, jacksprings and the occasional big chinook; Cowichan Bay for big chinooks; and the tyee salmon grounds in Alberni Inlet, Campbell River and Gold River.

However, salmon fishing has been quite spotty.

The current cool weather should improve fishing for trout and bass in the lakes and trout in the rivers, although rivers will still be very low.

Competitive fishermen can fish in the Esquimalt Anglers' Association three-day derby Saturday, Sunday and Monday with weigh-ins, by water, at Fleming Beach Ramp and boundaries from Trial Island to Race Rocks. There are $250 worth of merchandise prizes for big fish along with hidden-weight draws, plus a consolation draw prize of a boat, motor and trailer.

At Sooke this week, seiners averaged 70 sockeye, 50 coho and 1000 pinks a day, so the big pink run is still building up in Juan de Fuca Strait. This should be the peak weekend for sports anglers off Otter Point, Secretary Island, Beechey Head, Pedder Bay, William Head and, perhaps, the Victoria and Oak Bay waterfronts.

There has been good fishing this week for pinks right in Becher Bay and around Church Rock and Frazer Island and out as far as three miles with three pounds of weight.

Big chinooks are still being taken in Sooke area waters, although most anglers are out after limits of pinks and jacks.

Cowichan Bay was hot Thursday morning with a good number of big chinooks weighed in, but the bite came on late, around 9 a.m., and the crack-of-dawn fishermen got skunked. Best fishing was along Skinner Bluffs, and trollers had most of the action.

Mid-Island waters are slow, but producing some fish, especially around Nanaimo. Qualicum Bay has had a couple of tyee, which could indicate arrival of the big chinooks.

Alberni Inlet is rated fair for tyee, and Campbell River is at its peak. Gold River anglers are wondering what has happened to their tyee run, although they have had some fair action. This is the first big cycle year since the pulp mill opened, and return of the tyee salmon is being watched carefully.

Anglers are having good action taking jack chinooks in the Gold River.

Bates Beach coho fishing has slowed down considerably, although there are still spurts of action about a mile and a half from shore.

Anglers from various Island points are becoming more and more disturbed about lack of kelp in the usual kelp beds this year and it may be time for the federal fisheries to initiate a crash research program.

It is the kelp which protects the needlefish, which the coho and chinooks chase. That is why there is often good salmon fishing along the kelp beds.

But, with no kelp to speak of this year, anglers are finding the fish in mid-channel and very deep, usually feeding on shrimp.

What is happening to the kelp? Is it pollution? Is there some mystery disease killing it off? Now is the time for research, before it is too late.

The grouse-shooting season opens Saturday, and the current wet weather means the logging gates should be open. Western Forest Industries, which closed its gates last weekend because of fire hazard, will have them open this weekend. So will Pacific Logging.

Victoria Fish and Game Archers met with success at last weekend's opening for archery season for buck deer.

Dwayne hung his camouflage jacket on a tree around Bonanza Lake, and it was so well camouflaged he couldn't find it. It had an eight-power monocular in the pocket, and he will pay a reward for its return.

Victoria Gun Club shooter Wayne Watson was high overall at the Qualicum-Victoria inter club skeet shoot at Qualicum last Sunday. Gail Harding of Qualicum won the women's events, the junior 12 gauge winner was Doug Harding and sub-junior winner, 20 gauge, was Grey Harding, to make it quite a score for the Harding family. Qualicum took the inter-club team skeet trophy from Victoria Gun Club with a score of 229 against Victoria's 227, out of a possible 250.

Lynch, Baker To Play

Jim Lynch and Norm Baker will be back in the lineup when Victoria McDonalds face Richmond Roadrunners in the fourth game of the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse playoffs tonight in Richmond.

Lynch, who has an ankle injury, and Baker, who had the flu, missed the third game of the playoffs Wednesday, when Victoria dropped a 17-9 decision to the defending champions.

Marlboro Centre Signs with Toros

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association announced Thursday the signing of 18-year-old Wayne Dillon to a three-year contract.

Dillon, a centre, is the fourth player who would have been eligible to return to Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series this season who has signed a WHA contract.

Mark and Marty Howe will play with their father, former NHL great Gordie, for Houston Aeros and Tom Edur has signed with Cleveland Crusaders.

Financial terms of the contract were not announced, although Dillon said its third year is renegotiable.

He said the Toros agreed to allow him to continue living at home and attend high school classes.

Dillon, who turned 18 May 25, led the Memorial Cup-champion Marlboros in scoring last winter with 47 goals and 60 assists for 107 points.

Kiwi Clinches Dinghy Crown

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — If Clive Robert doesn't feel like sailing today, he doesn't have to. The Aukland, N.Z., sailor clinched first place in the OK Dinghy standings at the Canadian Olympic Training Regatta with his fourth consecutive win Thursday.

He now has an insurmountable lead ahead of Toni Rose of Victoria and Rob Woodbury of Brockville, Ont.

Lee Davis of Birmingham, Mich., made it two wins in a row Thursday to move into first place in the Fireball standings.

John Winsor of North Vancouver dropped to second while Joan Filsinger of Stone Harbor, N.J., the best-placed woman in the regatta, was third.

Island Clubs Well Represented In Canada-U.S. Cricket Match

Four Vancouver Islanders will be in the 12-man lineup when Canada plays the United States in a three-day test cricket match that starts Saturday at Beacon Hill Park.

Three of the players, Dave Clark of Castaways, Kortwright Richards of Oak Bay and Tim Lord of Cowichan were named to the starting XI and Jim Wenman of Incogs was chosen the 12th man.

Clark the only one of the four who has played for Canada before, is an outstanding batsman, while Richards, Lord and Wenman are all bowlers.

The test is the first in the 178-year history (53 matches) of the International Series to be played in British Columbia and only the third in Western Canada — Calgary and Winnipeg each hosted one test.

The first match in the series was played in 1844 between the Toronto Cricket Club and St. George's Cricket Club of New York and the series is now the oldest existing cricket competition between two nations.

In the 10 matches played since the modern version began in 1963, Canada has won four times, the U.S. three times and there have been three draws.

The U.S. team will consisst of Basil Brown (captain), Oscar Durity, Anil Lashkari, Hasib Khan, Ron Ramlall (all of Southern California), Alan Amin, Wes Hurde, B. D. Ramnanan (all of Chicago), J. G. Manzoor (St. Louis), Bob Thompson (New York) and Aslim Khan (Seattle).

In an effort to avoid a draw this year's match has been extended from two to three days. Saturday's play runs from 1:30 to 6:30 p.m., Sunday's from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Monday's play runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Hampshire Wins Title

LONDON (Reuter) — Hampshire carried off the English country cricket championship title Thursday for the second time in their history at Bournemouth.

When they reached 225 for five against Gloucestershire they had taken 10 points from the match. This gave them a total of 237 points and they still have a game to play.

If Surrey wins its game against Northamptonshire, it will have 211 points which would leave it to get 26 points from its final game — a figure never achieved by any county under the present points scoring system.

Hampshire won the title for the first time in 1961 on the same Bournemouth ground.

Early Bird Sweeps

Victoria Resident Draws Alouettes

WINNIPEG (CP) — A cross-section of Canadians were drawn Thursday in the $400,000 Manitoba Golden Sweepstakes' early bird draw based on the 1973 Grey Cup football championship.

First prize of $2,500 for the draw will go to the person whose ticket is matched with the winning team in the Canadian Football League final to be played Nov. 25 in Toronto.

Ticket holders and their teams:

British Columbia Lions — R. D. Stirling of Vancouver; Calgary Stampeders — Horace Eavis of Cornerbrook, Nfld.; Edmonton Eskimos — J. Hamel of Flin Flon, Man.; Hamilton Tiger-Cats — Clara MacDonald of Port Coquitlam; Montreal Alouettes — A. F. Chambers of Victoria; Ottawa Rough Riders — Grant Dixon of Angus, Ont.; Saskatchewan Roughriders — R. James of Ajax, Ont.; Toronto Argonauts — Rheta Galbick of Winnipeg; Winnipeg Blue Bombers — Betty Walker of Bracebridge, Ont.

The holder of the ticket on the losing team in the Grey Cup will win $1,500. Third price of $1,000 goes to the ticket-holder matched with the team defeated in Eastern or Western Conference finals by the eventual Grey Cup winner.

Persons holding tickets on the five remaining teams will receive $300 each.

The second early bird draw will be held Sept. 27 with the final draw slated for November.

Hacking It in the Woods with Wally

He Teaches Youngsters To Survive Outdoors

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Colonist Correspondent

COURTENAY — Wally Hacking thrives in the outdoors and loves to see other people enjoy the woods and country as much as he does.

But the number of untrained hunters, hikers, canoeists and other enthusiasts who go into the bushlands make Hacking, 42, of Courtenay, shudder.

He feels that these people cause too many of the accidents that are becoming all too common in the outdoors.

With this in mind, Hacking has been putting all his time and efforts into the Comox Valley Outdoor College, which was instituted in March.

Through the college, Hacking, founder and president, said he is able to share his love of the outdoors and have the satisfaction of knowing that others, mainly youths, are aware of safety factors, know survival techniques and are prepared for any unexpected incidents that may occur while they are in the woods.

Hacking received most of his survival training during the 20 years he served in the armed forces. Eleven of these years were spent in some type of group search and rescue team.

He recalls that his love for hunting and the outdoors began at the age of 10 when, while he was groing up in Yarmouth, N.S., two part-Indian neighbor trappers used to take him into the bush for days on end.

"At that time I learned to love the outdoors and they taught me a great deal," he said.

Hacking also has a valid practical nursing licence.

The first, which is completely non-profit, is a hunters' training night school course supported by local merchants and the B.C. department of fish and wildlife. It is designed for people over 13 years old.

For more than a year this course has been mandatory for any child under the age of 18, any adult who doesn't hold a valid B.C. hunter's licence or has proof that he has taken a similar course in any other province, who wishes to hunt in the Comox Valley.

"The course is now mandatory for people who wish to hunt on Vancouver Island," Hacking said.

Hacking said that he, along with seven other volunteer instructors who have an average of 30 years in outdoors training, formed the college to take over the government's hunters' training program in March because "we felt it didn't go deep enough into hunting. People taking the course were taught all about the rifle and shotgun but never got to see or handle one."

The fish and wildlife branch approved the college's program when it incorporated the department's curriculum into "our program with our own improvements."

"Our hunters' training program is actually more of a conservation and recreational program," Hacking added. "We teach young people how to hunt properly and safely."

For a $5 tuition fee students can participate in the 70-hour course. This 70 hours is broken down into 24 hours of theory and 40 hours of basic survival training. The total hours of the course also include 12 hours of range work with a rifle or shotgun and six hours of theory on how to use the weapons.

Bush lore is taught at the end of night school instruction when instructors take students on a 40-hour weekend camping trip at Lower Quinsam Lake near Campbell River.

While in the outdoors, students are also taught how to make snares and traps.

Since March, 34 youths have participated in the course. "Six failed because they did not meet our standards," Hacking said.

The night school course starts again in September and the college already has more than 50 applications.

Hacking said his instructors can handle a maximum of only 20 students at a time, so many will have to be deferred until other sessions.

"We plan to have a course every month, so hopefully we will run 12 courses through the next year."

In this program, Hacking and other instructors take the young people into the woods for 10 days where they are taught camping, map reading, first aid (the type one would need for emergencies encountered on hiking and camping trips), ecology, conservation and ethics.

Participants in this program pay $125 and are supplied with all their equipment and food, except for a sleeping bag.

Hacking took 11 students out this summer and expects many more to participate next summer when the program will begin again.

New Operations Centre for Appeal

Cowichan United Appeal has spanking new, rent-free headquarters in the Duncan Financial Centre. New office, provided by Nanaimo Realty (Duncan) Ltd. will be operations centre as appeal sets out to meet target of $46,500 this year for 13 agencies.

Indians Having Trouble Getting Started on Weir

By GORDON HAMILTON
Colonist Duncan Bureau

DUNCAN — As the Cowichan Indian fishing protest entered its second day Thursday, life at the Indian camp had settled into the routine of hard work.

The leaders were finished talking to the reporters who swarmed over the site Wednesday, and were busy organizing the cutting of stakes for the weir and the handling of daily campsite chores.

A barricade, which closed the only access road to the camp on Wednesday, had been moved aside and there is free access to the camp, but only Indians are coming and going.

"There has been no need to keep it up," said demonstration leader Gordon Elliott. "Nobody has been coming down here bothering us, but if we have to, then we'll put it up again."

Except for a TV crew, which buzzed the site in an airplane and caused a momentary stir, the camp was quiet and orderly. Women tended pots of food on the fire, and from the tangle of alder and willow which form a backdrop to the camp came the sound of axes and machetes cutting into the trees.

The actual construction of the weir seemed to be a problem for the demonstrators. It is 40 years since a weir was placed across the Cowichan River. Work was supposed to begin on it Wednesday morning. Then Elliott said they would start Thursday. Now it is Friday, with Saturday being the expected completion date.

In spite of the quiet and peaceful atmosphere of the camp, however, the determination and silent anger which prompted the Indians to defy existing fishing regulations still hangs in the air. The expected influx of Indians from throughout B.C. has not materialized, but in ones and twos the Indians are coming to the site, bedrolls and utensils tucked under their arms. Elliott said Wednesday that supporters had arrived from other coast communities and interior salmon fishing villages.

One Last, Glorious Fling

Grant Taylor, 13, and Michael Dickie, eight, both of Duncan, prepare Grant's sabot for practice run before Maple Bay Yacht Club's Labor Day Regatta. Regatta, last of this season, is being held Saturday and Sunday and is expected to draw large turnout of sailing boats in all classes. Grant and Michael will compete in junior division. After that, it's back to school, homework and other childhood joys.

Farmers Not Out of Feed... Yet

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Although feed manufacturers are just about out of supplies, the majority of chicken and dairy farmers have 10 days' to two weeks' food supply on hand, according to Wally Taylor, manager of Cowichan Co-Opertive Services of Duncan and the Nanaimo Farmers' Co-operative.

The major problem facing all in the industry is "price gouging" on the part of the Canadian Wheat Board which has increased the price of wheat in British Columbia from $3.67 a bushel to $5.62, and the price of barley from $2.40 to $3, he said.

If chicken farmers have to pay these prices, predicted Taylor the price of eggs will increase by 15 to 17 cents a dozen.

Taylor made his statements Thursday, as Roy Head, spokesman for striking railwaymen in Victoria, said there is no way his union will stand idly by and see animals starve and farmers wiped out.

Head said two boxcars of feed were located and released in Victoria Wednesday, and if more were located they would also be released.

Taylor said he has asked the provincial agriculture department to declare Vancouver Island a disaster area, partly because of the lack of feed after five weeks of interrupted deliveries but mostly because of the sudden price increases.

He said he wants the province to subsidize feed manufacturers so they can continue to retail feed at current prices with the government absorbing any losses.

"Regardless of what happens now with regard to the rail strike, we are facing a month of instability and high costs," said Taylor.

And, Taylor added, he couldn't see railwaymen going back to work under federal governmnent terms of settlement.

"You can't expect men to settle for an increase that doesn't even cover the cost of living increases," he said. "And you can't expect men to work for the kind of money these men are offered.

"The government will have to be realistic if this to be settled.

Taylor said he has been in touch with Ottawa officials about the weekend price increases but had received no answer.

"It's just as though we were sitting out on the Greenpeace Three," he said.

Railmen To Defy Job-Return Act

—CP

150 Storm Parliament

● Trail smelter closing down. Page 9.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave second reading Thursday night to proposed legislation that would order the national rail strike ended although enraged railwaymen say they will ignore the bill if approved in its present form.

Eight hours earlier the striking non-operating railway workers drove home their discontent with an 1,800-man march that led to one of the most violent eruptions in parliamentary history.

The bill proposes minimum wage increases and compulsory arbitration for the 56,000 non-ops, 20,000 shopcraft tradesmen and 14,500 trainmen. The tradesmen have been poised to strike but the bill forbids this.

In detail, the bill proposes wage increases for the clerks, porters and other non-operating members of 30-cents-an-hour retroactive to Jan. 1, this year, a five-per-cent raise on Jan. 1, 1974, and a further raise of three per cent on July 1, 1974. Average hourly wages would increase to about $4.15 an hour from about $3.54 an hour after the settlement was fully in effect.

For the shopcraft and trainmen, the proposed wage increases are 8¼ per cent on Jan. 1, 1973, 6½ per cent Jan. 1, 1974 and 1½ per cent on July 1, 1974. Average hourly wage for the first union now is $4.05 and for the latter, $4.25.

Approval of the bill in principal carried by a vote of 192-to-24. The New Democrats, who earlier failed to bring the bill more into line with union demands, voted against it.

The Commons adjourned for the night shortly after the vote, but union leaders in a nearby hotel continued to plot ways to counter the proposed legislation.

Union Officers Fired, Harmac Shut

Firing of eight employees — including four union officers — and the suspension of another worker touched off strikes by about 1,500 MacMillan Bloedel employees at two of the company's Island facilities Thursday.

Eleven hundred men at the Harmac pulp mill south of Nanaimo decided Thursday night to stay off the job until eight workers who were fired earlier in the day are reinstated.

And at Port Alberni, the Ash, Cous and Taylor logging operations were closed down by a strike by about 400 men following the suspension of a worker who left his job to attend a workers' meeting.

Among the eight fired at the Harmac mill Thursday were the president, the chief negotiator and two other executive members of Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada. It was the latest move in a continuing dispute which has twice closed the mill in the past two weeks.

General manager of the mill, Gordon Woram, said the men were fired for taking part in "illegal picket lines" on Aug. 20 and 27 which forced shutdowns of the mill, eight miles south of Nanaimo.

Including among the men fired by the mill were Stan Shewaga, chief negotiator for the PPWC; Bud Hehr, president of Local 8: Bruce Tunstall, first vice-president of the local; and Ken Manzer, a member of the local's executive.

The other four men were employees of the mill's steam plant, including one whose suspension on Monday caused workers to walk off the job. The company responded Tuesday by shutting down the mill. It has been closed since then.

In a prepared statement, Woram said that despite the union's contention that picket lines at the plant had been set up merely to inform employees of a B.C. Labor Relations Board hearing, they resulted in shutdowns and were therefore violations of the last collective agreement between the company and the union.

That agreement expired earlier this year and the PPWC has refused to accept terms agreed to earlier by other pulp industry unions.

'We'll Steal To Eat'

OTTAWA (CP) — "We'll steal food if we have to."

The sweating bleary-eyed Montreal railway worker, his shirt stained with the blood of a fellow demonstrator, stood with his friends in the Centre Block rotunda of the parliament buildings Thursday.

With no strike pay, how long could he hold out? How would he eat? He paused for a moment and then shrugged.

"They have big grocery stores in Montreal . . . Dominion, Steinbergs and that.

"They always have lots of extra food. You just go in and take what you need. You gotta get it somehow. If 5,000 workers go in, they can't stop you.

". . . Yeah, I guess that's a food riot. But you gotta eat . . . and they can't stop you."

Scuffles Not Planned

No demonstrations like the one by about 150 young militants who stormed the Centre Block breaking windows and scuffling with police were planned. But other forms of resistance were.

Chief union negotiator Richard Smith announced that strike leaders would urge their members to ignore the law if passed unchanged, thus running the risk of a two-year prison term for disobeying a federal statute.

Theoretically this applies to all violators, but in practice only the leaders would be charged.

To accede to the proposed bill "would betray the 56,000 workers whose interests we were elected to protect," Smith said.

"We will not send them back to work for the meagre wage increases proposed in the bill."

(In Victoria Roy Head, strikers' spokesman, said the general feeling is that after striking for a month there is no way the men will go back and accept terms that were previously rejected.

("We'll go along with the general feeling across Canada that there will be no return to work until such times as our leaders order us back.

("And even if our leaders told us to go back, I don't think the men would go unless there is a better settlement than Munro is offering."

(Head said he felt the Ottawa demonstration was a "stupid thing," but he questioned whether all the men involved were actually strikers.)

King Shuffle Affects Six

A 31-year-old labor lawyer with little practical experience in union-management problems was appointed Thursday as deputy minister of labor, at a salary of $39,000.

James Matkin, a professor of labor law at UBC for the past three years, will replace former deputy Bill Sands. Sands is marked for "a very important assignment within the department," according to Labor Minister Bill King.

Despite the demotion in status, Sands' salary will go up to $33,000, a raise of $5,500 from the old deputy minister pay level.

In another appointment King named James Kinnaird, vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, the new associate deputy in charge of industrial relations at a $33,000 salary.

Other top civil servants involved in the department shuffle are: John Melville, one-time assistant deputy, who becomes director of manpower training and development at a salary not yet fixed; James Edgett, another former assistant deputy, who becomes director of legislation.

Surprise news was still Matkin's appointment. The Alberta native attended Harvard Law School and studied under Archibald Cox, currently the special Watergate prosecutor.

In 1972 he acted as special assistant to Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz in the mediation of the longshoremen's dispute. During his research at UBC, he was involved in a critical examination of the now-defunct Mediation Commission.

King said his new deputy

Coffee Held For Prices

LONDON (AP) — The world's major coffee producers voted Thursday to withhold 10 per cent of their 1973-74 exports in order to keep prices up.

The 33 countries that voted produce 90 per cent of the world's exportable coffee.

Same Stranded Sub Rescued Here in '70

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The company which built Pisces III, the mini-submersible now lying at the bottom of the Atlantic, said Thursday this is the second time the vessel has had to be rescued from the ocean floor.

International Hydrodynamics said Pisces III was stranded in 600 feet of water for 5½ hours during a dive Nov. 12, 1970, near Vancouver.

The company had never previously disclosed the earlier incident.

"No problems were encountered in the rescue operation and since it was not considered a newsworthy event there were no releases made to the press," the company said in a prepared statment.

Messervey, general manager of Vickers oceanic division, is on board the Vickers Volager which is heading the rescue of crewmen from Pisces III.

Referring to the 1970 incident, International Hydrodynamics said the vessel was on its first dive following maintenance work.

"Shortly after launching and during the descent the pilot noticed that the submersible was becoming tail heavy and within 30 minutes was at the bottom at a depth of 600 feet," said the company in its statement.

"It was apparent that the tail sphere had become flooded and it later proved that the reason was that a vent plug had been removed and not replaced during maintenance.

"Within two hours the Canadian Navy submersible SDL-1 was launched and attached a line to Pisces — which was thereupon winched up back to the surface."

Rescuers Race Clock

CORK, Ireland (AP) — A midget submarine dived near the bed of the gale-whipped Atlantic off Ireland early today to try to locate a sister vessel trapped for two days 1,375 feet below the surface with two Britons aboard.

As the seas mounted steadily, rescuers raced against the clock to save the crew of the stricken mini-sub Pisces III.

The rescue sub, Pisces II, was launched from its mother ship, The Vickers Voyager. A spokesman for the operation said Pisces II had established a sonar contact with the trapped submarine but had not located its exact position.

Making a Mistake

Labor Minister John Munro, who has played a major role through a month of rotating strikes and a week of national walkouts, said he thought the union leadership was making a mistake with its threat not to obey the back-to-work order.

There would be a change in attitude, he said, when the workers realized that an 8.5-per-cent increase in wages proposed for the first year of a two-year agreement was strictly a base figure.

Although union leaders agree they would support the bill if it was "sufficiently improved," there were indications that many of their members would not. Many who marched on the Hill said they wanted no part in a legislative settlement — that the end result always favored the railways.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis, who had attempted to cool the demonstrations with assurances that his party would work toward a generous settlement, urged the Commons to throw out the bill and replace it with one in line with union demands.

His suggested new bill, which would have given the workers a wage increase of 21.6 per cent in a two-year contract, meshed with a proposal by conciliation board union nominee John Weldon of Montreal in July. But he was ruled out of order by Speaker

Bomb Shatters London Street

LONDON (AP) — A bomb exploded outside a luxury hotel early Friday. Security chiefs said they feared Irish guerrillas were stepping up their terror campaign in Britain.

Police had eight minutes' warning that the bomb had been left outside the Cumberland Hotel, and there were no casualties.

The hotel is at Marble Arch, close to the fashionable Oxford Street shopping area, and through the years has been popular with Canadian visitors.

A bomb warning was telephoned to the Press Association, the British domestic news agency, by a man who said police should cordon off a 600-yard area around the arch.

"You've got plenty of time," he added.

The bomb, which had been planted in a pile of rubbish on a side street, shattered dozens of windows and wrecked three autos when it went off.

Several hundred guests, many in night clothes, were ushered from the hotel to others nearby while police searched unsuccessfully for further bombs. Then they

Nixon Plans Tape Appeal

The president's decision on his next step in the historic legal battle came 24 hours after John Sirica, chief U.S. district court judge, ordered Nixon to produce for his private inspection the tapes demanded by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.
